Pleas by officials to cut lighting have not been heeded by everyone. These photos of the Trust Co., Car Wash, First Congregational Church and First National Store in Winchester were taken Monday night at 9.

THE ENERGY SHORTAGE

All But One Gas Station Shuts Sunday

All but one of Winchester's gasoline stations closed Sunday as filling stations throughout the country complied with President Richard M. Nixon's request to voluntarily shutdown in order to discourage long weekend driving.

But on Saturday, there were lines at most of the Winchester stations as motorists filled up to insure full tanks on Dry Sunday.

Traffic in the area was about normal, despite reports from state police that travel on the Massachusetts Turnpike and interstate highways was very light.

The Star conducted spot checks throughout the day on Routes 128 and 93 and found the number of vehicles using these main throughfares as about the same as any sunny Sunday, if not heavier.

The Board of Selectmen at its meeting this week took up the matter of the energy crisis, a continuing discussion at recent meetings.

They asked the merchants to cut commercial lighting and heard reports from two of the board members who stated in substance: "The energy crisis is worse than most of us realize."

Executive secretary Edward Donnelly, member of the governor's municipal task force on energy, said he attended a recent conference. "They are working on the basis that we are going to have a serious problem. A lot will depend on what the weather is."

Chairman Arthur Dunbar said an emergency energy board comprising town government officials met Monday and discussed what to do in case of loss of power and heat. "All boards are interested in protecting the people of Winchester," he said, declining to state how. He said the "emergency board" is preparing a press release.

"The committee agreed it is going to be quite a bigger problem than anyone anticipated," the chairman stated later in the meeting, adding that the effects of the fuel shortage should begin to be felt locally by the end of the month or beginning of January

Dunbar suggested the board make some kind of plea to the town meeting on energy.

To which Selectman Vito Giarrizzo quipped: "We might start by having a more efficient meeting so it doesn't go 10 sessions."

Residents Lower Heat, Bundle Up, Drive Less

Responding to national, state and municipal leadership, Winchester residents are conserving fuel and looking for additional ways to help in the energy crisis.

In a telephone poll this week, The Star interviewed 24 families. The attempt was to gain reaction from 26 families, one for each letter of the alphabet. (M and X are missing.)

Of those questioned, all but one family (where there is illness) said they have reduced thermostats by at least two degress. In some cases temperatures are being lowered to 62 degrees at night.

Mrs. James Ulwick of 4 Lakeview ter. reports lowering the thermostat five degrees in the daytime and says she and her family are freezing. They have put shieldings on cellar windows to keep in heat and replaced three panes of glass over which they will place new heavier drapes.

Mrs. Henry Perrin of 60 Emerson rd., who uses gas in her home, reports keeping one light on at a time. Michael Friedman, 13, of 57 Grove st. and Mr. and Mrs. James F. Walsh of 23 Hutchinson rd. say they "use one room at a time."

The Robert J. Taylor family of 12 Hill st. and the John Igo family of 89 Main st. report a new rule in their homes - one television on at a time. Mrs. Igo further says "and then watching only at certain times."

Ben Linson, 13, of 47 Myrtle ter., says "we're cutting down lights and wearing sweaters now." Helen Deroo, also 13, of 36 Lebanon st., says "we're using candles part of the time."

The Michael Hussey family at Rumford street is doing all of the above plus having the children dress more warmly at bedtime. Using sleeping bags, Suzanne and Mark Hussey are wearing sweatshirts, thermal underwear and knee socks to bed. Their mother is serving more warm drinks, ... using battery clocks and radios. and lowering the temperature in her refrigerator.

Mrs. Hussey reports they will not put up Christmas lights this year. "It will be sad without the lights but my children seem to enjoy the sharing and thinking of new ways to save energy."

The Husseys are not alone in their decision to omit Christmas lighting this year. This is the case of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Kennedy of 52 Salisbury st. and the C. Philip O'Rourke family at 160 Mt. Vernon st. Mrs. O'Rourke said, "We're now debating on whether or not to use a small inside artificial tree with French lights."

The Ulwicks, Taylors and Anthony Riccioli of 22 Albamont rd. are looking to their fireplaces for increased warmth. The Ulwicks and Taylors are currently using theirs, while Riccioli is saving his wood for emergency use.

Many of those interviewed said they are cutting down on driving by doubling up on trips. Mr. and Mrs. M. Scully of 29 Grove st. shop once a week, with their sons and neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron W. Jackson of 97 Arlington st. who are eliminating "needless errands," Mr. and Mrs. Harry Venuti of 11 Main st. and John Zani of 5 Worthen Rd.

Howard Chase of 160 Forest st., all in favor of conserving fuel, says he's feeling the crunch of the gas shortage "because he needs his car for business." He reports going to four gas stations on Saturday and finding them all closed. "This is a ridiculous way to conserve fuel." He would prefer rationing. "raising the price is not the answer, .

The gasoline shortage doesn't concern Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Gurry of 2 Cutting st. who say "no car, no problem."

Long distance traveling is of concern to Winchester residents. Mr. and Mrs. J.

Charter Election On Ballot

The question whether Winchester should establish a charter commission and the election of nine charter commissioners will be on the March ballot.

The town clerk's office has verified 2,459 signatures on the petitions submitted. Turned in were 2,764 signatures. Only 2,000 are needed to place the issue on the ballot.

The League of Women Voters, Winchester Jaycees and members of the Town Government Study Committee, originator of the charter move, circulated the petitions from house to house.

A door-to-door canvas was conducted in all precincts except Prec. 6, according to Joanne Morgan, member of TGSC. She added, however, that Prec. 6 was partially covered.

Candidates for election to the charter commission may take out nomination papers after the first of the year. Only 50 certified signatures will be required in order for a candidate's name to appear on the ballot.

Nomination papers must be turned in at the end of January.

If creation of a commission is approved and nine commissioners elected in the March election, an organizational meeting will be held within 10 days.

The charter commission would submit its version of a Winchester charter to the Board of Selectmen for publication by the end of 1974.

When the voters in March decide if they should create a commission, they vote for the nine commissioners at the same time.

The commission's charter would either be accepted in total or rejected in total by the electorate. The town meeting in 1975 would be asked to vote on the proposed charter as an advisory to the voters.

Suzanne and Mark Hussey, children of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hussey of Rumford st., are keeping warm during the energy crisis by wearing extra clothing to bed.

Finance, Planning Give K&B Nod, Selectmen 2-1 Opposed

Kaufman & Broad's plan to build nearly 500 condominiums off Cambridge street received the following recommendations from town boards and committees this week:

—Finance Committee, 8-2 in favor;

—Board of Selectmen, 2-1 against (with two abstaining)'

—Planning Board, 4-1 in favor.

A special town meeting convenes tonight in the new high school auditorium to consider placing the 93-acre site into a new, zone, "planned residential development."

The K & B article is number seven on the eight-article warrant and is not expected to come up for discussion tonight. All town meetings begin at 7:45 p.m. and are open to the public. Only town meeting members may vote, however.

The votes of the town boards and committees are advisory only. The town meeting membership will decide the future of K&B's request. A two-thirds majority is required to rezone the property.

Finance Committee action came after discussion centering on a report from Chairman James B.L. Lane that the development will mean a $3 reduction on the tax rate.

Lane said K&B analysts projected costs to the town on the basis of an increase in such services as schooling and deducted an estimated average assessment of the condominiums in arriving at the figures.

"Their figures by and large are conservative," said Lane, adding that this was probably done purposely to eliminate "nit-picking" by town meeting members.

"I went through them very carefully and couldn't see what they didn't pick up," said Chairman Lane of the K&B figures on the cost of the town providing services to the West Side Hill development.

Lane told the committee members: "The town's decision should be based on good zoning and whether that's the best use of the land rather than on a $3 deduction on the tax rate."

Several town officials contacted by The Star said they believed that if K&B were turned down the owner of the land, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moss, could begin construction of single family homes almost immediately.

Committee member Richard A. Richmond, one of the two on Finance voting against, said a covenant being prepared by the town with K&B doesn't guarantee open space, access or that the 487 units will be in the $45,000 range as K&B has said.

Chairman Lane replied that open space requirements are set forth in the zoning by-law, and that cost of the units are set by markets.

Possible lack of architectural control was raised. "There is a good deal of persuasion through the market," Lane said. "If it's not pretty it won't sell."

Planning Board Chairman Otto E. Schaefer has addressed himself to that point by saying that the board didn't want to "arbitrate what's good architecture and what is not. We are running the risk some people may not like the way they design these things."

The planning Board spent most of its meeting session Monday night studying the language of the covenant.

Board member Joseph Geary asked if the agreement contains safeguards regarding the plowing of the streets. K&B says the condominium association will be responsible for that duty. But what guarantee does the town have if in the future the association decides to have the town plow? he asked.

Schaefer replied that such an act would open the way for the assessments on the housing units to be increased and, in fact, for the entire area, streets and recreational facilities, could then possibly be used by the public, he indicated.

The selectmen's 2-1 recommendation against town meeting approval will be subject to reconsideration tonight, the board indicated.

Voting in favor of the proposal was Vito Giarrizzo, against, John Sullivan and Lawrence T. Smith. Arthur Dunbar, chairman, and William Chapman, wouldn't take a position. They said they would wait until after the discussion tonight before deciding how to vote. They both said they wanted more information.

Giarrizzo said he favored the proposal because of the need to broaden the tax base and "I'm satisfied there is sufficient protection for the town. There is nothing objectionable in the plan."

Selectman Smith said he opposes because K&B hasn't demonstrated that there is such a need for this type of multiple housing to justify changing the character of a single-family neighborhood.

"With respect to developers coming into a community and buying up single residential land and asking the town to appreciate the land by rezoning it for multiple dwellings I view very carefully ."

The town meeting is scheduled to act on the following other articles:

Appropriations for History Committee, repair of Mill Pond dam, clerical assistance for Planning Board-Engineering Dept., police lieutenant to attend FBI academy; act on remodelling, rebuilding or abandoning town incinerator; updating building by-law.

Coaches Pick All Star Team

By John F. Parrell

The Middlesex League football coaches selected their all star team at the annual dinner held at Vallee's in Saugus last Friday.

Three Winchester players were chosen for first team berths. Four others received honorable mention.

All three tri-captains were honored. Rudy Fiore received a unanimous vote for first team offensive player. Charlie Deroo made the defensive group, Dave Saliba received honorable mention for the attacking team.

Eliott Miller had the unusual distinction of honorable mention both as an offensive end and as a defensive halfback. Bill Dexter was honored as an offensive guard and Mike Heffernan at the signal callers position.

Names Behind Anti-K&B Mail Revealed

A West Side Hill couple more or less admitted Tuesday afternoon they were the originators of information sent to town meeting members alleging misconduct on the part of Kaufman & Broad officers in Illinois.

The Star Tuesday began receiving reports from town meeting members that their day's mail contained Xerox'd copies of newspaper and magazine articles relating that K&B was fined $50,000 last month.

The newspaper tracked down the holder of the postal meter number stamped on all of the envelopes containing the photocopies mailed to town meeting members.

The meter was in the name of Builders Supply Co. of Medford. Richard Kazanjian of 19 Albamont rd. said he works for the firm.

When asked who was the originator of the material, Kazanjian said: "It's a group that's sending them out." Are you a member? "Maybe."

His wife, Cynthia, said it was an oversight on "our part that we didn't sign them." She said their original intent was to hand the copies out at town meeting tonight.

Mrs. Kazanjian said that Concerned Citizens, a group of West Side residents who have banded together to fight apartments and other multiple dwellings in Winchester, was behind the move.

Asked why they were sent out anonymously, Mrs. Kazanjian said she forgot to sign them. "I'm not a professional." At one point she said her husband paid for the postage. At another point she said he shared the cost of postage with Concerned Citizens.

In a later telephone interview, Richard Kazanjian said he and his wife have been calling town meeting members to tell them they are the originators of the material. "We've not trying to be secretive. We've told the town meeting members we're sorry."

He said anonymous copies were sent to all members. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kazanjian said their purpose in mailing the material was to bring everything about K&B out in the open.

The reaction from town meeting members was mostly indignation. Several contacted by The Star used the word "scurrilous" to describe the anonymous mailing.

Even known opponents of the K&B proposal felt the material was "dirty" and the originators should have identified themselves.

The articles related that K&B was fined in U. S. District Court in Chicago in November after pleading no contest to charges of conspiracy and bribery of former officials of a suburban Chicago town.

The company was accused of paying bribes to officials in return for favorable changes in zoning laws in 1968 and 1969.

A spokesman for K&B told The Star Tuesday about the bribery charge: "K&B was given a pat on the back for cooperating with the government. K&B fired the guy who did it long before he was indicated."

He said the company's attorney will make a statement on the subject at town meeting.

At Installation

Kiwanis President Quill Gives Plaque To Mrs. Horn

Leading the ceremonies, Kiwanis Lt. Gov. James Loftus installed Henry Quill as president of the Winchester Kiwanis Club recently as the club celebrated its 22nd installation of officers.

One of Quill's first duties was to present a commemorative plaque to Mrs. Ellen Horn in memory of the many years of service given the club and the community by her late husband, Gordo Sid Horn.

Loftus presented the Kiwanian of the Year award to Thomas Tello in recognition of his contributions to the club's success during the past year.

Also, Janice Coakley received an award for her work in last year's speech and hearing clinic. MARTHA Loftus, wife of out-going president, was given a bouquet of roses.

Quill announced that the Kiwanis Club purchased 200 tickets to the CYO show which would be distributed to the town's elderly citizens in conjunction with the 1973-74 major emphasis program to enrich the lives of the aging.

Hostesses At Rehab Center

Members of the Volunteers Association of the New England Rehabilitation Center, Woburn, will hostess at the all-New England open house and tea on Dec. 13 at the Rehabilitation Center for several hundred officials and administrators of long-term health-care facilities of New England.

Heading the hostesses will be Mrs. Walter Maroney of 40 Lake st., president of the volunteers; Mrs. Richard E. Keating of 60 Lake st., vice-president; Mrs. Paul C. Keleher of 117 Church st., treasurer; Mrs. Archibald Dresser of 83 Cambridge st., secretary; and Mrs. Paul Krusell of 49 Westland ave., director of activities.

Wellesley Grads Plan Supper For Undergraduates

An informal Sunday night supper will be the format for an acquaintanceship party for prospective Wellesley College students from Winchester. A long standing Wellesley tradition, the coke and pizza party will be held Sunday from 5 - 7 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Ralph Jope, 7 Dix st.

In addition to Winchester undergraduates currently at Wellesley, there will be three special student guests from the College who will talk about Wellesley's academic, social and extra-curricular life. The informal supper will provide opportunity for prospective students to ask questions of those now at Wellesley.

High School or private school girls in the sophomore through senior year interested in attending, please contact Mrs. Alan Leland, 17 Indian Hill rd. or Mrs. Kenneth Hudson, 18 Oneida rd.

Harwoods To Host Music Club Sunday

On Sunday at 7 p.m. members of the Winchester Music Club will gather at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Rushton Harwood, 30 Ledgewood rd., to participate in the second meeting of the year.

The Harwood home has been the scene of the first Christmas season activity for the club.

The October meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, 15 Herrick st, Presided over by mistress-of-ceremonies, Linda Feldman, the following program of instrumental and piano music was presented:

Ann Fudge: flute, Sonata by C.E. Bach; Pauline Lewin: piano, Valse By Beethoven; Suzanne Farman: violin, Concerto in G by de Beriot with Mrs. Black accompanist; Karin Anderson: piano, Springsong by Grieg; April Vartanian: cello, Sonata by Marcello; Kathy Arnott: piano, Gypsy Dance by Lichner; Chirs Neurath: clarinet, Gigue by Corelli; accompanied by Mrs. Bolster; Cynthia Mayes: piano, Six Kindersienen by Schuiman;

The final number was the performance by Mrs. Doris Thomas' violin ensemble of the Allegro, Minuet and Finale from Leopold Mozart"s entertaining "Toy Symphony."

Yankee Swap Leads List Of Activities For Seniors Party

A Yankee Swap, carol singing , Christmas punch and home made cookies are just a few of the plans for Winchester's first Christmas party for senior citizens on Dec. 19 at the New Lincoln School on Main street

The party, sponsored by the Senior Service Corps for Winchester elders 62 years of age or older, will begin at 1:30 p.m. and will include a short film, probably comedy. Santa Claus will help with the festivities.

All older townspeople are invited to come and bring a wrapped inexpensive gift to swap.

Time For Condominiums

Sooner or later—and probably sooner —the land on West Side Hill owned by the Moss's is going to be developed. The special town meeting which convenes tonight is being asked to rezone the 93 acres to allow construction of 487 condominium units.

A covenant has been prepared between the Planning Board and the proposed developers, Kaufman & Broad, to insure the town gets certain safeguards. The wording of the document is strict. It has been painstakingly worked out to cover any possible loopholes.

Winchester is in desperate need of new housing. The Housing Authority has received more than 500 applications from elderly persons wishing to move into the nearly completed 52 units of elderly housing on Palmer street. True, most of the town's senior citizens couldn't afford the $45,000 estimated cost of a West Side Hill condominium unit. But the number of applications gives an indication of Winchester's housing need.

The town has not done its share in providing new housing in metropolitan Boston. A recent study by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council showed that Winchester ranks in the category of communities in the area having the lowest number of low and middle income units; that is, none.

The Kaufman & Broad proposal is not for construction of low and middle income units. But 487 more housing units in Winchester would significantly ease the townwide scarcity of housing freeing possibly apartments elsewhere in the community for the elderly and young persons—now being forced to move out of Winchester.

When the town meeting begins debate on the proposal opponents will use every conceivable argument, no matter how unrelated, to seek defeat. Most speakers will begin by saying they don't oppose multiple dwelling housing and then quite calmly proceed to tell us why they oppose this particular development.

They will use arguments of access ("difficult"), topography ("marshy"), traffic ("a problem"), sewer and water ("already overburdened"), aesthetics ("uncertain"), and on and on and on and on.

We have heard the arguments before. And we will hear them again. In fact, every time a proposal for multiple dwellings comes up in Winchester so too do the same tired arguments. Other communities hear the same discussions over traffic, taxing the schools, changing traffic patterns as we do in Winchester. Yet they go on to construct needed housing and the new inhabitants appear to live afterwards in harmony with their neighbors.

When you come down to it, few if any persons—developers included—prefer to look at apartment dwellings, no matter how stylish, over trees. Kaufman & Broad seems to have cut the brunt of the aesthetic argument by designing units compatible with the environment, if any man-made structure could ever be said to be compatible with Nature.

The fact is here for everyone to see if we open our eyes: Winchester is not pulling its weight in housing; it is forcing other communities to provide housing for our citizens. People have to live somewhere. And Winchester should certainly provide for the housing needs of its own residents.

The town really has a choice to make over the next week or so: K&B's 487 condominium units now or Moss's single family homes or apartments in the near future.

The land is already single residence zoned and some of the lots could be under construction tomorrow if the Moss's wished. It has been estimated that condominiums will mean a lower tax rate by $3. Single residences would probably mean a tax increase rather than a decrease because of additional services the town would have to provide.

The condominium development would provide for many of its own services. And the largest single service a community provides—schooling—would be minimal under condominiums because each unit would be limited to two bedrooms.

If the K&B proposal fails, Jack Moss has indicated he will develop the land. Initially he would build 176 apartment units under the state's anti-snob zoning statute. He has several ideas in mind for development of the remainder of the land.

He said there would be a total maximum number of units of 240. If he constructs single residences, the cost to the town will be higher in the end.

But money shouldn't be the primary concern in deciding the future of this land. What's best for the people of Winchester is of the most concern. And condominiums meet this concern.

Study Chairman Writes...

$500,000 Estimated As Cost Of Incinerator Rebuilding

The special town meeting which begins tonight will consider solutions to the problems of waste disposal in Winchester.

The following article was prepared by Vartkes K. Karaian, chairman of the Waste Disposal Problems Study Committee. In it, Mr. Karaian reviews the activities of the committee since it began.

Since the formation and establishment of the committee by approval of Article 23 of the 1971 annual town meeting warrant, study of the waste disposal problems within the Town of Winchester has led to the conclusion that such problems are multi-faceted.

The committee maintains that there exist short-term (5-10 years) and long-term solutions to the problems. Investigations of the committee indicate the desirability of a regional concept as a long-term solution to the problem; however, it appears that none of the regional proposals studied to date will materialize and be available to the town or within its immediate reach.

For a short-term solution, if the existing municipal incinerator and the adjoining area are to be continued for use for solid waste disposal, necessary steps must be taken to comply with all health and air quality regulations. In addition, more stringent supervision of the operation and maintenance of the plant and ground must be required.

The committee feels that certain priorities have to be established as crisis situations arise or are anticipated, hopefully solving the problem before the crisis state is reached. The Town of Winchester is faced with such a priority now—that of making our municipal incinerator comply with the federal clean air act and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts's air pollution control regulations for municipal incinerators. This is a condition which the town will have to meet in order to continue operation of our municipal incinerator and still meet minimum standards and regulations in this regard.

To determine the degree of compliance, the town engaged the services of Anderson-Nichols & Co. to conduct stack testing measurements at the incinerator in accordance with all applicable Federal Environmental Protection Agency and Massachusetts Department of Public Health regulations.

This testing was conducted--for $1,500--during Oct. 31 - Nov. 7, 1972. The results of the analysis showed the particulate concentration level as corrected to 1.71 grains per standard cubic foot. This level is considerably above the allowable emission for a municipal incinerator, which is 0.10 g-scf.

At a special town meeting in November of 1972, Article 12 was approved with an appropriation of $15,000 for engineering services to establish abatement procedures or control systems with implementation schedules for compliance.

Conferences and interviews were held with representatives of several consulting engineering firms and other companies relative to proposals for evaluation of methods of improving the emission characteristics of our incinerator to comply with current and anticipated air pollution abatement regulations.

Methods to be considered were repairs, additions or modifications of the existing plant or other appropriate alternatives with respective construction and operating cost estimates. The committee recommended to the Board of Selectmen that Anderson-Nichols be hired. The selectmen accepted this recommendation on Jan. 22, 1973. The cost of such services was $14,200.

The final report of Anderson-Nichols has been reviewed by the Metropolitan Boston Air Pollution Control District of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. They found the proposed abatement procedures and control systems capable of satisfying the requirements of their regulations to achieve emission limitations.

The recommendations of the Anderson-Nichols report propose installation of a scrubber system to reduce particulate emission from the incinerator, in addition to other major improvements to the plant. Total estimated construction costs including engineering fees for this proposal amount to $494,200.

In addition, the expected increase in annual operating costs for the incinerattor amounts to $39,200 a year. Other alternative control systems to the existing incinerator were considered by Anderson-Nichols, in addition to out-of-town hauling and disposal. All of such proposals were estimated to be above the cost for the scrubber system recommended.

The Waste Disposal Problems Study Committee, in its investigations of all the possible alternative solutions to the problem, publicly invited bids for providing refuse disposal services for the Town of Winchester.

These bids were opened and read on Nov. 15. The proposals are currently under consideration. The proposal which merits most consideration is submitted by Resource Systems, Inc., and provides for use of a municipal waste disposal consisting of modular incinerator units owned and operated by the company to handle Winchester's refuse.

The present compliance schedule for the control of emissions from our municipal incinerator, as established by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health in their "order" to the town is as follows:

Sep. 30, 1973, 1973--Submittal of detailed plans and specifications of abatement system to the state for approval.

March 30, 1974--Ordering of equipment for abatement system.

Sep. 30, 1974--Initiate construction or installation of abatement system.

March 30, 1974--Abatement system operational.

June 30, 1974--Achieve full compliance with regulations.

The date of the first phase of our compliance schedule has passed. Furthermore, the Department of Public Health has been notified that the matter of appropriating funds for this activity or alternative method for providing refuse disposal services for the town is to be presented in Article 5 of the special town meeting scheduled to begin tonight.

Article 5 will address itself to the problems of solid waste disposal in Winchester. The town meeting will be asked to consider the appropriation of money for the needed improvements on the existing incinerator plant, or to contract with an outside firm for providing refuse disposal services for a short-term period.

Letter From The Editor

Spinney Was Angry

Christmas is on a Tuesday this year. Town employees, in the interest of "saving energy," appealed this week to the Board of Selectmen to keep Town Hall closed on the Monday before Christmas. That way the hall wouldn't have to be heated just one day in four.

Nothing doing, the selectmen said. It's not in the contract.

Something called the Winchester History Committee met with the selectmen in closed session for at least an hour Monday night. They were discussing big secrets: budgetary quotes, selection of the author to write an updated history of the town and copywriting. Big deal! We can't let the public know about such highly sensitive matters.

Someone commented about this lengthy closed session: "They must be rewriting the history of Winchester."

Over across the hall, meeting in the ladies lounge, was the Recreation Committee. Some sharp words were being exchanged during an executive session. Why does a recreation committee have to have a closed session? Who knows, but they were discussing budgets from the sound of things.

Earier in the night they were discussing the "over-expenditure" (as they put it) of budgets.

Seems director Donald Spinney is getting pretty low on funds for his programs. "If you over expend I will move at the next board meeting that the job of recreation director be posted," Howard R. Goodrow told us he told Spinney.

In government parlance, to post a job means to put it up for grabs. To which Don took some offense. "If I over extend I'll quit," he said angrily, to say the least.

Goodrow and Spinney bounced that back and forth for a while. As I recall, the closest thing to a four-letter word exchanged was a three-letter word: ass.

But it was kind of fun for a while. Winchester's boards and committees are usually so lackadaisical that anything louder than a whisper raises eyebrows.

Anyway, it didn't appear that all was bliss with the Recreation Committee this month.

Last week I commented on the presence of birds on the field the morning after the Thanksgiving Day football game and wondered why they were there.

A reader tells us it's easy to see I never pushed a plow. The birds were after little bugs and things exposed when the football players' cleats churned the earth.

Last week we talked about the Canadian geese which stop off every year at Wedge Pond on their way south for the winter. Two of the birds took a remembrance of Winchester with them on their journey: those plastic things used to hold beer cans together.

Dr. Harry Benson of 409 Main st. supplied the newspaper with pictures of the geese. Sure enough, if you look carefully, you can spot that damned plastic thing hanging from the neck.

Christy McDonald's bakery at 19 Mt. Vernon st., burned out a couple of weeks ago, plans to open as soon as possible.

Mrs. Curtis Ware, wife of the owner, says they hope the landlord begins repairs this week. Walls have to be repaired before the shop can reopen. Mrs. Ware says Christmas time sure is a bad time to be closed.

Reports received from indignant residents about a town truck grinding through town with snow chains on the rear wheels.

Bob O'Brien, head of the Highway Department, says the truck is being used at the town forest over near the Medford line and it's muddy and slippery there.

"I know it looks kind of foolish," O'Brien said, "but there's no way we can get in and out of that area" (without the chains).

Information about public transportation in last week's Star brought a good deal of response. Many of our readers stopped into the office to pick up the bus schedules the MBTA provided.

They are still available, along with train schedules, if anyone would like copies. Just come into 5 Church st.

Most people bemoan the lack of an east-west bus. There used to be one that began in Arlington Center, came through Winchester Center, then went along to Stoneham and Wakefield.

Martin P. McKeon of the MBTA tells us the line was dropped because it was losing so much money. It ran for 12 hours a day and the average take was $12 a day, for a yearly loss of $25,000 minimum.

If gas rationing goes into effect, he says, the MBTA will add routes if it is assured a continuous supply of gasoline. He says there isn't much hope the Arlington-Winchester bus line will ever be revived. Unless there is tremendous sentiment to get it going again.

Which doesn't seem likely unless there is rationing. McKeon says those who wish to see the line revived should write to him at the MBTA office, 45 High st., Boston 02110.

Town meeting member Arthur Hewis caught the Planning Board with its notice down last week. He heard the board was planning on meeting Saturday morning, checked the Town Hall notice board for the required 24-hour notification but saw none.

As a result, the meeting was unofficial; no votes could be taken. Jake Ciarcia of the Engineering Department who works closely with the Planning Board tells us that he had intended to post the notice but that Hewis earlier had dropped in to see him and delayed him so long he forgot about it. "It was right there on top of my desk."

The Star has a number of books containing advertisement art work. The newspaper no longer has any use for these books heavy with illustrations of every thought-of subject, from dancing girls to heralds, musicians and politicians, plus everyday objects like cars, buses, houses. Schools may find them useful in some way. Teachers who would like one of the books may come into The Star office at 5 Church st.

"SHARE YOUR CAR." In the interest of conserving gasoline and following the popular idea of sharing one's car with his neighbor, a Star subscriber has suggested that we open a 'share your car' column.

"If you are driving — no matter where — and have extra seats available for your neighbors, you may publish the fact in this column. There will be no charge." — from Winchester Star, Sept. 18, 1942.

Maybe that's not a bad idea 31 years later. If we sense any interest in such a column maybe we'll start one.

The column went on to list such items as: "Motorist wishes to team up with two or three riders to G. E. in Lynn. 11 to 7 shift. Tel. Win. 1836 R."

"Three seats, Little Building, Tuesday and Thursday at 9 a.m. Five seats, Burlington Airport Friday 8 p.m., Sunday at 9 a.m. Win. 0640."

Some friends and I took a little ride the other morning through Winchester looking for illuminated signs. We found the following signs lighted up (Friday, 2 a.m.):

Parkview apartments, Swanton and Main sts.; Centre Trucking, 6 Hill st.; Coiffure DeRoma, Swanton and Main sts.; Winchester Car Wash, Main st.; Winchester Trust Co., Main st. and Skillings rd.; Delia Alonso Photographer, 576 Main st.;

Wheaton Texaco, 279 Cambridge st.; Color Tile, at Giant Store, Woburn Plaza; Winchester Lodge of Elks, 375 Cambridge st.; Brigham's, 530 Main st.; First Baptist Church (sign and steeple), Washington and Mt. Vernon sts.; Cumberland Farms, 284 Washington st.; Jim's Coffee Shop, 286 Washington st.; Coronis Construction Co., 29 Vine st.

In addition, we discovered the parking lot at the office building on Dix street brightly illuminated and the high school ablaze with lights. *

From Business Week, Nov. 3: "HOUSING SCANDAL' Home-builder Kaufman & Broad, Inc., suffered another setback in the Chicago suburbs. The company was indicted for using interstate facilities, telephones, the mail, banks and an airline to bribe officials in the village of Haufman Estates.

"The charges allege that $100,000 was funneled through K&B's local attorney to get a 410-acre site rezoned. K&B denies any intention to bribe but is expected to plea guilty or nolo contendere because it will be cheaper than fighting the case. The indictments follow the recent conviction of three K&B officials for bribing Federal Housing Administration employees to give approval for housing projects."

Letters To The Editor

Waterfield Fire

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
Part III of the Waterfield Story

It appears that Robert Joyce may have been correct in his story of the victory dance and fire at the former Waterfield Building (although his presentation was misleading).

I have been informed that there was indeed a fire at the Waterfield Hall in the early forties—probably sabotage by the enemy of World War II. The building was repaired by Red Osborne, according to Wes Swanson (the former lumber dealer). So it seems Freddie McCormack was indeed in search of a new hall some 30 years ago.

Let's have some more articles like the dance story. With no gasoline, fuel oil or electricity we can sit by the fireplace and remember the good old days—before Nixon.

Bill Ryerson

EDITOR OF STAR:

Waterfield Hall never got so much publicity as it is getting now. Having interviewed Fred McCormack a few weeks ago about the victory dance, I didn't really bother to check out every detail of what he said. But I'm sure Fred is not going senile when he says that during the early 1940s a fire at Waterfield Hall caused the victory dance that year to be held at the Town Hall.

Last week Mr. Ryerson (who has a few years on me) stated that Waterfield did not burn in 1940, but in fact burned in 1961. I'm glad to say that both Mr. Ryerson and Fred MCormack (and myself) are right. I checked the back issues of The Star this week at the library and found that in 1961 a two-alarm fire did completely gut the building. I could not find information regarding the fire during the 1940s.

I'm sure there must be some oldtimers in town (older than Ryerson that is) who could fill us in on the missing details of the Waterfield fire during the 1940's.

Robert P. Joyce
881 Main st.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Star thanks the many persons who have written, telephoned and spoken to us about the Waterfield fire. Let's hope this week's communication finally puts the fire out.

Will Winchester Be Wiser Than Others?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

At the public hearing on Nov. 27 Kaufman & Broad stated their views on why Winchester should have 487 condominiums.

I feel that their presentation was ill prepared, evasive and irresponsible to the problems which could occur with this development. Specifically:

1. Access roads for purposes of public safety were still unsolved.
2. The problems of water and sewerage were not responsibly addressed.
3. Temptation to surrepticiously use rooms designed as dens as full fledged bedrooms, thereby drastically increasing predicted population density.
4. No apparent detailed thought was given to where the children would be schooled or how they would be transported.

Now the question remains: can the town of Winchester absorb the problems of a project of this magnitude? This time, I hope Winchester will be wiser than their neighbors in Woburn and Arlington by using foresight instead of hindsight.

TMs, Cast Vote Without Doubt

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On Thursday, Dec. 8, 1973, at the high school auditorium, the town meeting members will be asked to cast their vote for or against a proposal submitted by Kaufman & Broad developers for a huge project of condominiums on the Moss property.

The importance of this hearing cannot be emphasized enough. Its effects are so long range and final that all concerned Winchester citizens should be there to ask questions and listen to issues that will be raised by other concerned citizens.

May I add a personal note to all town meeting members?

The size of this proposal is a huge one. The questions are many. I realize all too well your dilemma with respect to priorities in this instance. If not this project, then what? The alternative seems in retrospect an impossible one. But remember you will be voting on the Kaufman & Broad project. I would suggest you judge this porposal on its merits alone.

A vote for the K & B project should be submitted only if after careful deliberation you have no doubt, whatsoever, about the long range affect of your affirmative vote.

If, however, you have doubts, if all your questions have not been answered to your satisfaction, if you are just not sure, then either vote against the project or abstain from voting.

You are asked to be judge and jury in this instance and your vote should be cast without a shadow of a doubt.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The town meeting can change the zoning on the 93-acre Moss site to allow the building in a three to five-year period of 487 multi-unit dwellings (43 percent of the entire west side presently); or it can maintain the present zoning and gradually absorb over many, many years approximately 165 single homes (less than 15 percent of the entire west side presently), with the non-developed land acting, in effect, as "open spaces" in the interim.

There has gradually crept into our thinking that the multi-unit dwellings must be placed on the Moss property because it is not ideal for single homes. Certainly town meeting members must recognize that the owner of the property, a businessman with other large parcels of land, was aware of the topography and this was reflected in the original purchase price.

There has also crept into our thinking that people who oppose multiple dwelling units must somehow feel a measure of guilt; when, in fact, social planners tell us that the most intelligent, far sighted and socially responsible action the town could take would be to attain this land for open spaces and future town use. The development of the Moss property should not be considered of interest only to the immediate neighborhood, for any further aggravation of the congestion problem of Cambridge street will reflect widely by percolation of traffic through all of its side streets.

Progressive urbanization with its harmful sequelae has become a nationally recognized problem. We must resist the notion that single large parcels of land exist to be maximally developed, irregardless of specific and substantiated town needs.

If we need multi-unit dwellings in Winchester, do we need 93 acres worth all in one place? Winchester presently is a mature community and unless the concept of quality of life has become another hollow expression, increased density, unsubstantiated by need, should be resisted anywhere in town.

Lower Thermostats

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

While other towns cut back on unnecessary services and lower thermostats, I find it difficult to understand how the town in all conscience can continue to allow the Winchester Library open five evenings a week and propose to open on Sunday afternoons.

I very well realize the need of the library to the students as well as many adults who enjoy the facilities. I have however personally been at the library on week night evenings when the staff outnumbers the patrons. Would it not be more logical to have the library open two nights a week during this time of crisis? It would be an effort for many of us, but this is becoming a time of efforts.

Also, is it not time to lower the thermostat in the Town Hall and in many of the schools? I find it a very unhealthy situation for my child to leave a home of 68 degrees to spend the afternoon in a school of 75 to 80 degrees.

This is a time when we must ask ourselves, "Where are our priorities?" Instead of talking of closing the schools for a period or shortening the school day or week, let's lower all town buildings to 68 degrees NOW!

Moving That Pole

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In the Nov. 1 issue of The Winchester Star there is on page three a news item entitled "Whitten, Selectmen Crash Head On-Who Will Move Edison Pole?" At a hearing before the Board of Selectmen, George D. Whitten refuses to pay for having the Boston Edison Co. move a pole in order to facilitate the moving of a house from Holten street to Baldwin street.

On the morning in question, I was at the scene for half an hour when there was a discussion between George D. Whitten and four Edison officials, of whom two were wearing white hard hats and dressed in business suits.

In the course of their discussion, I distinctly heard George D. Whitten give the order to the Edison officials to "move the pole," after which he talked with four other men on Holten street. There is nothing wrong with my hearing. George gave the order and he should pay the bill.

On the scene were Selectmen John Sullivan, Vito Giarrizzo, Town Counsel Randall, executive secretary Donnelly and a full compliment of the Engineering Department.

John Sullivan and Vito Giarrizzo, perfect gentlemen, were conversing with the unhappy neighbors and not at any time did they raise their voices, as did others. When George blows a fuse you can hear him before you see him.

I understand that a $5,000 bond was posted with the Board of Selectmen by George D. Whitten to cover the damages, etc., but I hope that the selectmen will hold the bond until the bill is paid by Mr. Whitten and until all parties are satisfied.

If a public hearing had been held before the issuance of the permit to move the house a lot of grief would have been avoided.

Vincent G. Carroll
207 Highland ave.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Executive secretary Edward Donnelly reports that the firm hired by Whitten to move the house, Porter & Desmond, posted a $5,000 bond which remains in effect until April. The bond expires then if there is no claim against it. "We have received no claim from any of the residents in the area," sayd Donnelly. A claim would have to be filed with the Board of Selectmen.

The Star asked Mr. Whitten if Mr. Carroll's report that he ordered the pole moved was correct. Whitten emphatically denied he ever ordered the pole moved. He said he didn't know who did.

The Man Who Came To Dinner

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

"T'was the night before Christmas and all through the house not a creature was stirring not even a mouse. But the Unitarian Players were stirring and they brought down the house. The players were dressed in costumes galore. They talked and they pranced and made speeches we adored.

What a wonderful evening, what a glorious sight to sit in the audience to our delight. We laughed and we clapped, we sat enthralled—until it was over, then adieu to one and all."

Thus ended a memorable evening made possible by the very talented Unitarian Players who performed the play "The Man Who Came To Dinner" last Friday and Saturday nights and again this Friday night, Dec. 7 and Saturday night, Dec. 8, at the Unitarian Church here in Winchester. Winchesterites, see it and enjoy it.

President Innocent Until Found Guilty

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

With reference to my letter to The Star of Nov. 22, in which my wife and I both "stood up to be counted" as among those who voted for, and still support, Richard M. Nixon as President of the United States, I must confess to having been a bit disappointed at the reaction, or lack of reaction, to that letter.

No one so far has been willing to go on record as supporting our position, at least not publicly in the letters column of The Star. Apparently we are alone in being so consistent, while that very consistency is being held up to ridicule as evidence of our lack of "principle."

The one gentleman who did take the time to respond was, apparently from his letter, not a member of that "silent majority" to whom my letter was pimarily addressed.

How many, if any, did write at my suggestion I have of course no way of knowing. I tried to promote a few letters from the local area to add to the thin trickle of support now reaching the President in Washington to counteract in a small way the shrill "hit him, kick him, kill him" frenzy currently inspired by certain highly organized and highly articulate groups and by the media who would like nothing better than to discredit and destory the President whom we, the voters, chose, and to substitute a puppet of their own choosing in his place.

The big labor unions, the media whose power the administration has criticized, and the huge state and federal bureaucracies which owe their jobs to the Democratic Party for the most part are among those clamoring for his removal.

Naturally, they want a President who will do what they want done, not one who will ever defy them and take measures which he feels are best for the country as a whole.

We did not vote for Mr. Nixon because olf his good looks, his personal charm, or his photogenic charisma. He did not "snow" us with grandious promises for a "Great Society" or an "End to Poverty" like some of his predecessors.

There are many things about him that we do not like; but had we wanted a genuine "Mr. Clean" we could have chosen at random from among his Democratic opponents. However, we felt that "cleanliness" was not enough — we were not hiring a pastor for a church — and we feared that the good men the Democratic Party offered would turn out to be just too ineffectual for the dirty job of cleaning up the mess that faced the country at that time — a mess not of his own making if anyone can remember back that far.

We chose Mr. Nixon because we felt that he alone of all the candidates was pragmatic enough to ber able to cope with the extremely pragmatic opponents that he would encounter in international affairs; and, also, because we felt that he alone possessed the ability and the guts necessary to cope with the many pressing domestic problems that were before the country at that time.

Now I am well aware of all the charges and countercharges that were so kindly called to my attention by the gentleman who responded to my letter, but we are not perfectionists and, like Lincoln, are willing to overlook a few imperfections, transgressions, or other peccadillos on the part of this, or any other administration if it will take some of the pressure off of them so that they can get on with the more important things remaining before them ...

President Lincoln gladly overlooked Grant's drinking problem so long as he got on with the war. Grant drank and fought, and drank and fought, and drank and won, after the nation had endured over four long years of stumbling, fumbling and bumbling by a host of other more personable and more sober generals ...

So, to make my position perfectly clear, I stand with Mr. Aiken, the venerable senator from Vermont, who has so succinctly charged the Congress to "either impeach the President, or get off his back." ... He is still my President and entitled to my support and I for one do not intend to be cowed or silenced by the self-serving barrages fired by the various groups who are behind this scurrilous vendetta ...

The law in this country, as I understand it, is to the effect that a man is innocent until he is tried and found guilty. Thre President, took, is entitled to that presumption.

That being the case, let him who is without sin cast the first missile, and let's get on with the stoning ...

Bringing In The Sheets

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The people and the churches of Winchester are to be commended for the wonderful response to the request for sheets to be given to the residents of Chelsea who were driven from their homes by the fire.

Despite the pouring rain on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 25, there was a real outpouring of concern for others. Hundreds of sheets were donated during the afternoon.

They have all been turned over to Major William A. Hulteen Sr., commanding officer of the Chelsea unit which is coordinating assistance to the victims of the fire.

Although Mr John Foley of 60 Salisbury st., whose parents had been victims of the first Chelsea fire, came with his donation just as the church bells began to ring, others did comment that the ringing of the bells reminded them it was time to bring in their sheets.

Our thanks to The Winchester Star, the Ecumenical Association and the churches of Winchester as well as to the people who donated so generously to make the drive a success.

Council On Aging Offices Move To New Lincoln School

Dr. Richard Norberg, chairman of the Winchester Council on Aging, reports the council's office has been moved to its permanent location in the balcony area of the new Lincoln School on Main street.

The new office which will also serve as headquarters for meetings of the Senior Service Corps, with Charles Yorke as president, are located just above the entrance of the school auditorium and may be reached by entering the auditorium door and going up one flight.

Mrs. Dolly Bryant, coordinator for the council, says senior citizens and other interested townspeople may drop in during office hours, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Those wishing to telephone may call the senior service line, which has also been moved to the new location, Monday through Friday, between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. The service line phone number remains the same, 729-2111.

High Mass

Miss Van Dyke Is Bride Of Mr. Hiotas

Teresa Catherine Van Dyke and Charles James Hiotas were married Nov. 10 at St. Mary's Church. The ceremony, a high mass, was performed at noon by Rev. Bernard M. Hoy. A reception followed at the Winchester Country Club.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Van Dyke of 162 Forest st. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. James Stanley Hiotas of Newport, R.I., and the late Mr. Hiotas.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an empire styled gown of antique ivory silk-faced peau featuring re-embroidered Alencon lace, a portrait neckline, pearl-beaded bodice and Victorian sleeves. Her lace appliqued train was cathedral length, and she wore a Dior veil and carried white and pink roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. Marylyn Mason of Washington, D.C., was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a formal royal blue crepe dress and carried pale pink and white roses, white and orchid carnations and baby's breath.

Dressed similarly were bridesmaids Nancy J. Keegan of Boston and Lyta L. Monello at Melrose.

William Smith of Warwick, R.I. was best man. Ushers were William Flynn of Newport, R.I. and Aron Cohen of New York.

After a wedding trip to Canada, the couple is living in Manchester, N.H.

The bride attended Winchester public schools and Vernon Junior College. She is a stewardess for United Air Lines.

Her husband attended the Newport, R.I. schools and the University of Rhode Island. He is employed by the A. B. Dick Co., Manchester, N.H. He is a member of Signma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity.

Mrs. Charles J. Hiotas

PLAYERS - Jim Lynch, left, as Sheridan Whiteside, Karen Detore as Maggie, and Paul Berbarian as Prof. Metz., rehearse for the final performances of "The Man Who Came To Dinner." Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. Dec. 1, 7 and 8 at the Unitarian Church.

A Review

'Man Who Came To Dinner'

By L. A. Howland

Impressions of the classic "The Man Who Came to Dinner" by Hart & Kaufman, as presented by the Unitarian Players of Winchester, are based on their excellent second performance, that of Dec. 1. Other performances are scheduled for Dec. 7 and 8.

The central figure, played effectively by Jim Lynch in the Wolcott and Wooley tradition, but without evident imitation, is Sheridan Whiteside, called Sherry by his intimate friends or associates. An egocentric critical genius of the literary and theatrical world, Sherry might be thought of as the sun, surrounded by planets and smaller satellites, or as an idol, partly by self-appointment, partly by the adoration and admiration of his famous acquaintances.

Karen Detere, as the loyal and efficient secretary, Maggie, was impressive and strong. She held up her end of sophisticated banter with Sherry. At the same time, poignant moments, caused by her falling in love, came through convincingly. Both Maggie, as his indispensable aide, and Sherry brought out the ties of affection between them.

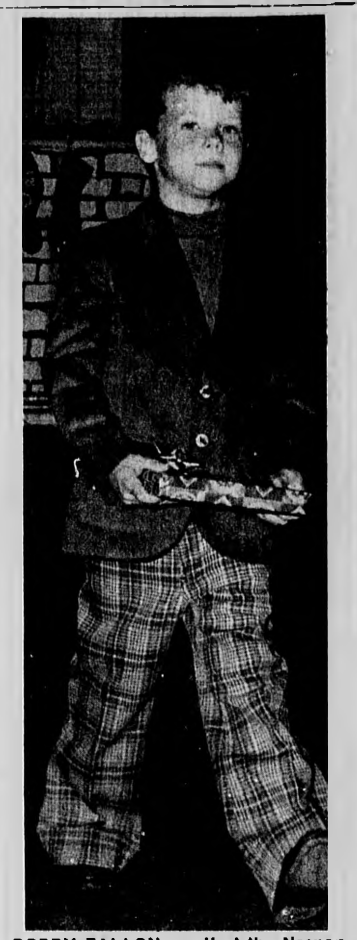

Ken Astill, in the role of the internationally renowned super-actor, Beverly Carlton, was outstanding. One wishes that he had had more to say and a much longer presence on the stage.

The part of the world famous actress, Lorraine Sheldon, was acted to perfection by Ann Foskett. Jaunty, glamorous, very chic and smartly attired, Mrs. Foskett consistently maintained the image of the typical early Hollywood or Broadway star. Given the extrovert and confident personality of the woman, the temptation to over-act was great. Mrs. Foskett avoided this successfully. Most effective were her timing and intonations during the phone call from London, in a conversation with Beverly Carlton in the guise of Lord Bottomley. Hers was a sparkling performance in important sections of the play.

Elizabeth Hoxie in the part of Harriet Stanley was superb. She portrayed the wraith-like quality, the "something not quite of this world", which was called for by the authors. Too bad, she didn't have more to do.

The nurse, played by Charlotte Hill, and the cook, by Doris Bryant, supported the principals. Banjo, the Groucho Marx type, acted by Stan Perry, was funny, Jack Guilderson was the harried father of the Stanley family who finds his living room and dining room taken over by a wounded dictatorial monster of sorts.

Credit should go to Roger Foskett and Art Stratis for an attractive set. On a rather small stage, it must have been a feat to build a room with stairs and the requisite exits without giving the impression of smallness. Work of a large production and technical staff in a complex and an ambitious undertaking.

BOBBY FALLON, pupil at the Noonan School, acted as a model in the Noonan Parents' Association recent fall fashion show.

The Lone Ranger, Tonto On Film To Help HS Seniors

"The Lone Ranger and the Lost City of Gold," a full-length color film featuring the Lone Ranger and his companion Tonto, will be shown at Winchester High School on Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

Also shown will be Laurel and Hardy in the "Fixer Uppers."

Proceeds will go to the senior class.

Noonan Has Fashion Show

The Noonan Parents' Association presented a fall fashion show recently featuring Mrs. Rene Pione (Nona Smith), former Miss Massachusetts contestant in the Miss America Pageant, as commentator. Mrs. Pione is also a former model, commentator and Channel 7 weather girl.

Fashions for the show were from Sears of Burlington and included school clothes playwear, sportswear, outerwear, sleepwear and an array of holidy styles. Models for the evening were mothers, children and teachers of Noonan School. Barbara Liberman provided piano accompaniment.

MRS. BARBARA HADDAD represented parents at the Noonan School. She was a model in the Noonan Parents' Association fall fashion show.

WHS Students Part of VD Campaign

Six Winchester High School students attended the Operation Venus-VD Awareness Campaign on Nov. 16, inaugurated by the Massachusetts Community Service Corps and the Massachusetts Jaycees. They are Phyllis Lee, Holly James, Joseph Quinn, Michael Meagher, Ursula Freddura and Heidi Blanch.

Operation Venus was conceived to help those who have venereal disease and alert those who don't know the dangers. A toll-free number (800-272-2577) has been established as a hotline for information on symptoms and signs of venereal disease.

20 Volunteer In MS Campaign

Twenty Winchester residents are acting as volunteers for the 1973 Multiple Sclerosis residential campaign.

William D. Sullivan, president of the Winchester National Bank,is serving as area treasurer.

Area captains who are marching this week are Mrs. James Beck, Mrs. James Bowers, Mrs. Richard Clarke, Mrs. Roy Darwin Jr., Mrs. D. E. Estabrook, Mrs. Alice Gaffney, Edwin P. Hall, Mrs. George Havenstein, Mrs. Robert Cooper and Mrs. Deran Hintlian.

Also, Mrs. Herbert Howell, Mrs. John Johnston Jr., Mrs. Richard Kazanjian, Mrs. Albert Leach, Mrs. Arthur Levin, Mrs. James Potter, Mrs. Robert Warner, Mrs. Woodford Wilcox and Mrs. Norman Williams.

The campaign is to mobilize support for increased effort to bring multiple sclerosis under control through services to MS patients in the area and through research to identify the cause and find a means of preventing the disease.

Birth

Mr. and Mrs. R. Bruce Wilson (Albiani) of Arlington are parents of their second child, first daughter, Elizabeth Mary, born Nov. 13 at Winchester Hospital. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard S. Wilson of South Yarmouth and Mr. and Mrs. Antonio F. Albiani of 8 Girard rd.

Jaycee-ette Schedule

The Winchester Jaycee-ettes November general meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Price with guest speaker Mrs. Alden Eames, who displayed her many different handmade crafts.

The annual winter sport equipment sale was a great success again this year. The sport equipment that was donated but not sold has been given to the Fernald School.

The Jaycee-ettes are getting ready their Christmas basket and gifts for a needy family in Winchester.

The next general meeting will be held Dec. 19 at 8 p.m. at the home of the president, Mrs. Richard McMorrow. The public is welcome.

Junior League Conducts Survey

By Marilyn M. Buckey

This summer, members of the Junior League of Boston, Inc, including Mrs. Charles A. Porter of Winchester, conducted a survey on criminal justice system of Suffolk County.

The survey results plus those conducted by other junior leagues will be the basis for a training institute on crime and delinquency called "Impact." Representatives from 223 junior leagues in the United States, Canada, and Mexico are participating in the four-day seminar currently being held in Houston, Tex.

The purpose of Impact is to educate, encourage and enable junior leagues to work to effect changes in criminal justice system through programs in their communities.

The U.S. Justice Department's law enforcement assistance administration has recently provided the Association of Junior Leagues with a grant in excess of $200,000 to fund the seminar and to assist the leagues' work in community programs dealing with courts, corrections and law enforcement. Technical assistance is being provided by the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

The Boston League, one of 61 leagues involved in programs of this nature, is working with the Massachusetts Department of Youth Services and the Andros program in the field of juvenile corrections.

The summer survey, in preparation for the institute, included discussions with the Boston Police Department, the M.D.C., and the Massachusetts Department of Youth Services; visits to correction homes; attendance at court sessions dealing with felonies and misdemeanors; and on-the-street interviews to determine citizen reaction to the local law enforcement agencies, courts and correction homes.

Police Activity

Cars, Gas, Stone Lions Among Catch Of Thieves

Cars—stolen, found and afire—were on the Winchester police journal during the past few days.

A Cadillac was destroyed by fire on Old Village drive Sunday morning at 1:26. Investigation revealed the car was stolen from a Medford resident the night before.

Later in the morning a Volkswagen was stolen from the driveway of Carl L. Fuller Jr., 23 Westland ave.

At 10:10 a.m. a stolen car, belonging to a Woburn resident, was found at the Parkview Apartments.

The radiator of a car belonging to Janet Greene of 4 Winchester ter. was stolen while the car was parked on Aberjona drive. The same afternoon, Elizabeth Cirurso of 17 Florence st. reported a radio stolen from her car at the railroad station.

Gas was reported siphoned from a 1974 Vega at 180 Dothan st. at 11:45 a.m. Saturday.

Msgr. Joseph Fitzgibbons of 30 Wedgemere ave. reported a pair of stone lions stolen from in front of his home. In their place were beer cans.

Suzanne Cafarella, 21, of 22 Willowdale rd., was taken to Winchester Hospital at 3:30 p.m. Sunday for an injury to her finger. The victim was reported to have been trying to repair her car.

Other action on Saturday and Sunday included a fire on the railroad tracks across from the Dairy Barn; a report of a broken window on a display case at Mullins Clothing, 846 Main st.; a disturbance at 16 Thornberry rd., apparently caused from a congregation of alcoholic drinkers; and a beer bottle thrown through a picture window at 8 Socrates way.

Nov. 27

Last Tuesday night two youths were arrested for larceny of a motor vehicle and charged. In addition, with possession of burglary tools. Police said both were 19. One was from Somerville; the other from Tewksbury.

They were arraigned Wednesday and their cases continued. Police stopped them at 10 p.m. after a resident reported his car was stolen from the Town Hall parking lot and was heading up Washington st.

There was a break reported that night at Winchester News Co., 7 Thompson st. A panel on a door was broken through.

Police said $38, all in pennies, was stolen.

There was a break that night at 76 North Border rd., the Hardin house, where a television set and phonograph were missing. Entry was by kicking in a cellar door.

Wednesday

There were no reported injuries last Wednesday in an accident at Main st. and Skillings rd. involving cars driven by William R. Giammatteo, 19, of 189 Cross st. and Robert McFadden, 29, of Malden.

Also on Wednesday, at 2:30 p.m., a car traveling west on Forest st. making a left onto Highland ave. went out of control, according to the police report, struck two signs at the island in the intersection and continued 40 feet where it crashed into a police car.

Uninjured was the driver, Barbara Gardella, 252 Highland ave. The roads were wet from rain.

Thursday

An accident at 202 Cross st. at 12:35 p.m. resulted in a Woburn man being taken to Winchester Hospital by ambulance for treatment of a pain in the knee. James O'Rourke was released.

Police said the car hit a hydrant and a car. Charges against the driver are pending.

There was a report of a break at St. Mary's School, where games and toys were taken. Entrance was through a rear window.

Also last week, a resident of 8 Alden ln. reported someone stole several gallons of gasoline from a car in the driveway; two windows were broken by rocks at Ambrose School on High st.; power tools were reported stolen from a house under remodelling at 106 Ridge st.; attempt was made to enter 197 Forest st.

Red Cross Relaxes Donor Requirements

The minimum age for giving blood has been lowered by one year, explained O'Connor. Previously, a potential donor had to be 18 years of age to be accepted. Now with 17 years as a minimum (with written parental consent) most high school seniors and some juniors are eligible.

The second change relates to malaria regulations. Up to now anyone who had a background of malaria was permanently disqualified. Now donors are accepted if three years have elapsed "without additional episode," according to the announcement, and travelers from malarious areas are accepted six months after returning to this country.

According to Dr. Alan Kliman, Massachusetts Red Cross blood program medical director, "The change in the old regulations stating that any donor who has had malaria is permanently disqualified was imminent because extensive research has indicated that malarial infection is generally burned out after three years."

This new regulation should bring in many veterans from World War II, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War. It is also of benefit to many foreign travelers.

Winchester's December bloodmobile visit will be held Dec. 27 from 12 to 4:45 at the Chapter House on Church street. A potential donor should call the Chapter House for an appointment which is necessary for this particular smaller-than-usual bloodmobile visit.

Hospital Tests

Congressman Torbert H. Macdonald (D.-Mass.) has entered the Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md. for a checkup and series of tests. His doctors expect the tests to last several days and said that the Congressman will return to his legislative duties within a week.

★ Energy

Edward Noonan of 43 Holland st., retired, planned to drive to Florida this winter but are putting off their trip. "We'd hate to be caught halfway between here and Florida," Mrs. Noonan says.

A couple more energy saving measures are offered by Mrs. Willard Bundy of 58 Winford way who has stopped using her dryer, and Mrs. M. Scully; who is cooking fewer snacks.

Mrs. William L. Everett of 57 Winford way suggests that merchants "close earlier," feeling it unnecessary to keep stores open till late hours.

Drama Workshops

The final session of the fall series of drama workshops directed by Paulett Taggart will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Symmes Room of the Winchester Unitarian Church.

According to Ms. Taggart the session will give families, teachers and theater groups an opportunity to observe the workshop in action, consider improvisation as a learning tool and valuable rehearsal technique.

Beginning Jan. 8-9, Ms. Taggart will begin a new series to recreate the workshop's timely theater-piece on the energy crisis for spring performances. Young people aged 9-14 may join this journey to "Sun-Where."

Building Permits

The Winchester Building Department issued four permits for the week ending Nov. 30 as follows:

Alterations: 11 Pine st., reshingling; 38 Harvard st., 422 Main st., and 3 Wedgepond rd.

Dog Leash Law

Dogs must be kept on leashes in Winchester from 7 in the morning to 7 at night. Owners of pets in violation are fined.

Letters To The Editor

Traffic Problems

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Some people think that when a town gets its first traffic light that it ceases to be "country" and really becomes a sophisticated place to live. If this is the case, then our new federally funded traffic light systems have launched Winchester into a new dimension of sophistication.

The new combination of traffic lights, pedestrian control lights, islands and middle-of-the-street parking lots is something to behold. You're not going to believe that we were suckered into a traffic control package that utilizes 168 lights.

The intersection at Mystic Valley parkway, Highland avenue and Mount Vernon street represents the biggest "improvement" with a grand total of 50 count'em — 50! Main street and Skillings-Lake comes in second with 47.

Main street and Mystic Valley parkway are "controlled" by 40, and Skillings and Shore road come in last with only 31.

I reckon that a body driving through Winchester via Highland avenue, Mount Vernon street, Skillings road and Main street would use a good part of the day viewing our local sights while waiting at the 'traffic" lights. I don't care what traffic engineers say, lights create traffic problems.

As an example, when the old-fashioned system at Skillings, Mount Vernon and Washington streets is either broken down or set for red and yellow blinkers, there is never a problem with backed up traffic. Things move smoothly in all directions.

Let's see, at 100 watts each, that's 16,800 watts. Well, when we've used up all of our gasoline, we can all walk down and get our kicks watching the "blinking" lights. That, citizens, is sophistication. We have arrived!

James L. Pettee
19 Jefferson rd.

Invitation

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Through you, we, the members of the Senior Citizens' Christmas Party Committee would like to invite all senior citizens to our first annual town Christmas party.

Beginning at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 18, 1973, we will try to bring many of the town's seniors together for some fun, flicks, laughter and song at the new Lincoln School auditorium.

Refreshments will be served and the price of admission is one small inexpensive gift for a game of good old fashioned Yankee swap.

Dr. Noam Chomsky Compelling Speaker

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Tonight at 8, Noam Chomsky will speak at the Winchester Public Library about Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and his foreign policy. He comes at the invitation of the Winchester Peace Committee during a time of world crisis, giving us the opportunity to hear, question and discuss the views of an important scholar in the field of foreign affairs.

Dr. Chomsky is a professor of linguistics at MIT and preeminent in that field. He is, however, better known to us as a political scientist and peace activist. He is a member of the Committee of Concerned Asian Scholars, the American Academy of Arts and Science and the Council of the International Confederation for Disarmament and Peace. He has published extensively and, with Howard Zenn, edited the fifth volume of the "Pentagon Papers." His most recent book is "Affairs of State."

Prof. Chomsky reads several languages and his presentations reflect his familiarity with the foriegn press. This broad sweep of information, together with an acute analytical ability, make Dr. Chomsky a compelling speaker. I hope there will be many people to hear him.

Mary Lawler
161 Highland ave.

Energy Tips

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Running the washer three times a week for one year, using a "hot" wash and "warm" rinse means about 18 gallons of oil for water heating.

Save 18 gallons by using "cold" wash and "cold" rinse with cold water detergents.

A fluorescent tube produces more than three times as much light from the same amount of electricity than does an incandescent light.

The National Bureau of Standards estimates that about 35 percent of residential heating energy is used to warm air entering through leaks such as cracks around windows and doors and fireplace dampers. Check these out and weatherstrip.

Storm doors and windows and insulating glass reduce by about 50 percent the heat losses that occur through a single pane of glass.

The above came from Dr. James J. MacKenzie in the Massachusetts Audubon newsletter, Dec., 1973.

P.S. Our thermostat has been at 61 degrees these past four days. My, it's brisk!

Government Theft

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I do not usually read the local paper. However, this week I happened to take the trouble. Two matters attracted my attention. It seems to me that a simple requirement of freedom is that people be permitted to do what they want with their property. So I wonder why anyone should wish to make all kinds of trouble for those planned apartments on Cambridge street.

The whole question of how it could have been illegal for them merely to build is the height of outrageousness. Are we in favor of personal freedom or aren't we? I note the following item:

"6. Act on amendment to town's building by-law bringing law into line with new zoning by-law; sections deal with height of buildings, garages, signs, swimming pools and construction methods in multiple dwellings for prevention of noise transmission;" 11-29 Star, p.10.

Need I say that it is ridiculous to regulate swimming pools, garages and types of buildings? It would be hardly McCarthyism to call the Board of Selectmen which "approved" this measure practicing a form of socialism.

If the basic ideas of libertarianism on which this country was founded are not even understood or practiced on the local level, I fail to see that there is much hope for this country. What good would it do to insist on enforcing the tenth amendment? Of what use decentralization?

Second was the matter of schools. Surely Winchester can afford to encourage the use of private schools. Not only "afford" -- but make a positive saving in the cost of government. By, for example, providing tax reductions for people who have no children in the local schools. Thus giving people a choice, and not forcing them to pay twice, encouraging diversity, and reducing the influence of government schooling with its current dependance on "Big Brother" in Washington, and various state, and national pressure groups which need have no influence on local education.

I happen to disaprove of the voucher system some conservatives favor because it preserves the role of government as a financial clearing agent--but event that would be better than what we have now.

The present system in education and property is nothing less than government-operated theft--of land, and of minds.

Atomic Energy To Be Discussed At Lynch School

A demonstration lecture on atomic energy and its uses, conducted by Wentworth College of Technology, will be presented at Lynch Junior High School, Dec. 14.

The program, "This Atomic World," is designed to acquaint students with the basic principles of nuclear energy, its sources, and its role in agriculture, industry, medicine and research.

The grant for conducting this lecture-demonstration program among high schools in Eastern Massachusetts was awarded to Wentworth College of Technology by Boston Edison Company.

Robert J. Phillipo will present the assembly program, which explains in student terms the structure of atoms and the operation of nuclear reactors as well as such concepts as radiation, fission, and fusion.

Phillipo has completed extensive training at Oak Ridge Associated Universities in Oak Ridge, Tenn. He holds an associate degree in electrnoic engineering and a BS degree in engineering technology from Wentworth College of Technology.

Specially designed electronic equipment is used during the 40-minute program to demonstrate the sources of radiation, how nuclear energy is harnessed to furnish electric power for cities, and the use of radioisotopes to aid in diagnosis and treatment of diseases and to learn more about life processes.

A blackboard talk or demonstration lecture to science classes, which deals more specifically with the topics of atomic structure, radioactivity, radiation biology, and careers in nuclear science, follows the assembly.

The program is operated in cooperation with Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU) and the United States Atomic Energy Commission. ORAU is a non-profit educational and research corporation of 43 Southern colleges and universities, operating under contract with the Commission and other agencies. One of its major programs is operation of the AEC's nationwide exhibits program.

The program is one of 18 similar units appearing daily at high schools throughout the country. They are part of an extensive traveling exhibit program designed to bring the public a greater understanding of atomic energy and its uses.

Institute On Family Life 'Very Valuable'

By Cathy Fallon

In an autumn filled with dozens of conflicting evening activities and obligations, 200 Winchesterites took advantage of a six-week marriage and family life institute sponsored by the Winchester Interfaith Education Committee held at Winchester High School as part of the adult education program.

The institute "more than lived up to the expectations of the committee," said Sr. Marie Doyle, member of the Interfaith Committee in assessing the impact of the unique course. Two hundred had enrolled the first night, Sr. Doyle said, and "there were a few more at the second and third sessions. This told us we must be meeting the real needs of people, and that the area of family life is of great concern to the people of Winchester."

Merle Jordan, pastoral counselor and head of the Danielson Pastoral Counselling Center at Boston University, conducted a three week series of demonstrations. Participants apparently were deeply affected by these sessions, and nearly all rated them "extremely valuable" or "of some value" on evaluation sheets. "Dr. Jordan's methods of pinpointing critical areas has given food for much throught and discussion in my own family," wrote one participant.

"Please repeat the entire course next year — there is such a need," commented another student at the institute. Major criticisms of the institute were that there was not sufficient time to fully develop each of the seminar topics, and that the seminar sessions on communication, decision-making, grief and loss, and on being the parent of preschoolers, adolescents, or single parents should be offered in separate time slots so that three or four sessions might be attended, instead of only one was the case this year.

Positive responses were received on nearly all of the proposed topics that were suggested for future courses to be arranged by the Winchester Interfaith Education Committee. These include "The Elderly in our Society," "Family Planning," "The Abortion Dilemma," "Ethics in Government," "Prayer in Public Schools," "Alcoholism" and "The Effects of Drugs on Family and Community."

Some topics for future courses were suggested by the students. One was a course on "improving relations with adult siblings"; another wanted to know "how to successfully teach integrity and ethics in the family." Still another sought future courses on "any issues of family life and human relationships. This experience has built a feeling of community."

Participants attended the institute from Stoneham, Dedham, Burlington, Arlington and Woburn as well as Winchester. "I would like to know why something as valuable as this seminar is not available in other towns," wrote one student.

A majority of those who attended the first six-week institute are also planning to attend a four week series in the winter on Values Clarification, scheduled for Jan. 29, Feb. 5, 12 and 26.

This course is being offered to help people learn to make conscious decisions based on values they place on various activities.

Not only will this help people appreciate and understand the values of other persons with different lifestyles, it will also help improve the quality of life by directing an individual toward those activities which are really worth the expenditure of his time, money and energy.

Mentor for this course is Rev. Nicholar Spagholo, director of the Espousal Conference Center in Waltham, a certified counselor and professor at Tufts University.

Houlihan Receives Woburn CC Honors

James E. Houlihan Jr. of Winchester, president of Middlesex Community College, was recently presented the distinguished community service award by the Woburn Chamber of Commerce.

Gov. Francis W. Sargent was principal speaker at the chamber's annual banquet. The award was made by Paul L. Haggerty, president, publisher of the Woburn Daily Times.

The award to Houlihan read, "For his genuine concern for the people of Greater Woburn and the general area as evidenced by his personal attention over the establishment of the Woburn Extension of Middlesex Community College; for his personal involvement to insure quality education for the people of our city and state he is hereby awarded this distinguished community service award from a grateful Woburn Chamber of Commerce."

Middlesex Community College was opened in Sept., 1970, with an enrollment of 570 students in its day division, and with an additional 700 attending the evening and summer divisions.

Currently there are 1,075 students enrolled in the day division, with 2,000 attending classes in the evening and summer divisions.

Youths, Concern Conduct Survey To Determine Needs

Junior and senior high school students with the assistance of members of Concern are conducting a survey to determine if there is a need to establish a hotline or youth center for discussion of drugs, alcohol, sex and values of living by youths of the town.

Coordinating the Concern organization are Mrs. Carolyn Tiffany, high school counselor, and Paul Forgetta, Lynch Junior High counselor.

Concern was established in 1968. Its advisory committee was appointed by the Board of Selectmen with representatives from town agencies and student representatives. Its primary concern was to attack drug abuse through education.

In addition to publishing a booklet on drugs which was distributed to all Winchester residents, Concern was instrumental in establishing drug information courses in the school system.

Concern assisted other towns in setting up drug programs, set up a hotline, and helped many young persons in trouble. According to Forgetta, the success of these efforts was due in great part to the dedication of the student members.

During the past six months, Concern has been evaluating the need for its continued existence, Forgetta says. The development of several factors recently helped to raise the issue of continuance.

First, he notes, the hotline ceased to function last June. An office donated by Winchester Hospital was taken away.

Beginning to question the usefulness and effectiveness of a hotline manned by non-professional student volunteers, Concern recognized the availability of fully professional hotlines in the Boston area which could provide adequate services to residents of Winchester.

The drug and alcohol program of Concern, in conjunction with the School Department, was assessed. It was determined the elementary program involving informational drug kits relied heavily on the effectiveness of a classroom teacher. Recently some of the schools have not requested kits, Forgetta notes.

The junior high school student-to-student program, which includes a film and discussion of drugs and alcohol, involves a single session in eighth grade in the social studies classes. "In its limited scope, in no way does this constitute a drug education program," Forgetta says.

Although a year's work went into an attempt to organize support for a youth center, Concern was unable to achieve this goal.

And, community support and participation has drastically decreased, Forgetta points out. When an appeal went out for adults willing to provide leadership, none came forth. Only then did Mrs. Tiffany and Forgetta, both non-residents, come forth to coordinate the program.

"There are only about a dozen or so" involved in the organization now, he says, noting that "a selectman or town meeting member has never come on a regular basis."

Those who remain in Concern have expressed a willingness to remain together until such time as it becomes clear that youths' needs are being met through other agencies, Forgetta says.

Concern felt at the time of youth center discussions that a vacuum existed for many young people in Winchester, he notes. They believe that because of different life styles, many needs weren't being met through church and Recreation Department programs and that all young people are not interested in athletic programs. Whether this void still exists is still the question, Forgetta says.

This is why the students are taking the survey—to realistically assess the needs of the young people at the present time.

Forgetta says Concern members feel that if a survey uncovers needs, especially related to a youth center, the responsibility will rest solely with the town, whether through the Recreation Department or some other funded agency.

There are some in Concern who feel that the continued existence of Concern may be a hindrance to the establishment of a viable funded town agency as well as to School Department programs such as those for drugs, alcohol and sex education. Without Concern, the town and the School department may be forced to fill the gap that presently exists, Forgetta concludes.

The next Concern program will be held in January and will focus attention on venereal disease.

ATOMS Christmas Party Scheduled

A Christmas party for members of eight ATOMS (Association To Overcome Multiple Sclerosis) groups in the state will be held Dec. 9 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Lexington, from noon to 4 p.m.

Features of the day will be a buffet and a visit from Santa Claus.

Mrs. Maureen Winn of 10 West Chardon rd., member of the Mystic Valley ATOMS in Lexington will answer questions about the party or the organization.

She points out that the Mystic Valley ATOMS will meet for the regular monthly meeting Dec. 13. Dick Delarey, who started the Worcester Wheelers, will give a demonstration of wheel chair square dancing.

MS patients and family members and friends are invited to all ATOMS functions.

Boosters Host Grid Banquet

By John F. Parrell

More than 400 persons gathered at Vallee's in Saugus for the annual banquet honoring the football team, the cheer leaders, and the tumblettes who supported them during the season.

It was a gala evening for the gridders, their parents and friends, with a maximum of time for socializing and enjoying roast beef and a minimum devoted to the formal speaking program.

Thus ended the long season, which began with the trip to camp in Sharon during the last week of August and saw the team post a 5-3-1 record, topped off by the highly satisfying win over Woburn on Thanksgiving by a 21-15 margin.

The Sachem Boosters sponsored the affair as they have similar dinners and trips in previous years. The officers of the organization are: President Gaspare Galuffo, treasurer James Olivier, secretary Robert Gilberti, and banquet chairman Thomas Keating. Co-chairman included: Charles Deroo, David Saliba, Rudolph Fiore and John Nunziato.

Seated at the head table were: Pres. and Mrs. Gaspare Galuffo; superintendent of schools William MacDonald and Mrs. Macdonald; principal and Mrs. Vincent Lorocco; athletic director Henry Knowlton; head coach and Mrs. Manuel Marshall; Arthur Dunbar, chairman, Board of Selectmen, and Mrs. Dunbar; Rev. James Garrity, pastor, and Rev. Bernard Hoy of St. Mary's Church, and Rev. Henry Newton Clay, retired pastor of the Crawford Memorial United Methodist church.

During the evening there was musical entertainment by a student musical group conducted by Frederick Murray. Pres. Galuffo, greeting the players, cheer leaders, tumblettes and their parents and guests, praised the team for its great season and urged support of the year book.

There were a limited number of trophies awarded this year, with a substantial amount to be donated for the yearbook by the Boosters.

Chairman Thomas Keating served as toastmaster and introduced those at the head table. There were brief congratulatory remarks by William MacDonald and Father Garrity.

Bruce House of Reading, representing the New England Memorial Hospital, presented the new trophy donated by the hospital for the Winchester-Woburn game to athletic director Henry Knowlton. It will be held for the following year by the Thanksgiving victors.

The principal speaker was Coach Knowlton, who plans to step down as athletic director this year. He has been with the Sachem teams for 33 years, the first 26 as coach, and the final seven in his current capacity.

His talk was one of reminiscence. At the same time he pointed out the place of football in a sound school program of athletics and physical education. He received a standing ovation upon completion of his remarks.

Your writer then spoke briefly in congratulation of the team, pointing out that only a dozen yeards separated them from being Middlesex League champions. It was suggested that steps be taken to memorialize the long service of Coach Knowlton to the town. This could be in renaming in his honor the athletic field, now known as Manchester Field, or the new gymnasium, with suitable plaque. Petitions were circulated. Some 150 registered voters signed the papers which will be presented to the School Committee for appropriate action.

Boosters' club trophies went to tri-captain Rudy Fiore, the most valuable player; tri-captain Dave Saliba, best lineman; tri-captain Charlie Deroo for leadership ; and Mike Heffernan and Vin Palumbo as unsung heroes.

Rudy, who picked up a virus infection, was unable to be present. His younger brother, Bob, accepted his award.

The younger Fiore was present with the four captains of the Pop Warner C team who were undefeated in their own league. They won all games except for a tie with Chelmsford. The captains were: Jim Schultz, John Lacey, Mark Bintel and Gary Errico.

On behalf of the team members the Pop Warner coaches were presented gift certificates by Gene Garneau and tri-captain Charlie Deroo.

Coach Marshall praised his team for having a desire to win and for the efforts of the boys to achieve this goal. Their devotion to practice and their will to win helped them overcome many obstacles, gave them a winning season and a great ending against the Tanners.

Marshall put forth the philosophy that playing the game is more important than winning.

Letters were awarded to those who met written requirements. Any who had received a football letter previously received a bar indicating he was a letter winner for another year. Only one letter can be awarded to an individual for each sport.

Medal

Hoop Season To Open Dec. 14

By John F. Parrell

Coach Vandy French and his new assistant, Will Hafner, have been drilling the candidates for the Sachem basketball team for the past two weeks.

The boys did well against perennial Greater Boston League power Everett, and will meet Framingham South and Arlington in scrimmages before they go to Sharon for the curtain raiser a week from tomorrow night.

The Sharon five will be back here to open the Sachem home season on the following Tuesday.

When Trainer Frank Provinzano was receiving his gift, he was given a standing ovation, and "Mr. P." responded fittingly. Father Hoy added his congratulations to the team before saying a prayer to bring the festivities to a close.

Open Gym Program Has New Schedule

The schedule for Winchester' open gym program has a number of changes which affect the days and times that the gym will be open this winter.

The December-March schedule, reflecting these changes and showing the addition of days that the gym will be open during the Christmas and February vacations, may be seen in an advertisement in this week's Star and will be repeated in next week's Star. Francis J. Lane, cooordinator of the community use of schools program, suggests the schedule be cut out and saved for future reference.

In response to the question of the affect the energy crisis will have on the program, Lane says the gym will remain open approximately the same number of hours per week but that thermostats have been lowered from 70 to 63 degrees.

Also, all unnecessary lighting are being turned off. Lane says the gym is rather cool but the heat is sufficient for sports activities.

The schedule will show there are now two "women only" nights for January. This is a trial program, says Lane. If successful there is a possibility of adding more similar night sessions. These are open to women 18 and over.

Another change applies to the vacation weeks in December and February. There will be afternoon sessions during most days for youths 15 and over, and evening sessions for adults 18 and over.

For the first two months the basketball program has been the most popular, Lane reports. Because of this success, an informal basketball league is being planned.

This league will be open to all residents who are 18 and over. Games will be played on Wednesday and Thursday nights. The number of teams will be determined by the number of adults who sign up on a sheet posted in the gym. Dec. 19 is the shut-off date. Games will begin in January.

Co-Captains

Albie Cordice, halfback, and Peter Emery' tackle, will be co-captains for the Winchester football team for the 1974 season. This breaks a tradition which has seen tri-leaders in recent years.

Cordice and Emery are a study in contrasts. Cordice is a speedy ball carrier and defensive back. Emery is a big, hard-hitting lineman.

Both played well in the big game with Woburn. Cordice had six open field tackles and broke up some dangerous passes. Emery had three tackles and three assists before an injured ankle sent him to the sidelines.

Stand-In

Standing in for his brother who was sick is Bob Fiore, 11. Rudy Fiore was awarded a gold football at banquet last week by the Sachem Boosters.

Accidentally Overheard

Advertising is generally here to stay, but there's one bit of advertising that was not allowed to remain in France. This was a huge electric Citroen sign on the Eiffel Tower in Paris. The sign was switched on on July 4, 1925 and could be seen twenty-four miles away. 25,000 lamps and fifty-six miles of electric cables were used to create the light. The whole thing was taken down in 1936.

Pictures, like an advertisement, have many things to say, without many words. At WINCHESTER CAMERA SHOP, 36 Waterfield Rd. (near PO), 729-3636, we would like to develop your gift ideas. John Weil Speaks On Soccer Tonight

John Weil, a referee's instructor, lecturer and professional soccer league referee, was guest speaker when soccer awards were presented recently before a large audience of players, guests, parents and friends.

Weil, who delivered a few words on the importance of parental and adult participation in a soccer program, will give a talk on soccer tonight at 7:30 in St. Mary's School Hall. This will offer an opportunity to adults to have a better understanding of the fastest growing sport, says John Duffy, a coordinator of the local soccer program. All are invited.

The awards for the Bantam Division were presented. Individual trophies were given to each member of the first place team, the Rangers, with a record of 8-0-1. Coach was Walter Layton assisted by Baaron Pittenger. Layton was presented with the Roger Stillman trophy, which is given to the first place coach each year.

Individual awards:

Team	Most Improved	Most Valuable
Bucks	Steve Marko	Jim Oliver
Cardinals	Jim McCarthy	John Barcus
Celtics	Tim Skehan	Mark Nelson
Knights	Robert Rigney	Mark Mulvaney
Panthers	Bengi Bloch	John Waite
Shamrocks	Robert Astil	George Casey
Rangers	Tony Maria	Pat Fortin
Warriors	George Austin	Jackie Driscoll

Next was the presentation of the outstanding player award. Selected by the coaches from among the 144 boys of the Division, from the Rangers, Pat Fortin was presented the outstanding player award.

Coaches and boys who had refereed the most games were presented tie pins.

In a brief message to the audience, John Duffy spoke of his appearance before the school committee last May. He said, "Recently, in talking with members of the School Committee and others it is apparent that those who are concerned about junior high soccer might need to consider a reduction in other athletic programs. Otherwise, it is unlikely there will be any new athletic programs added to the athletic budget.

"If you are in agreement and willing to accept sacrifices within the athletic budget, then support the School Committee in their support of a soccer program," Duffy said.

He concluded, "If you favor a soccer program in the junior high schools, you must rally townwide support for it."

Three WHS Sachems Chosen As All Stars

Co-captain John Friborg of the Winchester High School soccer team was named most valuable player in the league by the board of coaches at their annual meeting recently.

John, who has been an outstanding booter since his sophomore year, has a high school career record of 14-21-22, for a grand total of 59 goals.

He was also nominated for the balloting for the state team along with Ed Shiang. The latter was chosen for the Middlesex League first team with Friborg and Bob Bird of the Sachem team.

Besides the local players selected for the first team co-captain Andy Miga, Pete Frongillo and Tom Brennan were designated for honorable mention.

All in all it was a great season for Coach Gene Bouley's group which ended up tied for second in the Middlesex League with the Wakefield Warriors and half a game behind the Lexington Minutemen who took the title.

Winchester qualified for the state tourney in which they were edged by Cambridge Latin 1-0. The type of soccer that the boys played is best shown by the fact that every game they lost was by a margin of a single goal.

St. Eulalia Saints Belt West Medford

The Fighting Saints Bantam All-Stars of St. Eulalia's jumped out front in the first period 5-0 as they drew first blood on a short-handed goal by Jeff Mulligan, his first of two. The Saints scored four more times before the first period ended to make it 5-0.

The second period the hitting was hard and the scoring got harder as the Saints picked up one more goal.

Ralph Ranzo was high scorer with two goals and three assists, Mark Nelson, Pete Stackpole and Paul Marcucella each scored one goal. Steve Keohane chipped in with three assists and lots of hustle.

Great defensive plays to John Lehane and outstanding play to Pete Stackpole and Pete Broderick and goaltenders Billy Surabian and Ned Callanan. Steve Heohane was voted captain after the game and "Rat" Ranzo and Rich Purcell were voted assistant captains. Next game Belmont at Newton.

The St. Eulalia Lions, after a scoreless first period on Nov. 27 found themselves trailing 2-0 midway through the second period. On a great rush, Jackie Collins stepped around the left defensive and drilled one into the net to make it 2-1. Rich Arnold tied the score 2-2 with an assist from Jack Barret.

The third period found St. Eulalia Pee Wees trailing 3-2 with 1:30 left to play. Rich Arnold pumped in his second goal to the tie the score 3-3. Jackie Bonner was great in the nets while playing the whole game. He was able to salvage a tie on Randolph's home ice.

Last Sunday the Lions bussed it to Saugus to meet North Medford and edged past them 2-1 in a contest that should have resulted in a much higher score. The Lions outhustled the Mustangs but did everything but score. Jackie Collins finally pumped in a back hander late in the first period.

Medford tied the score 1-1 in the second period which was loaded with penalties. Mark Wilson lifted a back-hander into the twine in the last period to bring the Lions' undefeated string to three games.

The Lions will travel to Newton next hoping to go for four.

Mites Lose To Burlington

The Winchester Youth Hockey Mites lost to Burlington 4 to 1 in a game that Patrick Falla again stood out in goal in recent action. A number of defensive mistakes spelled the difference after Winchester had taken an early 1 to 0 lead.

Ice Jamboree Tomorrow Night

Coach Ted Keeley will send his hockey team on the ice tomorrow evening at 7:30 at Hockeytown in Melrose. The Middlesex League jamboree will pit traditional rivals in short practice games of two 12-minute periods.

The Woburn Tanners will provide tough opposition. Both teams will go all out to come out on top. A large delegation is expected to be on hand to get their first peek at what the Sachem skaters will do, and how well they will shape up for the 18-game schedule which lies ahead.

Help To Cornell

One of the reasons for Cornell's 4-2 football season was Tom Macdonald of 92 Bacon st. (6-1, 240).

Part of the offensive line, Macdonald and five others allowed the Cornell freshmen to gain over 1,200 rushing yardage in the six games, almost 400 more yards than Cornell's opponents gained.

Free Tickets To Go To Elderly For Theater Production

Twenty-five free tickets to "Noah's Ark," a children's production of the Winchester Community Theater, Inc., have been offered to the town's senior citizens by the group's director, Mrs. Carlene Samoiloff.

The production, a musical play with dialogue by children, will be presented on Dec. 14 at 3:30 p.m. and Dec. 15 at two p.m. in the McCall Junior High School auditorium (old Senior High).

The tickets for older citizens are for the Saturday, 2 p.m. performance, and may be picked up at the Council on Aging office in the new Lincoln School on Main street, Monday through Friday from 9 to 1. Any elders unable to attend on Saturday may request a ticket for Friday.

Noah's Ark's Cast

The following is the cast for "Noah's Ark," a production of the Winchester Children's Theatre to be performed on Dec. 14 and 15:

In Noah's family will be Noah, Jim Graves; Mrs. Noah, Becky Downs; Ham, Alan Erico; Shem, David Warnock; Japhet, Robert Lee; Naomi, Tina Carswell; Ada, Caroline Samoiloff; Sara, Sara Samoiloff; Tubal, Jonathan Grant; Aram, Tom Hanlon; Kelly, Kelly Shea; Jennifer, Jennifer Jordan.

The Scoffers are King Scoffer, Lawrence Reynolds; Queen Scoffer, Stephanie Lynch; Robert Shupe, Edward Mills, Dale Vokey, John Baker, Kathy Reynolds.

The Waves will be Cara Connell, Karen Kelly, Laura Frickland, Eve Goodman, Lisa Barbuto, Laura Cunningham, Kathryn Lee, Linda Lee, Annette Carswell, Denise Preston, Jackie Howland, Andrea Hines, Amy Nastasi, Sharon Lynch.

Helping to write the script were Susan Cooper Grant, Elizabeth Hoffman, Sharon Lynch and many children who contributed ideas and suggestions.

Ticket chairman is Mrs. Joseph Errico.

School Committee Meets At Noonan

Monday night at Noonan School the School Committee will appoint a playground committee. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Other items on the agenda include consideration of a request to grant credits to students who obtain third class licenses. There will also be reports from the superintendent of schools, members of the School Committee and student representatives. Community use of schools and curriculum will be discussed.

Seferian Named To Board Of Appeal, Ban OnNight Street Parking Remains

The Winchester selectmen appointed a woman to the Board of Appeal, discussed the possibility of opening streets to parking (voted down) and appealed to merchants to cut commercial lighting at their meeting Monday.

Esther B. Sefarian was appointed a full member of the Board of Appeal on the resignation of Herbert F. Ross, who has moved away. Mrs. Seferian's appointment was made at the request of Frederick D. Herberich, Appeal chairman.

Mrs. Seferian was an associate member of the board.

Discussion on street parking came after a letter was received from a resident of Lebanon street who reported certain hardships because her roomer's car has been ticketed for parking on the sidewalk during the winter.

The selectmen noted that parking on sidewalks is illegal. "Apparently this has been done in the past in all sections of town," said Chairman Arthur Dunbar.

Selectman Vito Giarrizzo appealed to the board to help such people. He said parking in the Town Hall lot at night, especially for women, is no solution.

But Selectman Lawrence Smith said, "If the law prohibits parking on sidewalks then the law should be removed."

The board failed to support the suggestion from Giarrizzo for a temporary nighttime lifting the ban on street parking.

They agreed to send the Lebanon street resident a letter citing the law banning parking on sidewalks and telling her "nothing can be done at this time."

In other action, the board agreed to come up with a townwide policy on street lights in view of the energy shortage and requests from certain streets for increased illumination.

They set up a subcommittee to deal with a grievance from the library custodians who claim the library is using non-janitorial help during Sunday openings to perform custodial work in order to avoid paying overtime, in violation of contract.

Executive secretary Edward Donnelly said, "The custodians feel any time the building is open there should be a custodian on duty."

The board made an appeal to Winchester's merchants to cut unnecessary commercial lighting.

At the suggestion of Sullivan, the board voted to ask the town meeting which begins tonight to act on the solid waste disposal article after it acts on the condominium article in order to give the solid waste committee and Sanitas, Inc., more time to draw an agreement for the firm to take over operation of Winchester's incinerator.

The firm proposes to reconstruct the town incinerator and take over its financing and operation, as it is now doing in Wellesley. The town meeting will be asked to appropriate $500,000 for that purpose.

Operation by a private firm is considered an interim solution while state and federal governments work out permanent means of trash disposal.

Selectman Sullivan told The Star that the plan is not to fire any of the town employees who now run the incinerator. The town would use them to fill public works-type positions as those slots become open due to attrition. There are about 14 persons who work at the incinerator. A privately, run operation, highly mechanized, would require only one to two persons, Sullivan said.

Falla Featured In 'Goal' Story

"Goal," the official publication of the National Hockey League, has as a feature story this month an interview with John M. Falla, 306 Washington st., coach of the 1973 International Champion Boston Junior Braves.

The story, entitled "The Pee Wees Are Coming," was written by "Herald-American" sports writer D. Leo Monahan, who describes the experiences of the Junior Braves in becoming the first non-Canadian team ever to win the International Pee Wee Tournament at Quebec City. Monahan points to the team's accomplishment as an index of the progress of youth hockey in Greater Boston.

MIDDLESEX, ss.
L.S.

At the First District Court of Eastern Middlesex, holden at Malden, within the County of Middlesex, for civil business, on the twenty-seventh day of November A.D., 1973

Exchange Street Auto Body, a corporation organized and having a usual place of business at 155 Exchange Street Malden, Massachusetts, in the County of Middlesex, Plaintiff, vs. John P. Storella, Jr., 18 Holton Street, Winchester, Massachusetts in the County of Middlesex, Defendant.

This is an action of Contract to recover SIX HUNDRED SEVENTY THREE dollars and ONE cents, alleged to be due to the Plaintiff from the Defendant on the fourteenth day of June A.D., 1973 as set forth in the Plaintiff's writ of that date

And it appearing to the Court, by the suggestion of the Plaintiff, and on inspection of the officer's return on the plaintiff's writ, — that the officer was unable to find the Defendant or his last and usual place of abode, tenant, agent or attorney in this Commonwealth known to the Plaintiff or to said officer, — and that no personal service of said writ has been made upon the Defendant, John P. Storella, Jr.

It is ordered by the Court, here, that the Plaintiff give notice to the Defendant of the pendency of this action, and to appear before said Court, to be holden at Malden aforesaid, on the thirty-first day of December next, to answer to the same, by causing a true and attested copy of this order to be published in the Winchester Star, 3 Church St., Winchester, a newspaper printed in said county of Middlesex, once in a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be at least fourteen days before the said last mentioned date; and that this action be continued to the said last mentioned day, or until notice shall have been given to the Defendant, agreeably to this order

Peace In Holy Land Is Topic

Pro. Said Abu-Zahra will speak on "Peace for All People in the Holy Land" on Dec. 11 at 8 p.m. in the Suter Room at the Parish of the Epiphany.

Abu-Zahra was born and raised in Palestine. He was educated at Leeds University and received his doctorate degree at Syracuse. For two years, he worked for Aramco, the largest oil producer in Saudi Arabia.

He is a professor of mathematics at Salem State College. In addition, he serves as president of the New England Arab-American University Graduates. Earlier this year, he founded an oil importing company for the benefit of the New England area.

Professor Abu-Zahra will explain reasons for continued warfare in the Middle East, how the problem arose, and how the current energy crisis is related.

Outreach, a committee within the Parish of the Epiphany concerned with needs and programs beyond the Winchester community, is sponsoring this open meeting for all those interested.

Human Rights, Sermon Topic At 1st Congo.

Using scriptures from the Book of Isaiah, Rev. Walter B. Davis of the First Congregational Church will preach Sunday on "I Have Given You - You Belong To Others." The sermon will give a look at Isaiah's notion of human rights. A sermon talkback will be held in Chidley Hall.

On Dec. 16 the choirs and church school will present "Amahl and the Night Visitors" in the Sunday service at 10 a.m. Later all worshippers are invited to an international dinner in Chidley Hall, sponsored by the Forum.

From Jan. 6 - Feb. 3 there will be a Bible study course entitled "Jesus in Christian Faith" with emphasis on Jesus' views of God, led by Donald Rowlingson. Ann Constance Blackham daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Blackham Jr. of 33 Canterbury rd. will make her debut at the Debutante Assembly and New Year's Ball Jan. 1 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City.

On Dec. 23, Rev. Davis will preach on "I Do A New Thing - You Belong To The Future," the meaning of christmas as realized hope.

On Dec. 2, a Christmas workshop was held from 3-5 p.m. in Chidley Hall of First Congregational Church.

Gifts were made for shut-ins and new gifts were brought for the needy. The Junior Choir sang and were joined by the group in the singing of carols. Santa Claus came and greeted everyone.

Mystic River Bridge Has 8-Ton Limit

An eight-ton limit has been imposed on all vehicles using the General Lawrence Bridge spanning the Mystic River near Route 93 Medford.

Necessary repairs to the bridge is the reason for the regulation, according to Mason Condon, MDC director of park engineering.

Vehicles weighing more than the limits imposed by the MDC will be detoured to the Fellsway when they are traveling west on the Medford Veterans' Memorial Highway in the Wellington Circle area.

Vehicles traveling east on Route 93 and on Mystic Valley Parkway will be rerouted onto Mystic avenue, Medford, if they weigh more than the limit.

The bridge weight limit will be maintained until repairs are completed. This is expected to take between two and three years, the MDC announced.

Reading Concert On Sunday

The Reading Symphony Orchestra will present its first concert of the season at the Reading Memorial High School on Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

James Roth, conductor, will lead the orchestra through works by Verdi, Chopin and Franck.

Rev. Storer To Examine Jesus Movement

Preaching at the Winchester Unitarian Church at 10 a.m. on Sunday Dr. Robert Storer, minister emeritus, will reflect on the Jesus movement.

Will the new intrepretation of Jeasus by the so-called Jesus freaks survive or is it a faddish sign of the times? What is the Unitarian Universalist interpretation of the purpose of Christ in the religious history of mankind?

Approaching the season of the birth of Christ, these are questions to think about, says Rev. Storer.

Special Christmas music will be provided by the senior choir. The public is invited.

The Women's Alliance will have its Christmas tea on Dec. 11 at 2:30 in the Alliance Room. The junior choir, directed by David Arsenault and Mrs. Susan Cowen' and John White, clarinetist, and Mrs. Mary Renton Witham, pianist, will present a program of Christmas music. Carol singing will be included.

St. Eulalia's Funding Plan Gains Attention

A pioneering revolution in church funding which has attracted attention from cardinals, bishops, chancellors and missionaries, is beginning its third year at St. Eulalia's parish this Sunday.

An annual appeal known as One Shared Response will be made among parishioners who have assessed their obligation to support the church, discussed it with their families, and freely determined both the frequency and amount of their payments.

This method of funding has proven successful in the past two years and has enabled the Parish Council to budget for its many activities with a previously unknown level of financial stability.

Msgr. Joseph W. Lyons, pastor, said that inquiries have been received from many other clergymen about the organization and development of this unique approach to fiscal support. All archdiocesan, national and universal church collections except Christmans and Easter collections, are included in the pre-planned shared response contribution without further donation requests.

Parishioners have indicated their pleasure in the painless way of supporting the church. Fringe benefits include the elimination of "money changing in the temple." No longer do multiple collections distract from liturgical worship. Writing a monthly or quarterly check along with other bills seems a better way of taking care of this obligation, many parishioners feel.

Sermons have stressed the importance of family discussions to determine the amount of the family's contribution. Clergymen feel that such discussions are educational and an aid to establishing a value system for youngsters.

Mothers Plan Holiday Party

The Matignon Mothers Guild of Cambridge will hold its annual Christmas Party for the sisters on Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. in the school hall. The Matignon Glee Club, under the direction of Father Paul Rouse, will entertain. Santa Claus will also be there.

NOTICE TOWNSPEOPLE
Without consulting my company, I am taking this upon myself to inform the people as to how it's going to be. A milk shortage has been predicted and those that have home delivery will almost be guaranteed milk. Altho milk is high and may go higher so is gasoline and fuel oil which we cannot control. If you think you are saving money by going to the store to buy your milk, think again.
You may have already felt the squeeze of the gasoline shortage but it will get worse before it gets better. Why not have home delivery before it's too late. In the event of gasoline rationing we may not be able to pick up new customers so act now and call Sunnyhurst Dairy for home delivery. 438-5500.

Text Of Covenant

The following is the text of the covenant agreed to by lawyers for the Planning Board and Kaufman & Broad on Tuesday:

COVENANT

The undersigned, Sarah Moss, hereinafter called the covenantor, being the owner of a parcel of land containing approximately 93 acres and situated on the westerly side of Cambridge street in the Town of Winchester ... is the subject of a petition for an amendment of the zoning by-laws of the Town of Winchester upon a proposal to construct 487 dwelling units thereon, hereby covenants with the Town of Winchester upon the following terms and conditions:-

1. The covenantor is the owner of said parcel of land described in Exhibit A by virtue of Certificate of Title No. 108,035 registered with the Middlesex South Registry District at Book 670 Page 065.

2. The covenantor has executed but not recorded a purchase and sale agreement with Kaufman & Broad Land Corp., hereinafter, together with Kaufman & Broad Homes, Inc., collectively called the developer, for the sale of said parcel conditioned, among other things, upon the approval by the Town of Winchester of its proposal to rezone said parcel described in Exhibit A from a Residential District A (RDA-20) Zone and Residential District B (RDB-10) Zone into a Planned Residential District (PRD), all as more fully described in Section 6.27 et seq. of the (new) zoning by-law of the Town of Winchester adopted by the town meeting on Nov. 1.

3. This covenant shall take full effect upon the approval by the representative town meeting of the Town of Winchester of Article 8 of the warrant of the special town meeting of Dec. 6 in substantially the form as proposed in said warrant so as to permit the contemplated development.

4. The convenantor agrees to make no conveyance or assignment or otherwise divest herself of her interest in the real property described in said Exhibit A until at least 7 days after the termination of the special town meeting called for Dec. 6, or any adjournment thereof so as to permit the recording of this covenant prior to any alienation thereof.

5. Should the attorney general disapprove the action of the town meeting taken under Article 8 as aforsaid in any substantial manner so as to preclude the contemplated development, the obligation of the covenantor shall become void.

6. There will be constructed by the developer on the subservient estate not more than 487 dwelling units. Not more than 8 dwelling units will be connected together in any one cluster. No dwelling unit may exceed 2½ stories or 35 feet in height. Said dwelling units shall contain in toto not more than 974 bedrooms or rooms which can reasonably be used as sleeping rooms. The determination by the Planning Board of the town, during the site plan approval process, in conformity with the standards set forth in the following sentence, shall be conclusive as to rooms which can reasonably be used as sleeping rooms. There shall be a presumption that rooms cannot reasonably be used as sleeping rooms if they do not have direct access to a bathroom, contain no closet, are not held out as usable as bedrooms or generally, because of location and configuration, are readily distinguishable from other rooms in the dwelling unit intended as bedrooms. Actual use of any such rooms, as permanent sleeping rooms shall, however, be conclusive evidence of their ability to be so used. No dwelling unit on the subservient estate may, at any time, be advertised as containing more than two bedrooms and purchasers shall be restricted from using more than two rooms as bedrooms as provided in Paragraph 13 hereof.

7. The submission by the developer of a request for site plan approval shall include the proposed form of condominium agreement and after such approval the developer will not, without the approval of the Planning Board, make material changes in such portions of such agreement as said board shall designate. To the extent permitted by law, the approvals of the Board of Appeal and other agencies and boards of the town required by the zoning by-law of the town shall be granted (or denied) in not more than 120 days from submission of request therefor, not withstanding any shorter time which may be specified by law. The initial site plan approval by the Board of Appeal will be for all of the 487 dwelling units containing not more than 974 bedrooms or rooms which can reasonably be used as sleeping rooms. However, the developer will initially construct only one-third of such units, containing not more than one-third of such bedrooms. The developer will notify the Planning Board after certificates of occupancy and zoning compliance have been issued for at least fifty percent of the units in the current portion of the project.

In the event the Planning Board shall determine that the project does not so comply, the developer shall be entitled to appeal such determination to the Board of Appeal and the developer will take no action on the construction of the next portion pending determination of such appeal. The developer may then construct not more than half of the remaining units or bedrooms, and may construct the balance only after following the procedure required with respect to the preceding portion.

8. Building permits for individual structures shall be issued only upon certification by the town engineer that the required access in the form of a roadway completed to the extent of at least a bituminous concrete base finish and electric, water, sewer, firealarm and other underground utilities and surface water drainage facilities have been constructed and provided for the particular building site.

Said Board shall review the project to ascertain compliance with the plan approved by said board, and with this covenant, the zoning by-law of the town and applicable laws and regulations. The developer will take no action on the construction of the next portion until 75 days after such notice or the sooner determination of said board that the project so complies.

9. The developer shall provide, at its expense, a full time project supervisor on the site during the entire period of construction of the project. The developer shall deposit with the town the following sums for the employment of a full time inspector and, in the sole discretion of the town, for inspection and engineering service, to review and evaluate the proposed development and to ascertain compliance with this covenant, the building and zoning by-laws of the town, the rules and regulations of the Planning Board and the Board of Appeals, the conditions of any Board of Appeal approval and all other such local regulations as may be pertinent as follows:

(a) Upon submission for site plan review, the sum of $40,000;

(b) Upon the first and second anniversary dates of site plan submission, the sum of $30,000 in each year; and

(c) Upon each subsequent anniversary date of site plan submission prior to issuance of certificates of zoning compliance and occupancy for the entire project, the sum of $20,000 in each year.

10. Each dwelling unit shall be provided with one enclosed garage and an adjacent space for parking one additional car. Parking for guests shall be provided in an area conveniently located for each dwelling unit, as evidenced by site plan approval by the Board of Appeal.

11. The sewage system which is to be constructed on the subservient estate shall be constructed and connected to the sewer system of the Town of Winchester at no expense to the town, and designed so as to discharge into the town's existing system in a manner and at times not overtaking to the town's systems existing at the time of construction.

Such system shall, as appropriate, include such items as holding tanks and pumps permitting discharge at off-peak load hours or other alternative means to attain the requirements of the preceding sentence as shall be reasonably acceptable to the Water and Sewer Board of the town. The developer will pay all costs of offsite work required to handle adequately any added surface water run-off from the subservient estate caused by changes effected on the subservient estate by the developer.

12. All changes or improvements to Cambridge street required in connection with any construction of up to two access ways from Cambridge street to the subservient estate shall be effected by the owner or developer of the subservient estate at no cost to the Town of Winchester or such owner shall reimburse the town for any costs incurred by the town in effecting any such changes or improvements. No additional vehicular access ways to the subservient estate shall be requested or constructed by the developer except from Cambridge street unless requested or required by an authorized agency or board of the town.

13. The owner or developer of the subservient estate will not construct dwelling units thereon containing bedrooms in excess of two per unit. Should the dwelling units contain rooms designated and intended for use as "dens," "studies" or the like, the developer will subject purchasers of such units to agreements, by-laws or other contractual or common provisions restricting such rooms from use as bedrooms.

14. The owner or developer or ultimate owners of the subservient estate and the occupants of the dwelling units thereon will be responsible, at no expense to the town, for trash and garbage removal, snow removal, water and sewer services, surface water run-off and maintenance of all ways and common areas within the subservient estate, it being understood that the depositing trash in any incinerator or other town facility and the connection of water, sewer and other utility lines with town facilities will not be precluded hereby.

15. The covenantor and developer agree to deed to the Town of Winchester, without cost, simultaneously with receiving the first building permit, the parcel of land hereinafter described which shall be the dominant estate and shall vest in the town all rights of enforcement of these covenants without limitations in time or prior forgiveness:

A triangular lot of land situated at the extreme southerly corner of the parcel of land shown on a plan entitled "Plan of Land in Winchester," by Rowland H. Barnes & Co., civil engineers, registered with the Middlesex South Registry District as Plan No. 17487A, said triangular lot being bounded and described as follows:

Southeasterly: by land of Mary L. Russell, as shown on the above mentioned Plan, on two lines measuring 44.38 feet and 78.68 feet, respectively;

Southwesterly: by land of Ralph M. Thompson as shown on said Plan, now owned by the Town of Winchester, 87 feet, more or less; and Northerly: by the remaining part of the parcel first referred to above, 160 feet, more or less.

16. The covenantor, upon being notified by the town that the action of the town meeting in approving Article 8 has become effective by virtue of the approval of the Attorney General and Publication as required shall forthwith withdraw her appeal to the Supreme Judicial Court from the Land Court's decision in the case of Sarah Moss v. Town of Winchester allowing said decision of the Land Court to stand as the law of the case; and further that the covenantor, upon such notification, shall forthwith stipulate in the case of Margaret C. Mahoney v. Frederick D. Herberick et. al, Appeals Court, that a decree enter determining that the decision of the Board of Appeals is annulled.

17. The convenantor agrees that the obligations created hereunder shall be binding upon herself, the developer and all persons claiming by, through or under them, and shall remain in full force and effect until released by the Town of Winchester, but only after a two-thirds vote of the representative town meeting, or then current legislative body of said town after following such procedures as are then required for the enactment or modification of the zoning by-laws.

St. Mary's Hockey

St. Mary's hockey team survived 10 Norwood power plays Sunday to post a 2-1 victory over the Saints in the opening round of CYO League play.

St. Mary's, traditionally the least penalized team in the league, played rougher than a Chicago full of Leroy Browns according to the officials who whistled five of St. Mary's 10 one-minute minor penalities in the final period.

But strong goaltending by Cliff Falla - making his first start in four years since taking over from three time All Star Peter Scopa--and a late second period goal by Bill McLean, gave St. Mary's all they needed to win and move quickly into first place in the league's strong American Division.

St. Mary's scored a short-handed goal at 4:39 of the second period after Norwood had dominated most of the first half of the game. McLean's goal at 8:23 gave St. Mary's a 2-0 lead but Norwood cut the margin to 2-1 with a power play goal at 2:44 of the third period.

St. Mary's played most of the last seven minutes with a man in the penalty box. Norwood pulled their goalie with 30 seconds left in the game and kept the pressure on St. Mary's, hitting the post in the final 210 seconds.

V-O Bowling

Jean Day and Anna Pierce tied for the high single in the Vinson-Owen Bowling League this week with 109. Anna Pierce bowled the high triple of 299 and helped the Bluejays take 6 points to move them out of last place.

The first place Cardinals, with fine team bowling, took the team high single of 356 as well as the team high triple of 1014.

BE SMART FROM THE START

A homeowner has a big investment. When the time comes to sell that home, it's mighty, mighty important that you sell right ... to make sure the investment has been a good one.

If pocketing a broker's commission tempts you, ask yourself if you can afford to let an amateur manage a transaction that involves thousands of dollars: Your dollars! When you want a job done well, you call a specialist. This is standard practice for successful business men ... why buck success?

Some people try to sell their own property, fail and then list it with a Realtor. In the meantime, they've let the best prospects slip through their fingers.

Believe me. List your home with a Realtor from the start and you'll realize as much if not more profit and fewer problems from the sale than if you try to do it on your own. Statistics have proven this over and over again.

Chelsea Major Calls Collection Of Sheets 'Superb Brotherhood'

A recent appeal to Winchester residents for sheets and pillow cases for victims of the Chelsea fire netted 282 sheets and 87 pillow cases.

The drive, reminiscent of a collection taken after World War II, was sponsored by Winchester churches and the Ecumenical Association. The campaign was spearheaded by Herman Erikson of 131 Ridge st., member of the Methodist men's group of the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church.

During World War II, Lt. Col. John D. Hanlon of Winchester was billeted with the 502nd Regiment of the 101st Airborne Division in Hemroulle, Belgium, awaiting battle with members of the German Army.

In an effort to camouflage his paratroopers on a snow-covered terrain, Hanlon borrowed sheets from Hemroulle citizens. After the war Winchester residents rallied to a call from Hanlon to pay back the sheets.

On a November Sunday afternoon in 1947, as church bells tolled throughout Winchester, more than 500 sheets were collected and sent to Hemroulle, Belgium.

After the Oct. 14 fire in Chelsea Erikson was reminded of the sheet story of years past and came up with the idea of a sheet collection for Chelsea victims.

Major William Hulteen of the Salvation Army, Chelsea, one of several groups appointed by Mayor Philip Spellman to assist the homeless and in need, calls the Winchester assistance "superb brotherhood."

Hulteen says the sheets are being distributed to the most needy of the 400 families affected by the fire. Though the majority of the families are relocated, 10 still are not permanently settled and are living with friends or relatives.

Hulteen praises the people of Winchester, other communities and the rest of the nation for answering the call to assist during and since the fire. Besides money, the Chelsea office of the Salvation Army has recieved 70 tons of canned goods and 65 tons of clothing, all of which has been distributed.

Citing statistics, Hulteen says that the army gave out 28,350 meals during the fire; 3,291 gallons of coffee; 1,136 gallons of soup and stew; 1,027 dozens doughnuts; 21,384 sandwiches; over 500 pounds fresh fruit; 706 gallons milk; and 3,641 loaves of bread.

Still working with the families in providing food and clothing, the chief responsibility of the Chelsea Salvation Army as a part of the mayor's task force, Hulteen says "we are now appealing for assistance for Christmas needs."

League To Focus On Recreation

The recreational needs and facilities of Winchester will be discussed at the Dec. 11-13 unit meetings of the League of Women Voters.

The study committee will present the results of a survey of Winchester school students from grade 5 through 12, answering questions about preferences in recreation, use of leisure time and town facilities.

Results of a survey done by the council on Aging will be given.

Included in the agenda is a discussion of Winchester's recreation program and facilities and a comparison of town facilities with those of Concord, Burlington and Belmont.

The meetings are scheduled as follows: Dec. 11, 7:45 p.m., home of Mrs. Nolan Jones, 22 Squire rd. Dec. 12, 12:45 p.m., home of Mrs. John McPhail, 23 Allen Rd. Dec. 13, 9:15 a.m., home of Mrs. Winfield Knopf, 233 Main st.

Discussion leaders are Mrs. Abraham Goldin, Mrs. Theodore Wood and Mrs. David Mortensen.

Non-members interested in joining one of these groups are asked to call the chairman, Mrs. James Ferkes.

Bicentennial Group Asks For Sheets

In July, 1976, the nation will celebrate its 200th birthday. Many groups are already making plans for programs and events which will stimulate a renewed understanding and commitment to the democratic ideals that shaped the birth of America.

According to Rev. Michael Strah the largest national organization preparing for the 200th anniversary of the founding of the nation is the People's Bicentennial Commission.

He describes this as a non-profit, public foundation established in July, 1971, in the belief that America's bicentennial celebration can be a time to recapture and renew the spirit which gave birth to the United States.

Locally the commission has an office at 490 Beacon st. in Boston. Planning meetings are held at the Beacon st. office every Monday evening.

Reverend Strah, one of several Winchester residents participating in the planning meetings, informs The Star that the commission needs people to help with a variety of projects ranging from making posters and banners to office work.

A primary need at the moment is for old sheets which can be used to make signs and banners. Anyone willing to donate old sheets to the People's Bicentennial Commission is asked to phone Strah.

For additional information about the commission and the programs it is planning, call the Boston office.

The Hand in Hand Mutual Insurance Office was started in 1696, in London, England. The original name of the office was "Contributors for Insuring Houses, Chambers or Rooms from Loss by Fire by Amicable Contribution within the cities of London and Westminster and the liberties thereof, and the places thereonto adjoining." Luckily, for history at least, the office soon adopted the shorter title--which came from an emblem on which two clasped hands were embossed.

Condominiums Vetoed Alternatives Explored

Kaufman & Broad's plan to build 487 condominiums on West Side Hill went down to defeat Monday when a special town meeting voted 68-89 against granting a zoning change, far short of the necessary two-thirds majority required.

Unless there is a move to seek a referendum, K&B's proposal appears dead for the next few years.

The special town meeting which began last Thursday continues and probably concludes tonight, when an appropriation is sought to rebuild the town incinerator to bring it into compliance with state and federal anti-pollution laws.

The four-hour debate on K&B's plan Monday was wide ranging and took up the entire session. Opponents presented a multitude of arguments against granting K&B a "planned residential development" zoning change under provisions of the town's ado newly adopted zoning by-law.The land is single residence zoned.

Perhaps Selectman John J. Sullivan summed up the feeling of the majority when he explained why he and Selectman Lawrence Smith were in the minority on the board in recommending unfavorable action.

"The town was built by people who wanted single residences. They want to keep it that way." He said "the character of Winchester will change" if the proposal were approved. "It will add 500 units in a manner the town is unaccustomed to."

Town meeting member (TMM) Harrison Chadwick, Republican state representative, spoke at length in favor of the plan. He cautioned TMMs that rejection of the plan will mean partial development of the parcel for low income housing.

"The basic question is: Would you rather have the Moss proposal on the Moss property or the Kaufman & Broad proposal on the Moss property? Between the two there is no comparison."

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moss of Winchester, more recently of Belmont, are the property owners from whom K&B's option to buy expires at the end of the month. They have said they will build low income housing if K&B fails.

The Finance Committee, Planning Board and Board of Selectmen recorded majority votes in favor of K&B.

Opponents argued that there were too many unanswered questions about the proposal, including disposal of sewage, guarantees that dens in the condominiums wouldn't be used as bedrooms, thus increasing the number of persons living there; that the town wouldn't require a second access road to be built; and that the courts would uphold the legality of a covenant prepared between K&B and the Planning Board on behalf of the town.

Proponents argued that the town is desperate for housing for its citizens, that the covenant protects Winchester from any possible planning error, that there would be a minimum in services for the development and a large ($3) tax benefit. Rep. Chadwick discounted difficulties the national firm has had in Chicago, as comparable with any similarly large firm. "K&B can't be responsible for every word and every deed of every employee."

The 68-89 adverse vote appeared to traverse traditional political philosophies of town meeting members. Observers were unable to find any conclusive pattern in the voting, with known liberals and known conservatives voting on either side.

A few of the comments made by speakers:

—Nelson C. Lees, 15 Old Lyme rd.: "It's too big for Winchester."

—Planning Board Chairman Otto Schaefer: "The Planning Board has the complete confidence in town counsel that the covenant is enforceable....The positive aspects of the proposal outweigh the negative."

—TMM Denis E. Gulden: "There are too many unanswered questions that could be answered.... There is now a tremendous traffic problem on Cambridge st."

—John Cheever, Ridge st.: "The covenant is as good as the judge rules on it after our town counsel has gone to court to get it enforced....A new (court) ruling passed this year might allow the developer to break the covenant (on sewage)."

TMM Robert C. Erickson: "An entrance from Aristotle or Socrates way is the obvious answer. But K&B wants to sell the proposal so opposition from the people from the Greek Streets will be minimized."

— K&B Atty. Andrew L. Nichols: "You can't expect anyone to answer all the what-if's." He called these what-if's a "parade of imaginary horribles" and said that included in the agreement between K&B and the town were provisions that both the sewage and access problems would be solved. If not, "this plan can't go forward."

—Selectman Sullivan: "There is some increasing feeling that multiple housing means progress. If you want (some idea of) progress, go to Chelsea, go to Revere, go to Boston."

—Rep. Chadwick: "I doubt that we will ever get on this tract of land a perfect proposal.... I'm appalled when I stop to think of the number of people who have been forced to move out of town..."

—Selectman Smith: "We shouldn't make a decision predicated on the fear that if we don't accept this proposal something worse will happen. Fear tactics could the issue"

Referendum Ruled Out

The attorney who represented Kaufman & Broad at town meeting said Tuesday night the company has rejected the idea to seek a referendum.

"If we were unable to persuade the town meeting, at this stage it is unlikely we would be able to persuade the town," Atty. Andrew L. Nichols of Winchester said.

The attorney said the firm, a multi-national home builder, is considering possible alternatives to the rejected condominium proposal.

Asked to be more specific, Nichols said the firm has just begun thinking of new ideas. He said K&B wants to "respond to town meeting concern."

"Open" is the word he used to describe any possible new developments in Winchester. "Even on this site (West Side Hill) it's an open question."

When would the firm decide? "In a matter of weeks or months."

Would they stick to condominiums? "It hasn't gone that far yet" (to know).

K&B's option with the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moss, expires at the end of this month. "Under no circumstances can I envision anything being built under that option," Atty. Nichols said. "It would be on new terms."

This means a new option would have to be negotiated with Moss or agreements worked out with other Winchester landowners.

Nichols said that Moss, vacationing in Florida, is very anxious to get something moving on his land.

K&B, he said, "spent a substantial sum of money" in Winchester. "There was a great deal of land planning, consultation and fees."

Costello Holds Payment Of Books, Says State Aid May Be Jeopardized

Payment of approximately $14,000 worth of books for the Winchester High School Library, authorized by the School Committee, is being delayed by the town comptroller and is now under further discussion.

Also, $3,782 in bills for the refurbishing of McCall Junior High School are being held.

In an attempt to reconstruct proceedings leading to this action, The Star this week talked with School Committee Chairman Harriet Dieterich, Assistant Supt. of Schools William Clark, Town Comptroller James Costello, and Permanent Building Committee (PBC) Chairman Robert S. Frank.

The Town officials referred to the original bid to construct the high school. Among other items, including a swimming pool, the bid called for new books in the library to supplement those already in the existing old school library.

"In the early stages the project was cut to the bone," PBC chairman Frank says. The bid finally accepted was for $13,275,892 and did not include library books as a specific item.

However, according to Costello and Mrs. Dieterich, $40,000 of the contingency account, originally estimated at $229,000, was to cover new library books.

Frank, the third chairman of PBC since the start of the high school project, reports he doesn't know where the $40,000 figure comes from. It appears to have been "pulled out of the air."

His recollection is that books would be paid for from the contingency account only if there was any left after final completion and acceptance of the school.

The high school is not yet completed and is still not paid for. Final payments to the contractors, White Construction Co . of Burlington ($96,000) and architects, Brown, Fisher and Nickerson of Boston ($20,000) are being held up primarily due to leaks in windows.

Frank says that this week some extensive tests were conducted at some windows and "they believe they have detected certain problems." He notes, "we know we've found some things that are causing problems" but are not sure if this is all.

Frank says PBC will not be satisfied until the building is "watertight." He emphasized that all work leading to the correction of problems "is not costing the town."

Mrs. Dieterich says the School Committee is "worried" about the payment of the books.

She acknowledged that the School Committee, in its effort to assist PBC in obtaining books for the library, voted to use $14,000 left from the 1972 budget to pay for new books.

She also acknowledged that town meeting should be involved in money-spending decisions when The Star asked her if this matter should have been a decision of town meeting.

This general reasoning is a chief concern of the town comptroller and is why he began laying aside certain bills to book publishers which were dated in December and began appearing at the Town Hall in March. "We've been sitting on bills since then," Costello says.

The library book bills were sent through to be charged to the School Department budget for fiscal year 1972. Titles of the books, ac-

THE ENERGY SHORTAGE

Library Closes Fridays At 6

The Winchester Public Library is closing at 6 p.m. Fridays beginning this week for the duration of the energy crisis.

The library will remain open on Monday through Thursday at 9 p.m. and Saturday until 5:30 p.m. Also, the library will remain open on Sundays from 1-5 p.m.

School Department

Tuesday night Assistant Supt. of Schools William F. Clark told the School Committee that additional steps are being taken in schools to conserve fuel.

He reminded the committee that early in November the School Department began lowering thermostats, stopping fans and exhaust systems in school areas not being used after school classes, putting schools not occupied on night or unoccupied control; and turning off lights in all areas of buildings not occupied.

Effective immediately as "an infinitely more effective means of conserving fuel" there will be a reduction of ventilation in schools, Clark said.

He explained that at the present time schools in Massachusetts are set up so air is heated and exhausted from classroom areas and instructional spaces three times per hour.

This means that three times every hour outside air, whether it be a day when the temperature is 40 degrees above or 10 degrees

Park Board Shorts Christmas Lights

The Park Commission Tuesday unanimously voted to reject a selectmen's request for three days of Christmas lighting on the Common.

The vote was taken because of an expected government ban on outside lighting. The selectmen had asked that a single tree on the Common be lit.

Heating Costs Differ, Depending On Origin

In the shadow of the energy crisis, the rising price of home heating fuel looms brightly.

Winchester residents, and those in neighboring towns, are discovering that some people are paying lower or higher prices for oil than they are.

According to Nicholas Fitzgerald of Fitzgerald Fuel Co. oil companies in towns in and around Winchester are charging from 24.6 cents per gallon to 42.6 cents.

Arthur Van Cinni of the Winchester Oil Co. tells why. Some oil distributors are dealing directly with one of the "big four or five" oil companies who are also producers and are able to buy oil for 18 cents per gallon. With an eight cent mark-up, which is allowed by federal regulations, this brings the price to 26 cents per gallon.

On the other hand the retailer who gets his supply from an independent wholesale distributor is buying imported fuel and paying in the 32-cent neighborhood.

Van Cinni says he is paying about 15 cents more for fuel now than what he paid in September and his wholesale price has just about doubled over last year at this time.

Jack Coakley of the Parker Lane Winn Co. reports a rise of 20 cents during the last two months.

Thus far, the oil dealers say they have adequate supplies and suggest that customers "not panic." They report they have found customers are keeping abreast of the situation. "They realize who is reaping the profits," says Coakley.

The oil distributors report few customers are complaining. Van Cinni says, "Some appear to be grateful to be getting the fuel." They all recognize the mild weather of recent weeks "has been a blessing."

Nick Carter, customer services supervisor of the J. H. Winn Co., took part in an energy

Selectman Dunbar Shut Off

Selectman Chairman Arthur Dunbar had a bad meeting. As if it wasn't bad enough to have the town meeting cut off his speaking time (one of the few the meeting has ever done this to) he was loudly and frequently corrected by the members during discussion on clerical help for the Engineering Department.

Dunbar persisted in referring to the requested new engineering assistant as "a girl." In these days of equality, many of the members apparently took offense. But Dunbar continued. Finally TMM Ralph M. Atkinson of 20 Everell rd. asked for a point of order.

He accused Dunbar of discrimination. This didn't do any good. Each time Dunbar subsequently referred to the proposed new help as girl, a few of the men in the front rows corrected him. "Person," they yelled. Finally Dunbar got the message. "Clerical assistant," he finally said, and sat down.

Town meeting member Arthur Hewis tells The Star that this was the first time he can remember that a town meeting has voted to terminate the speaking time of a town official.

And Hewis says it is one of the few times the meeting has ever shut off anybody. One of the others it has shut off: Arthur Hewis. And he should know. He's been a meeting member since 1944.

But on Monday who should object to the meeting granting Harrison Chadwick a third extension of his speaking time? Why Arthur Hewis, that's who. The town meeting member thought three extensions was just too much.

When the meeting ignored Hewis's objection and granted the extension without further ado, Hewis got up and walked out.

During the Thursday debate on the clerical assistant, Dunbar got rambling and repetitious and when his already extended time ran out (speakers are allotted five minutes at the outset and may get extensions) he requested another five minutes. "No," roared the meeting.

Their strong feeling against letting Danbar continue may have indicated some anger over what one called "Arthur's attitude." Members later told The Star they thought Dunbar had been arrogant.

TMM Hewis made reference to all the work that is done by the Engineering Department and said, "The copying machine should be in the basement, where most of the work is done."

The Engineering Department is in the basement. The Xerox machine is on the third floor, outside the selectmen's office.

During the meeting recess last Thursday a Star reporter talked to a member of the audience who expressed amazement at the meeting's lengthy proceedings. "The smaller the amount of money the more they argue," she said.

That member was wrong though. Action on the next article--appropriation of $400 so Police Lt. John McHugh can attend the FBI Academy--passed without debate.

McHugh originally requested permission to attend the academy in 1958. Fifteen years is a long time to wait.

Town meeting members sometimes ask the "damndest" questions. After Park Commission chairman Albert MacDonnell's presentation on the work needed to repair Mill Pond Dam town meeting members asked what color the mortar would be and whether the steps would be squared or have rounded corners. (For the record: color has not been specified; edges to be rounded.)

Another member asked about the height of the dam steps. Chairman MacDonnell said two inches were removed a couple of years ago after a flash flood swept water into the cellars of stores along Main street.

Stores are now equipped with pumps for such emergencies. But the chairman reminded everyone, "Winchester is floating away. Don't forget the tide came up to the Town Hall at one time."

At Monday's session Harrison Chadwick was speaking on the need for a second proposed access road to the Kaufman & Broad site from the Greek Streets area. "I have--but maybe after tonight I won't--a number of friends in the Greek streets area," Chadwick began. Though he favored the proposal, he wanted his friends (or ex-friends) to know that their fear the development would need a second access road was well founded.

Next year when it comes time for the selectmen to begin moaning about the tax increase, John Sullivan might do well to remember his words this year at town meeting on the subject.

Proponents of the K&B proposal argued the 487 condominiums would decrease Winchester's tax rate $3. That amount isn't so much, Sullivan argued in effect. He said that if your house is assessed for $30,000 a $3 tax decrease means only a $90 a year saving and "$1,000 over the life of your home." He was saying that Winchesterites should be willing to pay $90 a year to keep the town single residential in character.

Sullivan, who doubted the K&B development would save $3, said the only way to decrease taxes is to cut the number of persons employed by the town and cut services.

Monday's debate on the K&B proposal went four hours, one of the longest sessions on a single article in years.

Running For Winchester

After Christmas, candidates wishing to run for public office may take out nomination papers. This year we hope one office everyone will keep in mind is charter commission.

For the first time in Winchester's history, the town—like it or not—will soon have a written charter as required by a new state law. One of the responsibilities of this commission will be to draw a written charter for the town, now governed under a hodge podge of by-laws and amendments.

Another responsibility of the commission will be to recommend to the voters changes in the way we govern ourselves in Winchester. The nine commission members can recommend a wide variety of changes, from abolishing the town meeting form of government to reducing the size of the Board of Selectmen. They can recommend any changes allowable under the state home rule amendment. Or the commission can recommend no changes whatsoever.

That is entirely up to the commission itself. It will present its recommendations to the voters after 10 months of public hearings and intensive study.

The job of a charter commission will be one of great responsibility; it will require long hours of work—arduous and often dull work. But the work of preparing a new charter—unless in the end rejected by the voters—will be felt for many, many years to come.

Winchester in recent years has had notoriously few candidates running for elected positions. Last year, it must be pointed out, two men were elected to the School Committee unopposed after two others withdrew from the contest after the deadline for taking out nomination papers had passed.

In addition, last year there were few contests for the 66 town meeting seats to be filled. In fact, political interest and responsibility was so low in Winchester last year that several town meeting seats went unfilled even on write-in votes and had to be filled by appointment. (In such cases the town meeting members in each precinct will caucus and fill the vacancies by appointing friends and neighbors or relatives.)

Let's hope things will be different this year, particularly in regard to charter commission. The voters at the town election in March will be asked to vote for nine commissioners at the same time they answer the question whether the town should create a charter commission. If they answer yes, then those nine persons having the largest number of votes will serve. If the electorate answers no, the votes for the commission are nullified.

A charter commission in Winchester—as dull and unassuming as it may seem—is too important to be left to election by default.

Persons from as wide a range of interests as possible should be sought to serve as commissioners in order that the charter that is drawn will reflect the great diversity in talent, training and background that is the Winchester of 1973.

We hope that at least as large a number of persons with open minds as those who believe in a particular political philosophy decide to make the run for charter commission.

The town needs to take a long careful look at how it governs itself. Fresh viewpoints are needed. New ways of doing things should be considered. Those with personal grudges and narrow points of view should be avoided.

Attempts should be made to convince as large a number of candidates as possible to run: the young, the elderly, women as well as men, laborers, professionals, politicians and housewives.

Maybe in the end we'll decide that the best kind of government for Winchester is the one we have. But at least we will know that we have arrived at that decision after careful thought and not by neglect.

Letters To The Editor

Friday's Dance: No Good Words

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Another weekend has come and gone in the privileged, attractive suburb of Winchester. And another wave of vandalism, piggery, slobbery and thoughtlessness has left the immediate area of the beautiful new high school a shambles of discarded paper, broken bottles and cases of beer.

One can only think the parents of the juniors whose dance took place last Friday night are irresponsible. Not the youngsters. They are obviously no better than little dogs (untrained). One wishes the epithets could be relegated to "the few," but the rear parking lot of the high school was crowded with undeserved cars, spoiled children and drunken, screaming animals Friday night. Perhaps there were more, better behaved youngsters, inside, dancing. But the zoo-creatures outside were numerous, also.

And so, dear parents of these wild animals, you are really doing your part to be sure the next generation improves on our sad record. If the examples of hoodlums and their molls are typical, the next generation won't suffer anything as subtle as Watergate (the massacre of civil rights, the constitution and a few burglaries). Out of these potential leaders from privileged homes will arise overt criminals and sadists who will do the rest of the job with a sledge hammer. My sincere apologies to those not involved last Friday night.

Rotondi Running

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Attention, voters and friends: I will be a candidate for the Board of Selectmen for 1974. If elected I will only serve one term, thus complying with our custom the past many years.

We have had three candidates who have served two terms. I hope and pray and in the future this custom of serving one term will be honored by all, thus allowing an opportunity for another dedicated citizen to have the honor and prestige of serving his or her town.

To all a merry Christmas and Happy New Year. Your Senior Citizen,

Eugene B. Rotondi

Bugging Small Sin, Ellsberg A Traitor

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Please put me down as still a supporter of President Nixon! Personally, I believe the Presidency is the most impossible job in the world. If any of the lamebrains that are trying to tear him down had just one of the major problems he is involved in right now they probably would be so hopelessly bogged down they would be thrown out of office forthwith.

As with everything else, we must weigh the losses and gains--the price that must be paid--and on paper or on the record Nixon's achievements far outweigh the so-called Watergate mess.

Anyone with a sense of fair play will admit that the bugging of a purely political campaign office was relatively a small sin. And as far as Ellsberg is concerned, I think he is considered a traitor by the majority of people in this country. If the country has to be on anybody's back it should be his!

If his example of patriotism is followed by every citizen of this country, all I can say is God help us.

So put me down as a supporter of our President and a complete despiser of Ellsberg and his ilk.

Comments On Chapter 766

By W. Howard Niblock
Director of Pupil Services

For many years only students who have had some categorized handicap, such as emotional disability, perceptual handicap, mental retardation or vision impairment could qualify for state or federal support to aid in their ducation.

Chapter No. 766, which becomes operative in September 1974, seeks to remove the labels from these handicaps along with such stigmas as the labels may bring and defines all students with special needs is a child who, because of temporary or more permanent adjustment difficulties or attributes arising from intellectual, sensory, emotional, or physical factors, cerebral dysfunctions, perceptual factors, or other specific learning disabilities or any combination thereof, is unable to progress effectively in a regular school program and requires special classes, instruction periods, or other special education services in order to successfully develop his individual educational potential.

Important categories of need, not previously recognized for reimbursement by the state, are now included and all students in need of help are now called students with "special needs."

Regulations to implement the law are now being issued and should be complete by next spring after public hearings and state approval.

Present guidelines call for a census to be gathered on all children between the ages of three and five who have special needs not now being met. Those identified as possibly in need of special services must be screened and evaluated by established procedures. After careful diagnosis, involving qualified educational and medical specialists, programs must be offered to meet the special needs of each child.

With existing programs and personnel, Winchester is presently serving over 300 students with diagnosed needs under existing mandates and categories.

We are sharing services to children with special needs with six other towns through a regional collaborative called SEEM. By cooperating in this way, costs are minimized and programs made more effective.

The Bureau of Special Education of the State is encouraging the formation of similar collaborative arrangements throughout the Commonwealth. The extension of services envisioned by Chapter No. 766, however laudatory, will require massive funding to permit program development and the acquisition of personnel. The law calls for practically full reimbursement to towns for all the costs of providing services to students with special needs which are above the average cost per pupil in the town.

Furthermore, such reimbursement is mandated to go directly to school committees to defray the costs of these specific programs. Heretofore, reimbursement for special education has gone to the office of the Town Treasurer and not directly to the School Committee.

Assuming that full State funding does take place, towns will feel that they can safely budget to provide these necessary and desirable services. If funding is not according to expectations, both the towns and the parents of children with special needs will be sorely disillusioned.

It should be noted that towns must include in their budgets for 1974-5 most of the costs anticipated under Chapter No. 766. Reimbursements for these expenses would not be received until November 1975.

Let There Be Light

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Congratulations to your observant editor! It seems he's caught us with our steeple lit. At least he's looking upwards, and that has to be an encouraging sign indeed. Just hope he wasn't wasting gasoline driving around Winchester at that hour, and then again at 2 a.m. (See page 4, last week's Star.)

As a matter of fact, it would have made better use of the front page to highlight those buildings lit up all night long last week. That, it seems to me, is where more precious energy is wasted, although it may not be so obvious to those of us who are asleep at 2 a.m. But since the editor's up anyway...

Jesus said: "A city set on a hill cannot be hid." This is certainly true of our steeple as well, whose lights have been turned off at 10 p.m. for the last several weeks, instead of the usual midnight, and are now off altogether. But what about less conspicuous late-night lightings lower down the hillside?

Returning from a Boston-based gathering Thursday night, I spotted lights on at least one church and several firms in the downtown area of Winchester—this at 11 p.m. And by the way, if you get up early sometime, look at the streetlights all over town which remain on long after dawning! This represents a much more serious and less facetious use of unnecessary energy.

For what it is worth we received two phone calls from Winchesterites after last week's issue. One from a woman who identified herself only as a member and complained about our lit steeple ("unpatriotic" she said); one from a non-member who complained that our steeple was now unlit (she checked it Thursday night.) "If all the other lights go off in Winchester," she said, "the lights on the Congregational steeple ought to be on as a beacon of hope to the entire community."

Had I taken either call, I simply would have suggested what Jesus mandated: "You are the light of the world." That may be the last remaining source of energy yet underdeveloped! Let's all begin using that light more effectively.

Chadwick's Record

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Congratulations to Rep. Harry Chadwick for an attendance record of over 95 percent on this year's roll calls in the House.

This kind of an attendance record indicates a real commitment to the job. It takes plenty of energy and ability to keep up with constituent problems and committee assignments and still miss so few votes.

You are fortunate to have this kind of representative in the legislature.

Correction On Train Times

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In the "Voter" column on transportation in the Nov. 29 issue there was an error in the train times for Winchester Highlands. The two trains leave Boston at 6:05 and 7:06 p.m.

The League hopes that no one has been inconvenienced by this error.

It should be noted also that the Arlington parking lot is at the junction of Massachusetts avenue and Mystic avenue, which is a continuation of Cambridge street. Rte.3.

Cash For Oil-- Poor Will Suffer

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Does anybody know what arrangements are being made in Winchester for poor folks who do not have cash to pay for home heating oil this winter?

The price is going to be in the 50-cent (per gallon) range. There are some poor families in Winchester. The oil companies want cash.

This is going to bring an awful discomfort because small children and the elderly cannot take cold homes. Did you ever try to work around your home in January and February with the temperature at 65 degrees and kids saying they are cold?

We need a plan. Surely our churches will do something. Winchester is so slow in most things I hope our town folks do not suffer too much.

Louise Chase

P.S. Fifty cents a gallon--100 gallons. Think what this amount to. Prices go up but not wages. Very unfair.

(Letters to the editor are continued on the next page.)

Letter From The Editor

No Secrecy Intended? Hmmm...

"It was inferred this was a scurrilous act. Absolutely no secrecy was intended." — Richard Kazanjian, 19 Albamont rd. at town meeting Monday night.

He was referring to a front page article in The Star last week which revealed that he and a couple of others were behind the anonymous mailing to all town meeting members of clippings from national publications outlining the legal difficulties Kaufman & Broad has had near Chicago.

The fact is, however, that The Star tracked down the source of the mailing by tracing the postal permit number on the outside of the envelopes. When we initially confronted Kazanjian with the knowledge we knew he was the source he refused to answer our questions. That was Tuesday afternoon.

Tuesday night I called him again and this time got the admission he was behind it all. Meanwhile some of those behind the mailing had taken to the telephone to call town meeting members to apologize for the "oversight" in not signing the communication.

Question: If there was no secrecy involved, why didn't Kazanjian admit that when I first called him? Instead he takes to the town meeting floor to attack The Star. I don't think in this case our credibility is at stake.

I was over at the incinerator the other day. Foreman Andy Connolly had a copy of a funnybook. "Everyone's getting into the act," he said. It was called "Popeye and Environmental Concern."

The Park Department called the other day to ask us to warn everbody to watch the ladders they have placed at all the ponds in town. Seems the kids like to throw the ladders into the water when no one is looking and very shortly, when the ice forms, those ladders might be needed for rescue.

We asked the clerk at the Park Department where we could get a picture. "Try Judkins Pond," she said. "I can see it from my office window. The kids are hanging around it."

Where? I asked. "Judkins Pond. I didn't know where it was either till I came to work here," she said. "It's across from the new high school."

Smith's Bill, Selectman Chairman Arthur Dunbar dubbed it. That's Selectman Lawrence T. Smith's bill just signed into law requiring those forms prospective jurors fill out to list a husband's occupation or description of his business.

Up until now, only a wife's business description had to be listed. Smith thought this was unfair.

He said at Monday's meeting he hopes this new legislation doesn't increase clerk Hazel Maguire's work.

We received a note that Wendell "Mannie" Mansfield and his wife, Priscilla, are confined at Heritage Hall Nursing Home, 55 Cooper st., Agawam, Mass., 01001, and would appreciate receiving a card or a call. Telephone is 1-413-8000.

That news came from Larry "Lefty" Stewart, formerly of Winchester, now teaching in West Hartford, Conn., by way of Amola P. Holbrook of 173 Pond st.

Bradford Eddy of the History Committee tells us that the writer chosen to update Winchester's history, Bruce W. (for Winchester) Stone was not chosen on the basis of his middle name.

"It's just one of those pleasant coincidences that happen to occur. We pick them for other qualities."

Eddy did trace Stone's lineage for us. Seems the man for whom the town is named, William P. Winchester, is an ancestor of Stone. William P. came here from Watertown. He gave a donation of $3,000.

"They were so pleased they changed the name from Waterfield to Winchester," Mr. Eddy says. Anyway, William P. had two sons. Stone is descended from one of them.

Frank Holland is a member of two boards, Retirement and Finance. The Board of Selectmen thinks he should choose one or the other. "The issue is larger than the legal ruling," says Selectman John J. Sullivan

Frank's brother, Bill, is a member of Planning. Town meeting member Arthur Hewis thinks because Bill's real estate firm was the agent responsible for renting 7 Swan rd. to town counsel Douglas Randall there is a conflict of some kind.

Hewis asks how can Randall, as the town's lawyer, defend Bill if there is ever any legal problem over the question of Holland's residency—Reading or Winchester.

The house the Randalls will be living in is owned by Samuel B. Kirkwood, who has been president of American University in Beirut. The house reportedly rents for $450 a month.

Jack Moss, owner of land off Cambridge street, called a couple of weeks ago to tell us he is now a Winchester resident, at 388 Cambridge st. A Woburn lawyer, he used to live in Belmont. He has been vacationing in Florida during the crucial town meeting vote on his property.

"It won't make any difference whether I'm there or not," he said. Moss added that the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court has scheduled for Jan. 7 arguments in the case of Sarah Moss vs. Town of Winchester, one of several cases on the land pending.

Admiration For An Amazing Lady

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is with a very deep sense of gratitude that I wish to publicly extend my most sincere thanks to a very grand and amazing Winchester lady.

Carlene Samoiloff is no stranger to most Winchester residents but being a relative newcomer, I have only recently had the pleasure and privilege of watching this truly remarkable woman in action.

Limited as my information and exposure has been thus far, I am able to discern that Mrs. Samoiloff's involvement, interest and enthusiasm for the promotion of and exposure to the arts to the town of Winchester, especially its youth, encompasses much more than a few years.

Presently, Mrs. Samoiloff is directing the Winchester Community Theater in its production of "Noah's Ark" which will be presented at McCall Junior High on Dec. 14 at 3:30 p.m. and on Dec. 15 at 2 p.m.

From the production's beginnings in September I have witnessed a succession of seemingly unnecessary stumbling blocks being strewn in Mrs. Samoiloff's path and have watched with increasing admiration her determination to keep going.

Why, one may ask, does a charming lady in her eighth decade choose to spend long hours rehearsing 42 youngsters, most of them at an age where their natural unexpendable energy finds them slithering under or leaping over auditorium seats, racing down aisles, bouncing off walls and missing cues?

Why the long hours of painting scenery, gathering materials and costumes, arranging for lighting, music, tickets, advertising etc., etc., etc.? It has to be for the money, right? Wrong!

Contrary to popular belief, this is not a big profit-making venture. I for one wish that it were, for as long as Mrs. Samoiloff cannot get the complete support of the town, which can only beneift from this labor of love, why not a few pieces of silver for all the blood, sweat and tears?

Please, don't anyone say, "She doesn't have to do it." Just be thankful she does.

Nancy M. Warnock
236 Mystic Valley pkwy.

See 'Noah's Ark'

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My husband and I were part of one night's very appreciative audience at the recent Unitarian Players' production of "The Man Who Came To Dinner." We wonder if it's too much to expect the same type of audience at a production for children.

When the curtain goes up on "Noah's Ark" this weekend, we'd love to see mothers and fathers taking time from this busy holiday season to accompany their young children to McCall auditorium.

Mrs. Richard T. Cooper
4 Wedge Pond rd.

Historical Curator

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I should like to clarify a statement that appeared in the article about me in the Nov. 22 edition of The Star. Although I was honored to be referred to as the "first" curator of the Winchester Historical Society, I am afraid I cannot claim the title.

The position of curator was created in 1942 and ably filled by a dedicated member of the society, Miss Jean MacLellan, who held the position for three years. Miss Clara R. Russell was then appointed and served until Miss MacLellan was reappointed in 1951. She served until her death in 1963. Since that time the position has remained open. No doubt that is where the confusion rested.

As the newly appointed curator I hope, in conjunction with others of the Historical Society, to wade through the many fine historically valuable documents, books and photographs in our possession. We are currently attempting to simplify a past cataloging system to make materials more available in the future.

Again we urge anyone, member or not, who enjoys reading old newspapers and reminiscing over old photos to join us for our Wednesday night cataloging sessions 7-9 in the Downs Room of the library. Bring along your stories of Winchester past. We would love to hear them.

Edward L. Galvin
Curator, Historical Society

Edith Maynard Retires, Thanks Winchester Friends

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Edith Maynard of Taunton retired this year as sales director of the state agency for the blind and would like to thank the many ladies of Winchester for the cooperation they gave her in her work.

"It has been a pleasure and privilege to have worked with them," she recently wrote to me. " We received the warmest hospitality each year and I always enjoyed the time I spent with them.

"May the holiday season be a happy one for all of you."

No replacement for Mrs. Maynard has been found.

Mrs. Steward Brine
7 Laurel Hill ln.

The People Care

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Although Halloween has been long forgotten in the flurry of this holiday season, it is not too late to thank the people of Winchester for their support of the trick-or-treat for Unicef program.

Special thanks go to the families who gave out boxes in their school neighborhoods and to the children who took the Unicef collection boxes with them on Halloween. Many church groups also collected for Unicef and the grand total was over $900.

This money will go a long way towards helping needy children around the world and is tangible evidence that the people of Winchester care for others less fortunate.

Mrs. Lewis B. Thompson
48 Samoset rd.

Elder Citizen Tips His Hat

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like at this time to give my thanks and heartfelt appreciation to the members of the cast and the personnel for their very good performance of the "Good Old Days" and for directing it to the senior citizens of Winchester. A wonderful gesture and very thoughtful of them.

And now in closing a tip of the hat to Rev. Father Hoy, to director Art Rooney, and to those fine members of the Kiwanis Club who donated 200 tickets for the senior citizens.

I speak for all the senior citizens of Winchester when I say good luck to the CYO and may God bless you all.

Bill Keogh

Thanks Given

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We, the wardrobe people, want to thank some 300 young people for their cooperation and help backstage. We have worked four years with these teenagers and every year they renew our faith in how great they are.

The show, "The Good Old Days," dedicated to the senior citizens of our town proved there is no generation gap. Everyone was enriched by the time, talent and energy these teenagers shared with us.

Thanks, kids. We love yuh.

Energy-Conserving Steps Are Taken

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My wife is taking the following steps to conserve energy, and we have a gas furnace:

1. Lowered the central heating thermostat to 66 degrees by day and 60 degrees by night.
2. Stopped using the drier. The clothes dry very quickly on the line in the basement and provide welcome humidity.
3. Lowered the water heater thermostat to about 120 degrees.
4. Put dishwater on short wash cycle. This saves one wash and two rinse cycles.
5. Uses warm wash and cold rinse for the clothes washer.

Aberjona Advertiser

The Winchester Star has introduced to the town an advertising circular called The Aberjona Advertiser.

The tabloid size circular is sent to the homes of residents who do not subscribe to The Winchester Star. It is also available free of charge at stores in the town.

The circular contains classified and display advertising from Winchester and area merchants and businessmen. Rates are available on request.

Published every Wednesday, advertising copy deadline is Monday at 1 p.m.

The following are the places where The Aberjona Advertiser may be obtained.

Star Stationary, Winchester Drug, Winchester Hobby Shop, Winslow Potpourri, Woolworth's, Main Street Food Shop, Topsy Turvy, The News Shop, D'Agostino's Deli, Craddock's Apothecary, P.J. Giles and The Winchester Star.

Driving Tip

Police Chief Edward F. Bowler says that before starting out on a winter trip, be prepared for severe weather conditions by carrying a set of reinforced tire chains in the trunk of your car.

Tests by the National Safety Council have shown that they provide four to seven times the traction of regular tires on snow and ice he says.

Mental Health Center Cites New Developments

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following information about Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Assn. has been prepared by Mary Welch, Chief of Administrative Services.

The Board of Directors of Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association has two major functions: to provide mental health services through the Mental Health Center and to provide support for those services.

Working together with the area board the two boards have set their goal to achieve comprehensive community mental health services for all citizens in the five town Mystic Valley Area: Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Winchester and Woburn. When this goal is achieved every citizen of the area will be able to get top quality emergency, inpatient, outpatient and after-care at a cost they can afford, and will not be lost in the recesses of a remote institution.

Uppermost in many people's minds is the question of cost. How can Mystic Valley do this? What will it cost? Where are the funds coming from?

Quite a number of things are occurring that do not attract attention. State hospitals which are enormously expensive are being phased out as patients recover and are released. These cases are followed up in after-care at Mystic Valley as part of its outpatient service.

As the state hospitals are phased out, state funds for hospital professional salaries are diverted to the community mental health centers so that an increasing load of patients can be helped by a larger professional staff. Local tax payers should know that the State Department of Mental Health, under the leadership of the new Commissioner, Dr. William Goldman, is committed to decentralizing services to the local level and to making every dollar count for patient therapy rather than custodial care.

Already this fall Mystic Valley has gained six staff positions from Metropolitan State Hospital to enable it to increase adult outpatient care at both the Lexington and Choate Hospital facilities.

Not only is the state phasing out institutions, but it is also, through the new Office for Children as well as the Department of Education, reaching out to meet the special needs of children. Through contracts for special programs awarded to Mystic Valley services have been extended to a group of autistic children.

Through the services of a Vista volunteer and an Emergency Employment Act staff member as well as a United Community Services grant, Mystic Valley has been able to provide a variety of services and coordination of programs for the elderly.

Thanks to two foundation grants and anticipated funding from the Division of Family and Children's Services an adolescent residence will soon be able to meet the needs of alienated adolescent girls. Thanks to the Division of Drug Rehabilitation, an area drug coordinator at Mystic Valley works with all the self-help groups and individuals in the drug rehabilitation field in our five town area.

Thanks to state funding there are three clinical nursery schools for retarded children and now there is a residence located in Woburn for retarded adults which is coordinated with an activity center to meet their needs and make them more self sufficient.

In cooperation with Mystic Valley, Choate Hospital will soon be providing inpatient and emergency psychiatric care and it is hoped that very shortly thereafter day care will be available for those who can leave the hospital yet cannot manage the entire day alone.

Just two weeks ago the legislature passed mandatory legislation that requires all health insurance policies to cover outpatient as well as inpatient care to become effective by January, 1976. As insurance companies gradually adapt their coverage to meet this requirement during the next two years, "third party" payments will increase to meet a much larger proportion of the cost of outpatient care at Mystic Valley.

In addition, negotiations with the Department of Welfare are progressing so that there will be some reimbursement to mental health centers for the care of welfare patients, a cost now born indirectly by the towns.

What then are the town taxes appropriated each year for the support of Mystic Valley now paying for? First, they cover the administrative, planning and clerical support costs. Secondly, they cover the office and building expenses of the Lexington facility. The Choate facility is provided by the Choate Hospital trustees;

Thirdly, they cover the additional hours of professional time to meet the increased demand for outpatient services. Fourthly, they partially cover the cost of psychiatric and psychological consultation to the five local school systems, visiting nurses, day care centers and nursery schools. Expansion of services into new programs is done only when outside funds are made available by contract or grant for specific and restricted purposes.

Local citizens may be pleased to realize that the calibre of care and service at Mystic Valley has attracted additional foundation and state funding for additional services and will, it is hoped, continue to do so. As new services are provided, Mystic Valley will strive to keep citizens informed and aware.

Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association is and has been the advocate for better mental health in the area as well as the provider and will continue to do its best to help meet citizen needs.

GEORGE L. ANDERSON of 28 Mayflower rd. has completed the assessment administration course sponsored by the Department of Corporations and Taxation in cooperation with the Institute for Governmental Services of the University of Massachusetts. His academic achievement was second highest in a class of 54.

MacDonald Commended

Navy Lt. Comm. Michael J. MacDonald 3rd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. MacDonald Jr. of 92 Bacon st., was commended as a crew member of the guided missile frigate U.S.S. Dale for his efforts as part of the U. S. Sixth Fleet task force in the Mediterranean during the latest Middle East crisis.

The powerful force stood ready to evacuate American citizens from danger areas and to back up our government's diplomats as they helped negotiate a cease fire.

A 1962 graduate of Bates College, Lewiston, Me., MacDonald joined the Navy in October 1962.

Children Are Exploring Books

Every Saturday since Oct. 6 children armed with art materials have been creatively exploring books at the Winchester Public Library. The junior branch of the library has offered two five-week sessions of "Creative Experiences with Books."

The first session, for children in grades first through third, ended Nov. 3. The second session, for children in grades four through six, is in its fourth week.

The program was designed to help children obtain a better understanding of the books they read. During each class a new book is introduced to the children who then explore the book through the creation of an art project. A display of finished projects as well as a list of the books and projects used in the program is available at the junior library.

The originator and teacher is Marianne Roberto of 32 Ginn rd. A graduate of the class of 1969 at Winchester High Sch... Miss Roberto attends Massachusetts ...ge of Art, where she is a senior majoring in art education.

Catherine Morrone

Miss Marrone, Mr. Frazzo To Wed In Spring

A graduate of Winchester High School, Miss Marrone is a recent graduate of Chandler School for Women. She is employed with New York Life Insurance Co. in Burlington.

Mr. Frasso, a graduate of Somerville High School, is employed with General Rental Co. in West Newton.

A spring wedding is planned.

Christmas Eve Community Sing

The Winchester Fortnightly will sponsor a Christmas Eve community sing on the Common this year for the 28th time.

Mrs. Mary Witham, director of music and organist for the Unitarian Church, will lead the carol singing.

Frederick J. Murray, director of the Winchester High School band, will direct the instrumental music. Both have been in charge of this program for many years.

All Winchester families may take part beginning at 7 p.m. around the tree in the Common.

Al-Anon

Al-Anon, an organization for adults, generally spouses of alcoholics, meets Friday nights at 8:30 at the Parish of the Epiphany Church.

Dedham Ceremony

Deborah Powers Weds Francis J. Polcari

In a setting of white pom-pom chrysanthemums at St. Mary's Church, Dedham, Deborah Elizabeth Powers and Francis John Polcari were married Nov. 18 at 3 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Roger Powers of Humarock, formerly of Dedham. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Polcari of Winchester and Humarock.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white matte satin empire gown featuring small white pearls at the neckline and trimming the sleeves and a full length train. A matte satin covered headband with matching pearls held an elbow-length, double-teir toule veil. She carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Following the rainbow color scheme, bridesmaids were similarly dressed in emerald green, red and peacock blue and carried nosegays of mixed flowers. Bridesmaids were Diane Popsuj of Hudson, Suzanne Kelleher of Marshfield and Cherry Paquette of Winchester.

John C. Polcari of Humarock was best man. Ushers included the bride's brothers, Francis and John Powers; Robert McDonough of Humarock, James Mulvee of Marshfield, and Robert Ferrara of West Orange, N.J.

The bride is a 1968 graduate of Dedham High School. She attended Salem State College and is now teaching at Silver Lake High School, Kingston.

The bridegroom was educated at Boston College High School and Holy Cross College. He is owner of the Bridgwaye Inn, Marshfield.

The couple is living in Marshfield

Mrs. Francis John Polcari

Catherine J. Lord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lord of Winchester, became the bride of Keith Alan Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Sullivan of Woburn, at St. Charles Church, Woburn, recently. The noon ceremony was performed by Rev. James O'Rourke.

A garden reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown and veil and carried a bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath.

Mrs. Faith Bennett of Ohio was maid of honor. Nicholas Paleologos was best man. Ushers included the bridegroom's brother, Mark O. Sullivan and Frederick M. Zollo.

The bride was graduated from Marycliff Academy and Elmire College. Mr. Sullivan is a graduate of Woburn High School.

Mrs. Douglas H. Storer

Miss McLean Becomes Bride Of Douglas Harlan Storer

On Dec. 1 Deborah Reed McLean and Douglas Harlan Storer were united in marriage at the Winchester Unitarian Church. Dr. Robert A. Storer and Rev. Jack Zoerheide jointly performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John D McLean of 20 Seneca rd. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Storer of Bristol, N.H.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an ivory crepe satin gown featuring Alencon lace appliqued on English net bodice, a portrait neckline, long slim sleeves, empire waist and gathered crepe satin long skirt which fell ionto a chapel length train. A short mantilla was held by a Juliet cap, and she carried white roses, stephanotis, German baby's breath, variegated greens and ivy.

Mrs. Benjamin Forester of Colt's Neck, N.J., was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a royal blue Banlon gown featuring a Nehru collar, watteau back and needlepoint belt. She carried a long stemmed red rose and heather in an arm bouquet.

Dressed the same as the honor attendant were bridesmaids Mrs. John A. McLean of Johannesburg, South Africa; Karen Storer and Katherine Storer, both of Bristol, N.H.; Donna McLean of Winchester; Mrs. Daniel Wiggin of Marblehead, and Bobbie Gladding of Lexington, Pa.

John G. Storer of Lloyd, Fla., was best man. Ushers included Phillip A. Storer of Bristol, N.H., John A.C. McLean of Johannesburg, South Africa; Benjamin Forester of Colt's Neck, N.J., David C. McLean of Marina Del Rey, Calif.; Kyle Kucharski of Seabrook, N.H., Jeffrey Benson of Dover, N.H., and Bill Crampton of Bristol, N.H.

The bride is a graduate of Briarcliff College and the University of New Hampshire. The bridegroom, who is director of recreation and parks for Charles County, Maryland, attended the University of New Hampshire. He is a member of Fraternity Kappa Sigma.

The couple will live in Maryland.

Miss Monahan To Wed Mr. Charles

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Monahan of Kennebunk, Me., announce the engagement of their daughter, Catherine Ann, to Jeffrey Markham Charles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton P. Charles of Winchester.

Miss Monahan studied in Rennes, France, and will graduate from the University of Maine at Orono in June. She is a member of All Maine Women and Delta Zeta Sorority.

Mr. Charles attended MCI and Wentworth Institute. He is associated with Anderson Little Co.

A June wedding is planned.

Pyne Named Hood Manager

Charles H. Pyne of Winchester has been named general manager of the newly formulated foods division of H. P. Hood, Inc. The new division supplies specialized dairy-based ingredients to food processors, distillers, confectioners and beverage manufacturers nationally.

Pyne joined Hood in 1965 as manager of research laboratories and became director of corporate research and development last June. Formerly he was group leader of nutritional product development for Mead-Johnson Co., Evansville, Ind.

He is a graduate of the University of Rhode Island and completed his master's degree program at Cornell University.

He earned his Ph.D. in biochemistry at the University of Minnesota.

Pyne is chairman of the Institute of Food Technology for the northeastern United States. He is a Winchester town meeting member and was a finance committee member from 1967 and 1970.

Married to the former Kathlene Ruane of Ithaca, N. Y., he is the father of three children.

Feeney Named

Sgt. Richard J. Feeney, 45, of 39 Nelson st., was named a lieutenant with the Metropolitan District Police recently.

Lt. Feeney received his appointment as an MDC patrolman in 1955, and was promoted to sergeant in 1967.

Recipient of several commendations for outstanding performance of duty in the past 10 years, he is in charge of the scuba diving unit and heads the bomb disposal unit, having trained and qualified for bomb disposal work at the Redstone, Alabama, bomb center.

His new assignment will be at the Old Colony MDC police station, South Boston. He is married and the father of nine children.

Choate Plays Sheriff Role

Marietta College freshman Jon Choate of Winchester played the role of the deputy sheriff in the Ohio College's recent American premier production of "The Golden Gate," a drama by Icelandic playwright David Stefansson.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. David F. Choate Jr., 15 Hillside ave., Choate appeared in a number of dramatic productions at Winchester High School where he was also sports director of WHSR-FM and a member of the varsity tennis squad.

At Marietta he broadcasts the soccer games.

Miss Caputo Paints Mural

A freshman at Butera School of Art, Miss Caputo is one of four Boston art school students who transformed sheets of glass along arcades into a collection of large stained-glass windows.

The mural is entitled "Christmas Is Sharing" and shows gestures of friendship extended during the holiday season.

Vrotsos Exhibits

Water color, acrylic and oil paintings by Mrs. Susan P. Vrotsos of 58 Swan rd. are on exhibit during December at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Brighton.

A graduate of Wellesley College, Mrs. Vrotsos has studied painting, sculpture and print-making at the Art Student's League of New York, the Art Institute of Chicago, DeCordova Museum in Lincoln and the Studio of George Dergalis.

A member of the Copley Society of Boston and the Winchester Art Association, she has been demonstrating water color techniques to Winchester school children as a member of the Winchester Resource Panel.

Scholarship Foundation Dips Into Principal To Meet Needs

For the second consecutive year the Winchester Scholarship Foundation had to dip into the foundation's principal in order to meet the increased demand for scholarship aid.

This report came from treasurer Richard D. Ingersoll at the annual meeting of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation held recently at the public library. Mrs. Robert G. Ingraham Jr. of 18 Ardley pl. presided.

Mrs. Austin Broadhurst of 18 Glen rd., chairman of the scholarship committee, told other members that in 1973 scholarship assistance totalled $11,900 to 32 seniors in the June Winchester High School graduation class; also to one Northeast Regional Vocational School graduate.

Also, in 1973, assistance was given for the first time to two seniors who attended Winchester High School under the auspices of the "A Better Chance" program.

Mrs. Kilmer McCully, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the slate of officers and elected committee members for 1974, as follows:

Mrs. Robert G. Ingraham Jr., chairman; John F. Sexton vice-chairman; Mrs. George W. Hayden Jr., secretary; Richard D. Ingersoll, treasurer.

Trustees: William J. Speers, chairman, Hazen Ayer, Harris S. Richardson Jr. scholarship committee: Mrs. Austin Broadhurst, chairman, Harry L. Parker, Mrs. Robert Grainger, Robert J. Costello, Vincent Larocco, ex-officio.

Nominating committee: Frederick W. McCormack, chairman; Mrs. John J. Williams, Mrs. Anthony F. Pelletier.

Publicity: Mrs. Roberta Levinson. Individual members of the general Committee: Paul Amico, Mrs. Robert Bigelow; Mrs. Helen Chaput, Mrs. Robert Crockett, Grant Curtis, Mrs. William Fallon and John J. Sullivan.

Speers and Mrs. Ingraham emphasized the purpose of the scholarship foundation to grant financial aid to Winchester students who show financial need and serious intent to continue their education in any area of academic or vocational training.

Grant Curtis, member of the general committee and financial aid officer at Tufts University, reported Winchester is unique in the amount of aid it has provided to its young people. "I know of no other similar community in the country having a scholarship foundation that operates as successfully as the Winchester Scholarship Foundation. I am proud to be a part of it."

Clark To Retire Next February

Effective Feb. 28, William F. Clark, assistant superintendent of administrative services for Winchester's schools, will retire.

Clark's letter of resignation was read to the School Committee on Tuesday night.

He said his decision to retire was influenced by his illness of last spring and finalized recently after inquiries for his services as an educational consultant have begun to increase.

In the school administration business for the past 35 years, Clark said he has been doing considerable education consulting on a continuing basis.

Thanking Clark for his work with the Winchester School Department, Mrs. Harriet Dieterich, chairman of the School Committee, said "Your sense of humor and steadfast good sense has carried us through" many difficulties.

Crashed

Operator Flees Stolen Auto After Accident

A car stolen a few minutes earlier on Washington street Saturday night hit two parked cars before the operator fled through the Fells Reservation.

One of the cars hit, parked at 20 Hillcrest pkwy., belonged to Selectman William Chapman Jr. The car was demolished.

Police at 11 p.m. Saturday received a report from Robert Callahan, 467 Washington st., that his car was missing. A few minutes later the car struck a parked car on Fairmount st. (between Washington st. and Highland ave.)

A moment later it struck the rear of Chapman's car parked at his home. The suspect reportedly fled from the car into the woods carrying a six-pack of beer, which he dropped in the woods.

The windshield of the stolen car was smashed, leading police to believe the suspect was injured. Area hospitals were notified but without results.

MDC police dogs joined Winchester police in searching the woods, also without results.

On Sunday night, police arrested three Malden youths on stolen car charges after police stopped a taxi cab in which they were riding.

Police said the cab had been stolen in Malden. They said they became suspicious after reports were received the car was spotted at a number of drugstores in town.

One of the arrested was a juvenile. The other two were 17 years of age.

In another stolen car case, a 23 year old Lowell man was arrested Thursday morning on Waterfield road on a charge of intent to steal a car.

Officers Kevin Mawn and Thomas Faulkner took Charles Weller into custody after a report was received of a suspicious person looking over cars.

Officer Richard W. Fisher shot a racoon at 7 Chester st. last Thursday afternoon. He said the animal was having convulsions.

A car stolen last Thursday evening from 29 Wedgemere ave. was recovered next morning in Somerville.

On Saturday police received reports of a bottle thrown through the windshield of a car at 68 Johnson rd.; an unsuccessful attempt to steal a truck parked at Blair Terminals, 45 Holton st.

On Friday, a car was reported stolen from the driveway of 62 Church st.; a break reported at 7 Plymouth rd. where a cellar door was broken but nothing missing.

Tony "Moose" Bellino congratulates Rosanne Gangi on her winning $275 in last Thursday's state lottery drawing at the Sons of Italy on Swanton st. (Photo by Eric Weiss)

Early this week there were three breaking and entering instances with little or nothing reported stolen.

A general ransacking of residences at 46 Yale st. and 693 Washington st. were reported by occupants. In both cases nothing appeared to be missing and obvious valuables and money were not taken. Also, an intruder was seen leaving 3 Alhamont rd. without incident. Police investigation showed that entrance in all cases was prying open windows or doors. The telephone at the Washington st. location was pulled from the wall.

An accident occurred at the intersection of Brookside ave. and Washington st. Monday at 10:10 a.m. Vehicle operators, Podgoro C. Iannacci of Stoneham and Dorothy M. Hanson of North Reading, were not injured.

Windows were reported broken at the Noonan and Muraco Schools, and on Monday at 4:17 p.m. teenagers were reported on the roof of Wyman school.

Also an outside coke machine at Turner's Sunoco Station was broken into. Tonic was stolen. Money was not taken.

Police Chief Gives Winter Driving Tips

Police Chief Edward F. Bowler feels that now is a good time to adopt a positive mental attitude toward winter driving problems. He urges drivers to heed the annual recommendations of the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards. These include:

Guard against overconfidence. Don't become cocksure about your winter driving skills. Don't neglect common sense practices. Reduce your speed; increase following distances; use extra caution at intersections; anticipate situations that call for reduced speed; anticipate all turning movements in advance; use extra care in signalling drivers who seem to be following too closely.

Don't let winter weather deprive you of your ability to keep moving, to see clearly, and to stop safely. Make sure defrosters, windshield wipers and wiper blades are capable of doing heavy duty in cleaning slush or wet snow off your windshield.

Replenish non-freeze fluid in your windshield washers.

Check brakes and the tire treads which transmit traction and braking power to the road surface where it does its work. On packed snow or ice, maintain driving momentum to keep from "getting stuck." A good set of snow tires will help, but for severe conditions, have a set of reinforced tire chains. Don't overlook the possibility of being caught in a traffic tie-up caused by someone else. Keep your gas tank reasonably full at all times. Check your exhaust system, your battery, your emergency equipment. Avoide unnecessary travel during severe storms or whenever heavy snow is predicted.

Awards

Pack 310 enjoyed the Animal Rescue League presentation on pet care and habits by John Shean and his two assistants, Steven Mandel and Richard Knapp, at their recent Pack meeting.

Awards were given to Ernest Ferraro, Robert Costa, for their Webelo Artist Pins. Steven Pettingolo received his athlete and citizen pins. Robert Costa received his artist and athlete pins and Vincent Batista was awarded his citizen pin.

Rules For Fire-Safe Holidays

The following are rules for a "happy and fire safe holiday season" from Lt. Joseph M. Connolly of the Winchester Fire Department.

Never use cotton batting or absorbant cotton in any form, nor straw, dry vines, leaves, trees, shrubbery and foam plastic materials.

All decorations should be of flame-retardant material that will not support combustion readily, such as metal, glass or vinyl products.

Never use a live natural tree in any form in a place of assembly.

Trees and decorations should be located a safe distance from electrical fixtures and heating units, and should be placed away from exits so that a standing tree or a tree if knocked down will not block the way out in case of fire.

Crepe paper must be fireproof and should be used flat on walls only, except three dimensional fire-proof crepe paper wreaths on wire coat hangers, may be used in a limited quantity. All wreaths may be used if a label is on the wreath showing it is a fireproofed. Individual projects for children may require the use of fireproof crepe paper but they must be taken home or disposed of the same day.

Aerosol snow (spray in cans) may be used if the can is clearly marked non-flammable. Styrofoam balls no larger than three inches may be used.

Use only Underwriters Lab. (UL) approved bulbs and wiring, for lighting. No electric fixtures may be allowed on aluminum trees. Use only indirect lighting.

No pine cones or feathers may be used unless dipped in a fire retardant liquid.

Oil base paints may be used for projets if not located in areas where otherwise restricted. Water base and fire retardant paints are recommended where possible to use.

Never hang anything from lights, or string garland or rope like decorations across the rooms in any manner. Garland or other fire retardant decorations may be strung flat on the wall.

Dispose of gift wrappings promptly and safely. Place them in a metal covered trash container until disposed of.

May you and your families have a happy and fire safe holiday season.

Voke Students Build Home

Students at the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School are building a house, the first new house-building project at the school and termed an integral part of vocational training.

The project not only serves students in a training capacity but also gives district residents an opportunity to have a quality new home constructed well below the cost on the open market.

As a result of a random drawing last spring, Mr. and Mrs. William Cole of Chelsea were selected from among several applicants to have a house built by Northeast students.

The house is being built on the Cole's land in Stoneham at a cost of about $55,000. The finished product is expected to be worth considerably more on the open market.

Applicants for the house-building projects must own their own land, have the financial ability to purchase all materials as the project progresses, and comply with certain other requirements as listed by the shops coordinating the construction.

The Cole home, an eight-room ranch-style dwelling, will be completed and be ready for occupancy in June. Meanwhile applications will be accepted up to Jan. 2 to have the program ready for next fall.

The names of all qualified applicants will be placed together and one will be drawn as the winner. The drawing will be held at the Regional School Committee meeting on Jan. 10.

Builders

Voke School Takes Step

A step toward a more equitable plan of cost-sharing of the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School was taken at a meeting with local finance officers at the school recently.

Members of the District School Committee discussed with the local officials an apportionment plan based on each of the 12-member community's use of facilities in the regular day, extended day and evening programs.

If agreed, this type of apportionment change would have to be approved by a two-thirds majority of the member communities by vote of their local governments.

Committee Vice Chairman Robert M. McCarthy of Chelsea chaired the sub-committee meeting exploring the proposed change in the apportionment formula. Presently the member communities are assessed on the number of pupils each has enrolled in the day program without regard for extended day or evening use.

Attending the meeting were Sally W. Kincaid of the Winchester Finance Committee, and Gerard P. Donahoe, District School Committee member.

Building Permits

The Winchester Building Committee issued five building permits for the week ending Dec. 7 as follows:

Alterations: 120 Main st., new dwelling: 52 Sunset rd., reshingling: 22 Chestnut st., 90-94 Middlesex st., and 15 Squanto rd.

T. Sevigny Is Promoted

Thomas E. Sevigny of 10 Sargent rd. has been promoted to assistant auditor in the auditing division of the State Street Bank and Trust Company, a wholly owned subsidiary of State Street Boston Financial Corporation.

A native of Winchester, Sevigny is a graduate of St. Thomas Aquinas High School and Boston College. He joined the bank in 1965 and is presently assigned to the auditing division where he will continue in his new official capacity.

Sevigny served six years in the U. S. Army Reserves and is a member of the Bank Officers Association.

League To Study Revenue Sharing

The League of Women Voters of Massachusetts will monitor the use of revenue sharing funds at the state level as part of a national monitoring study of the $30 billion federal revenue sharing program, state league president Florence Rubin announced recently.

The league is one of a coalition of four national citizens' groups which has received a $500,000 grant from the Clark Foundation of New York for the first year of the two-year study.

Cities and states to be studied were selected on the basis of geographic distribution, overall population, minority population, existence of developments relating to revenue sharing, availability of monitors and other factors.

One of the goals is to increase public knowledge of revenue sharing and budgetary processes of local and state government.

Nevins Birth

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Nevins Jr. of 19 Mt. Pleasant st. announce the birth of their third child, second son, Jeremy Walter, born Dec. 2 at Winchester Hospital. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Nevins of Hollywood, Fla., and Mrs. Walter Koch of Allentown, Pa.

APPOINTED - Robert F. Haley Sr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Haley of Washington st., recently was named store manager of the Waltham Star Market. A resident of Billerica he studies at Northeastern University.

Elderly Groups Kiwanis Focus On Enriching Aged

Members of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) met recently with the Winchester Kiwanis Club in conjunction with the club's major emphasis program "Enriching the Lives of the Aging."

Ehrick Kingson and Henry Peluso of RSVP, and Charlie York of the Winchester Senior Service Corp., presented the program about senior citizens.

The objective of RSVP is to motivate men and women over 60 to make their manpower and experience available to any group that may have need of their services.

In the Eastern Middlesex County area, there are 400 such people serving 11 cities and towns in schools, libraries, hospitals, senior centers, day care centers, tutoring and visiting shut-ins. RSVP representatives showed the film "What You Do Speaks So Loud" portraying the activeness of senior citizens after retirement. This film and the RSVP members are available to the public at any time.

York explained the Winchester Service Corp. is principally involved in programs of meals, transportation, entertainment, vacations, hospital visitations, and housing.

He specifically mentioned the warm and enthusiastic reception by the town's aging to the Winchester Kiwanis Club's purchase of 200 tickets to the recent CYO Show which were distributed to the Winchester senior citizens.

The Winchester Senior Service Corp. and RSVP are actively seeking volunteers and opportunity to publicize their program.

At the same meeting, the Wilmington Kiwanis Club presented the Winchester club with the Lt. Governor's Home Club Banner, recognizing James Loftus as the present Lt. Governor of Division 17.

Also in attendance were several members of the Woburn club, plus Larry Cooper and Larry Byron of the Woburn High School Kiwanis Key Club. Byron is one of 12 members of the Kiwanis Key Club International Trustees.

Mrs. Mullen Is Elected In Pct. 6

Mrs. Shirley R. Mullen of 21 Chesterford rd., widow of the late Leonard Mullen who was town counsel, was elected a town meeting member for precinct 6. Her unanimous election fills the vacancy left by Paul F. Amico of 18 Kirk st. who recently resigned.

Jessie Salter of Prec. 2 was also appointed to fill a vacancy.

Selectmen Reject Employees' Request For Christmas Eve Off

Winchester's selectmen met briefly for their weekly meeting Monday prior to the special town meeting and took the following action:

--Sent to town comptroller for checking returned bill of $62 for special police detail originally sent to Porter & Desmond Movers.

The town originally sent this bill to Porter & Desmond, which returned it to the town without explanation. The special police detail was required during the moving of a house on Holton street.

--Approved for inclusion in the warrant for the annual March town meeting an item from the Design and Architectural review Committee to act on its proposal for a permanent design commission.

--Requested police chief to advise on possibility of transfering an officer from traffic duty at new lights at high school to Swanton and Washington sts.

--Received communication from Finance Committee advising approval of transfer of $2,000 for rebuilding shed at town dump on Swanton street into new dog pound. Originally $4,500 had been appropriated. Additional $2,000 was required because of unforseen expenses.

--Rejected a request from 30 Town Hall employees requesting a half holiday on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve.

Selectman Lawrence Smith said the board, if it approved the request, would be under "a moral obligation" to provide compensatory benefits for those town employees required to work during the time the others would have had off.

He added: "I don't see how we an support something that is going to be the basis of (collective) bargaining for new contracts in a few weeks."

Selectman Vito Giarrizzo suggested town department heads use their discretion Christmas Eve in allowing workers to leave while keeping offices running. He said New Year's Eve is traditionally a full holiday. No vote was taken on the request.

Wrestling Meet

Steve DeMaio of 8 Laurel Hill la. is part of Bowdoin College's varsity wrestling team which entertained Connecticut, Amherst and University of Main-Orono on Dec. 8 in a quadrangular meet that opened the Polar Bears' home schedule.

DeMaio, a sophomore, won the 150 pound crown in last year's quadrangular meet.

For Bicentennial

Town Could Establish Flag Museum, Historic Walks, Other Projects

By Cathy Fallon

Imagination and energy, vision and a will to do are the key ingredients needed to realize the many different opportunities that the word "bicentennial" evokes to many different people.

This became evident at a recent public hearing held by the Historical Commission to determine the will of the town in establishing bicentennial programs. These would focus locally on 1975, the 125th anniversary of the incorporation of the Town of Winchester, and regionally in 1976, the 200th birthday of the country.

Bicentennial could mean the establishment of a flag museum and research center sponsored by the Flag Heritage Foundation, of which Whitney Smith, local vexillologist, (flag expert) is director. Such an interpretive center, presenting the story and meaning of flags in graphic form, could attract students and scholars to Winchester and be the focal point of state, national and international attention to the town.

Bicentennial could mean the creation of "Winchester Walk," a combination of bicycle and footpaths throughout the town, with descriptive guidebooks and suitable historic markings.

It could mean a detailed architectural analysis of the residential gems which stud the town of Winchester and span nearly the entire history of American architecture. Included in this project could be a special bicentennial house tour for which plans are already being made under the direction of Calvin Cramer and Trudy Kirkendall. The tour is a logical follow up of the documentation of historical sites and monuments undertaken by the commission earlier this year.

Bicentennial could be a culling of the town's archives to bring to life personalities and incidents from the past in an anecdotal pamphlet to popularize local history. It could also be the occasion to find suitable housing for the archives.

Bicentennial could mean spending a pleasant Sunday afternoon afloat a barge named "Winchester," drawn by mules along a restored portion of the Middlesex Canal in North Woburn. The state department of Public Works clearing a half-mile portion of the canal adjacent to the Baldwin mansion, original home of Laommi Baldwin, often called the "father of U.S. civil engineering." The house is near the birthplace of Benjamin Thompson, better known as Count Rumford, well known physicist and inventor.

Bicentennial could involve students in collecting oral history from senior citizens, preserving it on tape and making films or filmstrips of local history to be shared with other generations of students. It could also mean music, art and essay contests, a townwide dramatic pageant, a commemorative arboretum, a colonial ball and participation in a countywide bicentennial parade. The possibilities are endless.

The necessity to establish priorities of what Winchester was, what it is and what is deserving of commemoration provided lively discussion at the recent public hearing.

According to Don Brown, chairman of the Historical Commission, "it is the task of the commission to determine a program that can be voted at the annual town meeting for planning bicentennial activities. By Jan. 28, proposals for matching fund grants from the state must have been submitteed; $50,000 is available on the matching grant basis to communities which make proposals that are of historic value and which can make a lasting impact on the community. Grant recipients will be announced on or about March 1.

• Inter-town proposals, such as restoration of a portion of the Middlesex Canal, could be eligible for "significant" state funding if the nine cities and towns along the original canal route apply for it, Borwn said.

James Marchant, husband of a descendant of George Felt, one of the original settlers in Waterfield prior to 1638, proposed a geneological tracing of the descendants of the original settlers. Marchant presently "sleeps in the shadow" of Robert Whitney, coordinator of the town's centennial a century ago, and former owner of his home at 5 Mystic ave.

According to Marchant, Whitney hosted "the greatest colonial party the town ever witnessed" as part of its centennial observation in 1876. Marchant proposed the idea of holding a colonial ball at Town Hall.

Smith said that "while details of our revolutionary participation need to be researched and deserve some commemoration, we must realize that Winchester didn't play a major role in the revolution."

Bicentennial thoughts are taking residents back in time. The view above shows a shot of lumber coming out of a lock along The Middlesex Canal.

Smith appeared to be more interested in developing a history of the town's architectural development and suitably marking homes where important citizens have lived. "The history of Winchester is the history of its growth as a residential community. Our architecture speaks more strongly than our militia."

Brown reminded the group, "The criteria before us that any project undertaken must have historic significance and lasting value to the town." Parades, pageants and balls would apparently not fill the bill for receiving state funds.

It was the consensus of the meeting that today's Winchester citizens are heirs to a community which it should get to know better via a multi- media approach.

Frank Curtis stated, "I feel that these ideas of developing an architectural trail, or reconstructing the canal and of establishing bicycle paths are of such importance that we should go ahead and vote to support them ourselves, even if no state funds are forthcoming."

In addition to funds, a coordinator for bicentennial planning is needed, he said. Such a coordinator could manage and direct programs of town committees, service organizations, churches and inviduals who may wish to contribute ideas, time and funding to bicentennial preparations. Fulltime positions for such coordinators are now being advertised and sought in several other communities.

Deadline for submitting an article for the March town meeting seeking funds to continue the work of the Historical Commission and to establish a bicentennial coordinator position is Wednesday, Jan. 2 at 7:30 p.m.

Echoing the need to organize quickly, Brown said, "Time is short. We must begin to move on developing a structure that is practical, educational and historical that has lasting residual effects for the town. To start a fire you need people to fan it."

Persons interested in fanning the sparks of bicentennial fire that have been ignited may contact Don Brown of 166 Highland ave. to volunteer ideas and services.

Mystic Valley Election Today

Anyone 14 years of age or older who lives or works in the Winchester area may vote today for election of council members to the Mystic Valley area Office For Children council.

Election hours are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Woburn Chamber of Commerce, 25-B Montvale ave.; 5-9 p.m. St. Charles auditorium.

Write-in votes are permitted.

Advent Season Art Show On Through January

The second of the series of a continuing art show is in progress through Jan. 8 in the Vinton room of the First Congregational Church.

The theme of this grouping will be the Advent season and the artist's conception of this period of expectation. Now on display are the multi-material wall hangings by Mariette Guertz Fierens of Holland and the original plaster castings used for ornamental sculpture for the National Cathedral and many others done by world famous Arcangelo Cascieri.

Other works will be added to the exhibit during the week.

Reddy Teddy Plays Saturday

The Winchester musical group Reddy Teddy will play Saturday night at St. Mary's Hall in Winchester.

The 8-11 p.m. dance is sponsored by St. Mary's CYO, which benefits from the proceeds.

Reddy Teddy has played with top name recording artists Aerosmith and Rasberries.

St. Eulalia Hockey Report

The Saints led 2-0 on early goals by John Lehane and Steve Keohane in recent play of the bantam division of St. Eulalia's hockey as the Saints tied Belmont 3-3 and the pee wee Lions tied Newton 6-6.

The Saints' early lead vanished quickly as Belmont, sensing a letdown, kept the pressure on to make it 3-2, Belmont, halfway through the final period. Pressure was applied from this point on by the Saints as Steve Keohane blasted his second goal to tie the score 3-3.

The Pee Wee Lions scored three quick goals in less than a minute and a half before Newton got untracked. The Lions were never headed in the contest, but overconfidence was the biggest obstacle to overcome, despite the defense that Newton was displaying.

Leading scorer in the game was Jack Collins with three goals. Goals by Rich Arnold and Bob Staples completed the scoring. Team record to date: 2-3-2. The team has been undefeated in the last four starts. Next opponent: Belmont at Belmont Hill.

Mrs. Furr Has Another Award

Mrs. Marie Furr of Winchester added another trophy to her collection when she won last Saturday's mixed-up doubles tennis tournament at the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center.

This is the fourth tournament Mrs. Furr has won since they began on a weekly basis the last Saturday of September. She did not compete in every tournament.

John Koslowski, president of the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center, indicates that mixed-up doubles tourneys, where every player plays for five one-half hour periods with a different partner and different opponents, will continue each Saturday evening of the winter indoor tennis season.

Boots 'N' Blades

Applications for Second Skating Session Begin

Boots'N'Blades children's figure skating program, now midway through its first 10-week session, is accepting pupils for the second 10-week session.

Co-chairpersons Mrs. Lane McGovern and Mrs. Daniel Lisberger emphasize the program is a continuing one for session I students. Those resubscribing, who have partially completed skills requirements for various step levels and ribbon awards, will continue with their groups and instruction uninterrupted.

Following last year's format, new groups will be formed to welcome all newcomers from the "first time on ice" beginner to advanced levels.

Sponsored by Winchester Wellesley Club, the lessons are under the direction of teaching professional, Joyce Winship, U.S. Double Silver Medallist.

In addition to four professional instructors, the staff includes five assistant skating teachers. All instructors are U.S.F.S.A. trained.

Special features of the program include small ability-grouped classes, constant evaluation, frequent regrouping as skills improve, and ribbons awarded for levels passed (using U.FS.F.S.A. guidelines) or certificates of achievement.

The second ten week session commences Jan. 12 and concludes March 16. Meeting on consecutive Saturday mornings, senior classes are from 10:50-11:55 (girls and boys, grades 4-8). Junior classes are from 11:55-1 (girls and boys, grades 1-3).

For children new to the program who are interested in registering for session II, applications are available at the Winchester Sport Shop. For further inquiry, contact Mrs. Daniel Lisberger, 8 Worthen rd.

Receives Letter

Deborah J. Duffy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Duffy of 7 Standish la., recently received a field hockey letter from Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me.

Squirts Start Hot, End In 5 To 5 Tie

St. Eulalia Squirts came out to start the first period on a hot note as they outskated the Minute Men and piled up a 4-0 lead in weekend play.

Lexington finished the scoring to end the first period 4-1 before an exuberant crowd Saturday night at U.S.A. rink.

During the opening minutes of the second period Steve Tucci scored his second goal of the evening to finish the scoring for the Lions. However Lexington had other thoughts as they answered back with a goal midway through the middle stanza to make it 5-2 Lions.

In the third period it was all Lexington as they dominated play throughout the period and put in three goals, the last of which came with 38 seconds left to play to give the Minute Men a much deserved 5-5 tie.

Lexington was sporting a 28 in 4 record. Other goal scorers for the Squirt Lions were Larry Maida and Billy Ferry. Honorable mention to Jim Kenny with two assists on goals by Steve Tucci.

Chris Hoffman was outstanding in nets while John Kisil with a breakaway goal had a very strong game. Next opponent: North Medford, at U.S.A. tonight 7:10 p.m.

Brennan Plays For Dartmouth

John J. Brennan of 36 Central st., a sophomore at Dartmouth College, is playing center for the varsity hockey team.

In its first three games, Dartmouth has defeated Boston University and Harvard College and suffered a loss to the University of New Hampshire.

Jack was high scorer of the Winchester High School team in the 1971-72 season and was chosen for the Middlesex League all-star team.

At Dartmouth he plays Lacrosse and intends to major in economics.

Booters Name Co-Captains

The Sachem soccer team has elected Tom Brennan and Peter Frongillo to be their leaders for the 1974 season.

Both boys did a great deal to contribute to the 12-4 record for this season and were particularly helpful with assists while also doing some scoring themselves. Both are also hockey players, with Brennan performing as a center and Frongillo guarding the nets.

Mites Defeat Medford, 5-1

The Winchester Youth Hockey Mites downed Medford 5 to 1 as Bobby DiVincenzo lead the team with a take charge hat trick over the weekend.

Bobby Engel was next when he came from behind the net with a Scotty Stillman assist to put one behind a surprised goalie.

Scotty Stillman, skating well throughtout, converted a Billy Eaton pass right out in front for goal number four. Bobby DiVincenzo finished the scoring in the second period when he combined with Brian Regan again, this time from traffic out in front, in the lower left hand corner.

Standouts were Sean O'Connor and Scotty Binding on offense and Andy Guleserian along with Danny Sullivan on defense.

Duplicate Bridge

BY BRIDGETTE

With the Hallowe'en and pre-Thanksgiving Wednesdays behind us, a normal complement of 20 tables settled down to play.

Section A saw Marie and Joe Cincotta tops North-South, Joe Salani and Dick Sullivan as decisively in first place East-West.

North-South

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cincotta, 96½
Guy Mingolelli and Robert Haskell, 93
Ida Finlay and Adaline Duryea, 90½
Ellen Schofield and William Duryea, 90

East-West

Joseph Salani and Richard Sullivan, 102½
Carl Galante and Carl Fisher, 95½
Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Cade, 92½
Howard Wittet and Charles Choate, 90½
Madalyn Walworth and Anne Galpin, 87

Section B received a pleasant surprise as Ethel Keohane, long-time secretary of the Eastern Massachusetts Bridge Association, and Jackie Dawson, who with spouse, Dennis, runs The Bridge Studio in Burlington, joined the group.

Clear winners North-South were Donna Redpath and Miggs Root with a 70 percent game while in the East-West direction Pat and Bob Wassmuth really squeaked one out in first place, a tie for second place right on their heels, Bob handling the director's chores as well. Congratulations!

North-South

Donna Redpath and Miggs Root, 153
Ethel Keohane and Jackie Dawson, 129½
Paul Vatter and Lewis Ward, 119½
Paul Portanova and Stephen Linehan, 115
Leo and Frank Gonsalves, 114½
Joyce Wolf and Edward Sullivan, 112

East-West

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wassmuth, 129
Ann Oppenheimer and Walter Juda. 128
Mr. and Mrs. William Frey, 128
Edmund Joyce and Demil Pamir, 122½
Anthony Ferdinand and Charles Dyjak, 119
Norman Houlding and Charles Lynch 110

What contract would your system reach with the North-South cards?

An imaginative South at one table solved the problem with a descriptive bid. After the normal 1H by South and 1S from North, South jumped to 3H, showing a six-card heart suit and about 16 points. And this information, plus his own distributional 17 points, encouraged North, after checking for Aces, to bid 6H.

The traveler shows the field divided; seven pairs played the hand, all in hearts, all making six, four stopping at 4H and three bidding the slam.

The Bowman Real Estate Challenge Bowl and the Open Pairs Championship held on Dec. 5 were won by Lee and Joe Salani. Paul Vatter and Lewis Ward posted a fine game in second place.

As usual, a good field turned out for the event with two large sections in play.

Pairs coming in above average were:

SECTION A

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Salani, 110½
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Enge, 100½
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lynch, 94
Ruby White and Anne Murray, 89
Stephen Haseltine and Carl Galante, 87
Nancy Atkinson and Donna Redpath, 86½
Ralph Atkinson and Clarence Woodward, 86
Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Cade, 85½

Section B

Lewis Ward and Paul Vatter, 109
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sanderson, 105
Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Root, 98½
Mr. and Mrs. William Duryea, 98
Dr. and Mrs. Robert Blackler, 94
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wassmuth, 94
Guy Mingolelli and Robert Haskell, 91½
Richard Sullivan and Carl Galante, Jr., 91½
Anne Galpin and Madalyn Walworth, 85

Recreation Starts Hockey For Girls

Last Saturday afternoon the Winchester Recreation Department started an indoor gym hockey program for girls at the Lynch Junior High School.

"The boys are having all the fun," a girl told Recreation Director Donald Spinney at the Recreation Office recently.

So the Recreation Department formed a girls' hockey league. The league plays Saturday afternoons at 5 p.m. immediately following the boy's hockey league, which has 150 boys playing.

Spinney announced that due to the success of this type of program the Recreation Department will conduct a similar program at McCall Junior High School as soon as personnel and equipment are arranged.

Miss DiPanfilo Back In Town For Tourney

Brenda DiPanfilo, coach of the University of Colorado field hockey team and former Winchester resident, was in Winchester recently for the national field hockey tournament held at Manchester Field.

Miss DiPanfilo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank DiPanfilo of Woburn, was accompanied by three members of the University of Colorado team who were among the 300 who participated.

Miss DiPanfilo was graduated from Boston University-Sargents and taught physical education at Wakefield High School for four years and at Chelmsford High School for one year.

She obtained a fellowship to the Colorado university and received a master's degree in physical sciences. She has been teaching and coaching at the university and also within the Colorado school system for the past four years.

Duplicate Bridge

North-South, first, Priscilla Willard and Tom Walsh; second, Elbridge Davis and Bob Haskell; third, Etta Podrachik and Paul Portanova.

East-West, first, Mr. and Mrs. Al Heyman; second, Joyce Wolf and Ed Sullivan; third, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thoren.

Library Movies

December 15-16

Saturday morning's film program is for school age children. It begins at 10. One Sunday afternoon the family program is held in the Story Hour Room of the junior library at 2:30.

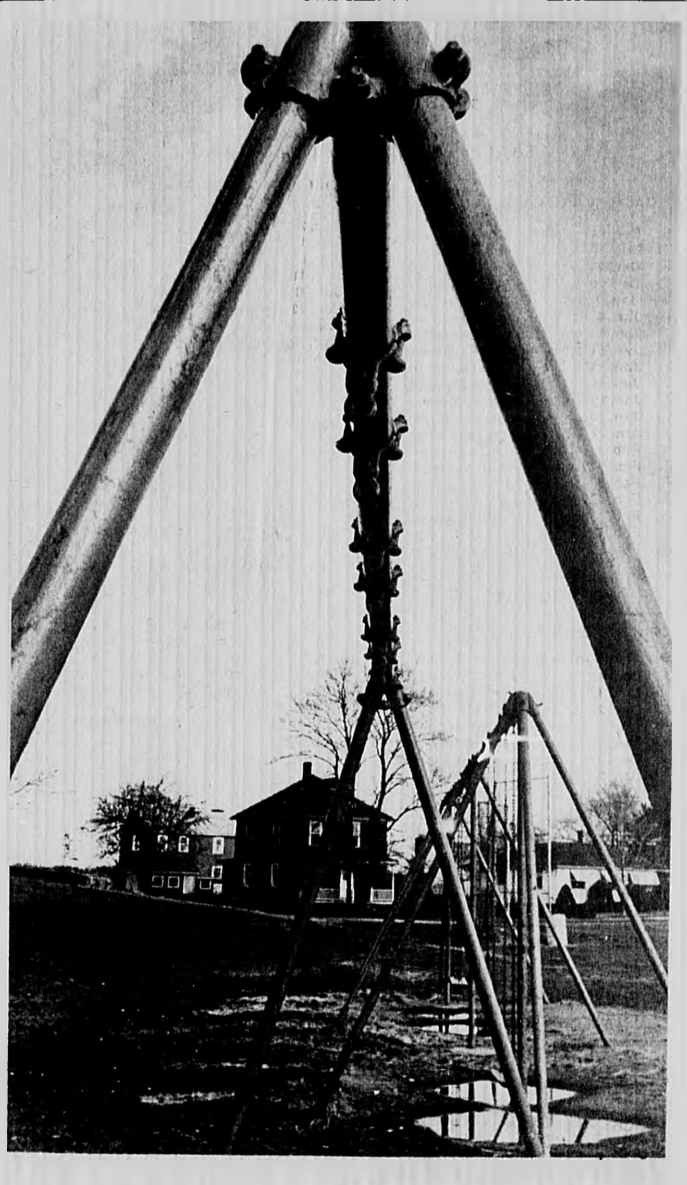

It is requested that at least one adult accompany each group of children.

"The Little Drummer Boy." Aaron, after his misfortunes in the desert, follows the crowd with his injured lamb to the manager to pray for a miracle. Narrated by Greer Garson with the Vienna Choir Boys providing background music.

"Faroun, The Littel Clown." Toys and other familiar household objects come to life and put on a circus for Faroun's entertainment.

On Dean's List

Mrs. Robert J. Dawkins Jr., the former Laurian Allison of 42 Water st., has been named to the dean's list for the spring semester at the University of Rhode Island. She was graduated in June from the College of Liberal Arts with a major in psychology.

New Bowling League Forms For Elderly

Starting on Friday, Jan. 4 Winchester senior citizens will have free bus service to the Brunswick Bowlaway in Burlington to participate in a new and different senior citizen bowling league.

Special rates, free shoes and bus service could bring out a large group for this program, Donald Spinney, coordinator of senior citizen recreational activities said, adding that coffee and doughnuts will be available.

Reservations for the weekly bowling trip may be made at the Recreation Office or by calling 729-4514.

Senior Citizens Get Break

Effective immediately, senior citizens will be admitted to all MDC skating rinks for 10 cents per weekday session. After 7 p.m. and on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays the fee will be 25 cents.

The rate reduction will be granted to all who show senior citizen MBTA identification cards.

A previously adopted MDC policy permitted senior citizens a financial break at golf courses and allows them exclusive use of swimming pools at certain times.

To accommodate golfers who cannot get to Cape Cod courses during the gasoline shortage, nine holes of the Ponkapoag golf course on Rte. 138, Canton, will be kept open.

Senior service line telephone hours are now Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. 729-2111.

Sachems Slug Tanners, 4-0

The Middlesex League held a hockey jamboree at Hockeytown in Melrose last week with four sets of teams playing games which were two 12-minute periods in length. Winchester tallied four times while shutting out the Woburn Tanners for the most decisive win of the evening.

Woburn supporters point out they were without two of their better players for the scrimmage. But it would seem doubtful if they could have won even if they were at top strength. Their defense led by footballer Captain Nick Macinatti was severly tested by the free wheeling Sachems, who pounded over 20 shots at hard trying rookie goalie John Bennett. He made some nice saves, but four shots whistled past him.

On the other hand, the Tanner offense was anemic as they could only muster nine shots, none of which eluded Peter Frongillo in the Winchester cage. They were entirely inept in the second period when they did not have a single shot on the Sachem net minder.

Two sensational saves by goalie Bennett of Woburn was all that prevented Winchester from a 4-0 first period lead as he killed off great chances by Jim McCormack and Richie Jacobs.

Although every Sachem was skating fast and pressing the attach, the full scoring power was concentrated in the line of Tom Brennan, Charlie Evans and Mark Siegfriedt. Evans opened the scoring with less than two minutes of elapsed time, on a pass from Siegfriedt, the latter tipped in a combination pass from Evans and Tom Brennan to account for the other first period score.

Last period goals were by Siegfriedt, the first on a pass from Evans, and the other on a solo dash. The final goal was on a second effort, with Bennett stopping the initial blast only to have Mark pop the puck back over his shoulder.

It was a big win. The Winchester crew will be working hard in Saturday night's league opener at Woburn to prove that it was no mistake.

The summary:

WINCHESTER — G. Frongillo; LD, Pierce; RD, Miga; C. Brennan; LW, Evans; RW, Siegfriedt. Spares — Brenton, Martignetti, Sandford, Pronski, O'Connell, Coakley, McCormack, Jacobs, Murphy, and Kiveney.

WOBURN — G. Bennett; LD; Macinanti; RD, Regan; C, Connolly; LW, Labriola; RW, MacDonald. Spares — Nowell, Abreu, Meuse, Cirone, Carlson, Cronan, Pruyne, McLean, Hunt, Bertochi, and Phalon.

Score by Periods —

Winchester	2	2—4

Shots on Goal —

Winchester	11	10—21
Woburn	9	0—9

—SCORING—

FIRST PERIOD — (Win.) 1:58 Evans - Siegfriedt); (Win.) 9:36 Siegfriedt (Brennan - Evans).

SECOND PERIOD — (Win.) 7:49 Siegfriedt (Evans); (Win.)8:23 Siegfriedt (unass).

For Sachems

Fall Winter Sports Schedule

By John F. Parrell

Since the curtain fell on fall sports on Thanksgiving Day, the students at Winchester High School have been busily involved in preparing for the opening of the winter sports schedules.

There will be the usual hockey, basketball, wrestling and track for the boys. The girls will have basketball and gymnastics. There may even be a few girls involved in track; and swimming, still not in officially sponsored status, will be available for boys.

The hoop and hockey seasons open tomorrow evening. Both teams will be playing away from home. Coach Vandy French and his hoopsters will play at Sharon, with the Sharon team coming here on Tuesday to open the Sachem home schedule.

Tapoff time for the junior varsity games will be at 6:30. The varsity game follows at eight o'clock. The Winchester team has both height and experience enough and figures to finish in the upper bracket of the Middlesex League standings.

The boys have worked hard in preparation for the season's opener, and have held scrimmages with Everett, of the strong Greater Boston League and Framingham South, a Bay State League contender. The Sachems, under the co-leadership of Mike Heffernan and Tim Porter, outscored both opposing groups.

They have one more scrimmage carded with Arlington of the Suburban League to ready them for the two meetings with Sharon.

Coach Ted Kelley's puck chasers will try to prove that last week's scrimmage with Woburn was no fluke when they journey to the Tanners' home surface for a 7 o'clock game Saturday night.

Woburn will be waiting to spring an upset with left winger Nick D'Arcangelo and defense man Dave Ethridge returning to action for the league opener. This could make a difference. But if Winchester plays as well as in the scrimmage it could be a long cold evening for the home team.

The Kelleymen will have their first home game of the campaign next Wednesday night at the Universal Sports Arena. Faceoff time with the Lexington Minutemen will be at 7 o'clock. If the Sachems could notch wins in these league openers they would be off to a flying start in their 18 game league schedule.

To Meet

The Annual Meeting of Winchester National Bank will be held in its banking rooms at 7 Church Street, Winchester, Massachusetts at 4:00 P.M. on January 15, 1974.

Anonymous Letters

The Star recently has received a number of anonymous letters to the editor. To be eligible for publications, all letters to the editor must be signed and include the writer's address.

CYO Dance

St. Eulalia's CYO will hold a Christmas dance tomorrow from 8 to 11 p.m. featuring "The Techniques" from the Surf, Nantasket.

Letter Given

Forrest Abbott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Abbott of 10 Norwood st., was awarded a letter in soccer and Jeffrey M. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Davis of 50 Johnson rd. a varsity letter in football at the annual fall sports award banquet at Vermont Academy on Dec. 4.

St. Mary's Wins 2-1; In First

St. Mary's CYO hockey team won its second game in as many weeks Saturday and moved into a first place tie with Dorchester.

Goals by Bill McLean and Don Allard and superior goaltending by Cliff Falla gave St. Mary's the 2-1 victory over Allston.

Allard scored on a 35 foot slap shot at 7:34 of the first period with the assist going to Mike Jeannette.

McLean made it 2-0 with his second goal of the season at 3:48 of the second period, Kevin O'Neil assisting.

Allston got on the board with 1:47 left to play but St. Mary's didn't allow a shot on goal for the rest of the game.

St. Mary's has now gone 16 regular season games without a loss in a record that dates back to January, 1972.

St. Mary's faces Dorchester Sunday at 1:00 p.m. at Boston College in a game that will decide sole possession of first place.

Town Meeting

Dam Repairs, Update Of History Approved

The Dec. 6 special town meeting approved spending more than $43,000 as it considered, on its opening session, six of eight articles on the warrant.

After little discussion, town meeting members voted to reprint and write a history of the town and to make repairs to Mill Pond Dam; and after considerable debate and a standing vote approved $2,784 for a clerical assistant to be shared by the Engineering Department and the Planning Board

Following a presentation by Bradford U. Eddy of the History Committee, town meeting appropriated $31,085 to pay for reprinting the Chapman History of Winchester and writing a second volume which would continue where Chapman left off up to the present.

Bruce Winchester Stone, a native of Lexington and resident of Stoneham, will be author of the second volume. Stone, who can trace his family back to Col. William Winchester for whom the town is named, is a graduate of Duke University, where he received a master's degree. He is a teaching fellow at Boston University and is working toward his doctorate in history.

Berry L. Reece Jr. of 40 Foxcroft rd. itemized production costs, including a seven percent inflationary factor, and $8,000 for author's fee for volume two.

The two volumes are expected to be ready for sale as the 1975 Christmas season approaches and in time for the national bicentennial in 1976.

William Ryerson, town meeting member, asked how much the books will cost purchasers and how much the town will get back. Reece said the cost is not known but that the entire amount appropriated would be returned to the town. "There is no profit margin."

Ryerson said that according to his figuring the books will have to be sold at $7. He said if production costs are more than expected the History Committee will need more money.

On voice vote, and support by the Finance Committee and the Board of Selectmen, the article passed unanimously.

The concrete steps at the Mill Pond Dam, which have deterioriated over the past couple of years, are scheduled to be repaired in the spring.

On the recommendation of Albert MacDonnell, park commissioner, and with the support of the Finance Committee and the Board of Selectmen, town meeting members appropriated $9,500 for dam repairs.

Cavities and depressions in the falls area of the dam, which town meeting members saw by color slides, will have a new surface covering of concrete.

In some place, according to MacDonnell, as much as two inches has been washed out of the dam's stone steps. Damage to the side steps leading to the dam area will also be revamped.

MacDonnell noted there would be no change to the dam height.

Town meeting members with good memories reminded the assembly that two inches had been taken off the dam steps in the falls area about two years ago.

MacDonnell assured the meeting that all bidders, in addition to Anchor Gunite, Inc., of Malden which gave preliminary estimates for the job, will have equal opportunity for examination for the work.

After almost an hour's discussion and standing vote (107 or 109 to 68), town meeting voted to appropriate $2,784 for a clerical assistant to be shared between the Engineering Dept. (65 percent) and the Planning Board (35 percent.)

(The favorable votes were counted twice with differing results, but because the "no" votes were so far behind, the moderator decided not to take a third count.)

Board of Selectman Chairman Arthur Dunbar, who introduced Article 3 to the meeting and pointed out that the Engineering Dept. is under the jurisdiction of Selectmen, explained that the town engineer has "no clerical assistance."

Dunbar described a situation where engineers are typing their own letters and a filing condition that "is almost chaotic." He said that 1,000 phone calls, in a month's time, which were directed to the town engineer, could have been handled by a clerical assistant.

Dunbar explained the clerical assistant would receive an annual salary of $6,755, an S-6 position.

Town meeting member Mrs. Lenore Frazier commended town engineer John Ciarcia as she pointed to long hours of overtime he gives to the town. She called it wasteful to pay a professional to answer phone calls which can be handled by a trained assistant.

Other town meeting members offered opinions. Richard Sampson called the situation "a management problem." Philip Chen offered a motion to amend the article to read "temporary " clerical assistance. He said a later town meeting could determine if there was a need to make the position permanent. This motion did not pass.

William Ryerson asked if clerical help from other departments could be shuffled around to fill the needs of the Engineering Department. Robert Joyce pointed specifically to the Highway Department.

At this stage, Dunbar, who had been returning to the rostrum in between each question or comment to argue in favor of the article and saying that an additional person was needed, refused to argue any more. The main motion passed.

Town Meeting readily and unanimously favored appropriating $400 for travel expense by Lt. John P. McHugh to attend the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va.

"It's a tremendous honor to the town to have a member of its Police Department selected," Dunbar told the town meeting.

McHugh, who applied to the Academy in 1958, is a veteran police officer with 24 years on the department. He has been a lieutenant for 10 years. He attends Boston College.

Article 6, covering an amendment to the town's new by-law, passed unanimously with its won amendment assuring that no buildings or parts of buildings can have penthouses or additionally constructed atticsto be used for living purposes.

Atty. Moss Indicted By Grand Jury

A Middlesex County grand jury indicted two men, one of them from Winchester, on conflict-of-interest charges Tuesday in connection with land purchases by the Woburn Redevelopment Authority for the Woburn Industrial Park.

Four counts of conflict of interest were brought against J. Vincent DiRago of Woburn, chairman of the redevelopment authority, and three counts against Atty. Jack J. Moss who lives on Cambridge street and maintains a law office in Woburn.

The indictments against Moss allege that while he was a partner with DiRago in the Federal Realty Trust and DiRago was a Woburn city employee, Moss acted as agent or attorney for three other realty trusts that did business with the redevelopment authority.

★ Energy

seminar this week entitled "Industrial Survival."

Sponsored by the Associated Industries of Massachusetts with assistance from the Arthur D. Little Co., the seminar focused on the economics of the energy crisis, fuel alternatives and other related topics.

Carter reports that Winn has appointed an energy conservation task force to look to ways "to conserve as much of the energy ourselves that will be available to the plant as possible."

The objective of the group, chaired by Carter and composed of plant personnel, is to keep the plant open and producing with minimum use of oil and electricity. Besides lowering thermostats and using less light, they are covering some windows and looking for additional ways to conserve.

David Choate, employee relations manager for Winn, acknowledges a lay-off of about 16 part-time persons this week involving about four hours per day per person. "This is not due to the energy crisis in any way," he says. "It is due to general economic conditions; a readjustment due to customer changes and requirements."

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL

Jack Hunter, assistant administrator of the Winchester Hospital, reports the hospital has also appointed an energy committee to point out ways to conserve fuel.

So far the hospital is dealing with the situation in six ways. They are watching thermostats and keeping them at 60 degrees in non-patient areas not occupied and 68 degrees when occupied.

They are reducing lights in areas where lighting is not essential, such as corridors after visiting hours.

They are turning off television sets not being watched. There will be no Christmas lighting in the hospital this year at all.

Incandescent lamps are being converted to fluorescent lighting as rapidly as possible. Operating room ventilating systems are turned off when inactive; and they are encouraging car pooling among employees.

OTHER BUSINESSES

A limited canvass of other segments of the business community reveals that energy and its conservation is very much in the forefront.

The Winchester Trust Co. is keeping thermostats at 66-68 degrees during the days and reducing to about 40 degrees at night and during weekends. James Oliver, president of the bank, says employees are cooperating. "They (employees) are reducing heat in their homes and are getting used to lower heat in other places."

The bank has begun to eliminate lighting outside the main building after 10 p.m. To reduce lighting earlier would not allow proper visibility of the night deposit. The bank is curtailing exterior lighting at the branch.

James Connelly of the Winchester Camera reports turning down the heat and making fewer trips with the car. Also, instead of keeping his advertising light on until 11 p.m., he is turning it off at 8. He says "no Christmas lights this year."

O'Neil's Pharmacy says they will have a tree in their window this year, but no lights. Besides lowering the thermostat, they have changed the filters in the heating system, reports Jim McInerny.

Nancy Neira, operator at Fred's Beauty Shop, says "We don't put on lights until we absolutely need them." Concerning hair dryers, she says, the shop personnel always follow a system of not heating up a cold dryer when there is a warm one vacant.

Charles Hill, postmaster, says the Post Office and mails "have not been affected by the energy crisis yet," other than turning down the thermostat and shutting off lights not needed. The same deliveries to and from the Woburn Post Office, clearing center for all Winchester mail, are in effect, he says.

According to Mike Velida of the Winchester Roofing Co., many local residents are having their fireplaces cleaned and repaired in an effort to have an additional source of heat.

Velida is disturbed because, in his opinion, people "are being taken" by a competitor from a neighboring town who uses "a stick mop or vacuum cleaner" to clean chimneys which he claims is improper. He says the competitor, who has been featured on television news recently, charges $39, considerably less than does Velida, who contends that the only way to clean a chimney is to enter it and use a steel brush.

Insurance FACTS

BY FRANK MAHONEY

Despite much controversy to the contrary, it turns out that most insurance claims can be worked out quickly, and without serious argument. In fire or burglary or steam boiler insurance, or in comprehensive or collision on an auto, the two questions, "was it covered" and "how much was it worth", can be asked and answered quite easily. At the very most, it may be necessary to ask an appraiser to decide on the correct value. Unfortunately, the very few claims which are more difficult to settle are the ones which are remembered!

You'll have no difficulty selling your home if you call FRANCIS X. MAHONEY INSURANCE AGENCY, 914 Mass. Ave., 643-3600 first with your listing. Your home will receive extensive exposure through our frequent advertising in the Boston papers and maximum coverage through our membership in MLS. We also handle apartment and home rentals and have a management service. Open: 9-5 Mon-Fri; by app't Sat.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by James A. Duffy, Margaret M. Duffy, Albert J. Duffy and Whitney C. J. Duffy, to Arthur L. Rondina dated October 7, 1966, recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 11230 Page 88, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described on Friday, December 28, 1973 at ten thirty o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

"a certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in Winchester, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, being Lot A on "Plan of Land Winchester, Mass., dated November 30, 1951, Howard F. Ambrose, Reg. Land Surveyor", recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 7852 Page 286, bounded and described as follows:

Southeasterly by Highland Avenue, 121.03 feet;

Northeasterly by Stone Avenue, 142.33 feet;

Northwesterly by Lot B on said plan, 56.50 feet;

Southwesterly by said Lot B, 26 feet;

Northwesterly again by said Lot B, 62.10 feet;

Southerly by land of Charles and Pasqualina Vozzella, 103.29 feet. Containing 14,769 square feet of land, more or less.

Hereby conveying the same premises conveyed to the said Albert J. Duffy et als by Arthur L. Rondina et als by deed dated October 7, 1966, recorded with said Deeds. Subject to a $21,000 first mortgage given by the said Albert J. Duffy et als to Winchester Savings Bank, dated October 7, 1966, recorded with said Deeds. Also, insofar as the same are, or can by agreement of the parties, be made a part of the realty, all of the following articles now or hereafter on the above described premises or used therewith:

portable or sectional building, bathroom, plumbing, heating, lighting, refrigerating, icemaking, ventilating and air-conditioning apparatus and equipment; garbage incinerators and receptacles; elevators and elevator machinery; boilers; stoves; tanks; motors; sprinkler and fire extinguishing systems; door bell and alarm systems; window shades; screens; awnings; screen doors; storm and other detachable windows and doors; mantels; built-in cases; counters; closets; chests of drawers and mirrors; trees, hardy shrubs and perennial flowers, and other fixtures whether or not included in the foregoing enumeration".

The said premises will be sold subject to said Winchester Savings Bank mortgage, all unpaid taxes, tax titles, assessments or other municipal liens. $1,000 in cash will be required to be paid at the time and place of the sale and the balance to be paid within 10 days from the date of the sale at Room 5, 7 Church Street, Winchester, Massachusetts. Other particulars made known at the time of the sale.

mortgagee and
present holder

At the First District Court of Eastern Middlesex, holden at Malden, within the County of Middlesex, for civil business, on the twenty-seventh day of November A.D., 1973.

Exchange Street Auto Body, a corporation organized and having a usual place of business at 155 Exchange Street, Malden, Massachusetts, in the County of Middlesex, Plaintiff, vs. John P. Storella, Jr., 38 Holton Street, Winchester, Massachusetts in the County of Middlesex, Defendant.

This is an action of Contract to recover SIX HUNDRED SEVENTY THREE dollars and ONE cents, alleged to be due to the Plaintiff from the Defendant on the fourteenth day of June A.D., 1973, as set forth in the Plaintiff's writ of that date.

And it appearing to the Court, by the suggestion of the Plaintiff, and on inspection of the officer's return on the plaintiff's writ, — that the officer was unable to find the Defendant or his last and usual place of abode, tenant, agent or attorney in this Commonwealth known to the Plaintiff or to said officer, — and that no personal service of said writ has been made upon the Defendant, John P. Storella, Jr.;

It is ordered by the Court, here, that the Plaintiff give notice to the Defendant of the pendency of this action, and to appear before said Court, to be holden at Malden aforesaid, on the thirty-first day of December next, to answer to the same, by causing a true and attested copy of this order to be published in the Winchester Star, 1 Church St., Winchester, a newspaper printed in said county of Middlesex, once in a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be at least fourteen days before the said last mentioned date; and that this action be continued to the said last mentioned day, or until notice shall have been given to the Defendant, agreeably to this order.

Person Friday.
(Also Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.)

You'll have lots of phone work, but no shorthand; you have to be good with a typewriter, but you'll never see a Dictaphone. Mostly, you should be organized and cheerful. (This is a small office, and friendliness helps.) Some billing and clerical experience would be a help, too.

You'll get an excellent salary and fine benefits. And you'll be working in a pleasant place, with free parking and nice people (when they aren't too busy).

Please call 861-1111 weekdays, and ask for Bernice. Will she be happy to hear from you!

You want to be treated like a real person, not just another employee. Right? You'd like to feel that the work you are doing is important?

Our employees are, to us, very real and very important.

We need more employees, people who are willing to work and expect to be paid accordingly.

We think we pay better than average wages. We give twice-a-year reviews on pay, once-a-year on cost of living. We have an excellent benefit package:

- 10 paid holidays
- 5 days sick pay
- Monthly bonus pay
- Very good insurance plan

WE NEED:

- Production Machine Operators (Male or Female) 4-12 PM Shift
- Production Machinists Day Shift
- Parts Degreaser 4-12 P.M. Shift
- Deburring Machine Operator 4-12 P.M. Shift
- Asst. Production Coordinator Day Shift

This company is getting too big for one Bookkeeper!

My name is Bernice, and I've been the only Bookkeeper here.

Now Gold Star is expanding, and I need help. Namely, a Full Charge Bookkeeper, with qualification through trial balance.

You'll like the size of your paycheck, I promise, and the benefits. And you'll be happy with where you're working: quiet Lexington (although the office isn't always quiet). Free parking, friendly people to work with: the whole thing is just too good to keep to myself.

So call me at 861-1111 weekdays, nine to five.

And if I don't answer right away, don't hang up.

I'll be with you in a flash, just as soon as I finish the balance I'm working on.

EMPLOYMENT

Our People Count

That's why a good Personnel Clerk is really important to us. Our scientists and engineers are working hard to help solve big public problems, and we in Personnel work just as hard to help keep things running smoothly for them. Maybe you'd like to help.

MITRE's a friendly, medium-sized company, spacious and conveniently located. And we believe in treating our people like people.

If you're that special sort of person who is tactful and at ease with others ... if you have a taste for detailed work and are a good accurate typist ... if you like working for a company whose business is the future ... give MITRE a try.

Youths Recycle Used Toys For Fire Victims

At the suggestion of the Winchester Environmental Protection Association, the junior high youth group at the Second Congregational Church began a drive in mid-October to recycle used toys.

The drive started with placing a bin at the dump which residents filled with used but repairable toys. The bin was emptied every five days.

Trucks were sanded and repainted. Dolls were washed and dresses ironed. Games and puzzles were checked to be certain that all pieces were in tact.

Youths who did the work included Linda Nicholson, Peggy Morris, Nancy Dean, Linda Parker, Paul Smith, Robert Smedley and Norman Richburg.

As a result last Sunday 30 boxes of toys were loaded into cars and transported to the Chelsea Salvation Army station for distribution at Christmas among children of the Chelsea fire victims.

A. Spector Addresses Republicans

Arthur B. Spector, a native of Winchester, director of the Commonwealth's capital budgeting efforts in the executive office of administration and finance, addressed the Harvard Law School Republican Club recently.

Speaking about new directions in state government management, Spector discussed where changes are taking place to insure better allocation of the Commonwealth's limited funds.

"The direction is clearly toward applying more vigorously private sector analytical concepts to the state's budgeting problems," he said adding, "a responsible effort on the part of the executive can be frustrated."

Spector indicated his concern over the Massachusetts legislature's " apparent desire to spend and spend, but to ignore the implications of these spending policies." He said, "The taxpayer is getting fed up. And rightly so. The taxpayer has every right to demand fiscal responsiblity on the part of the legislators."

Spector, 27, was raised in Arlington. After attending Arlington High School, he was graduated from Columbia College and Harvard University's School of Business Administration. He and and his wife, Lisa, reside at 151 Cambridge st.

Classes Set At The Old Schwamb Mill

Many new pottery classes and workshops for adults and young people have been scheduled for the winter term at the Old Schwamb Mill, 17 Mill lane, Arlington Heights, which begins the week of Jan. 7.

The classes include a 9-week basic pottery course for adults on Tuesdays which includes both wheel throwing and hand building. An intensive hand building workshop on Tuesday and Thursday eveings, and a glaze application workshop on Thursday evenings will be offered in January.

Another beginner pottery class for adults will be offered twice weekly on Monday and Thursday evenings beginning Feb. 11.

In response to many requests from parents, the mill has scheduled a pottery class for young people ages 8 to 18 for Saturday mornings, as well as Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. A new course for intermediate pottery students ages 10 to 18 will be offered Wednesday afternoons.

All winter pottery classes will be taught by the professional potters who have their studios at the Old Schwamb Mill: Nadine Hurst, Kathleen Ingoldsby, Cora Pucci. Tuitions include all supplies and firings. Each piece made is fired for permanence and is safe for home use.

Making things with wood and hand tools is also enjoying popularity during the present craft renaissance. Classes at the mill for beginning and intermediate students include wood-working with hand tools on Monday or Thursday evenings, and woodcarving on Monday evenings.

A course in woodworking with antique style tools in an antique setting, specially developed for the Old Schwamb Mill, will be offered Wednesdays from 5 to 7 p.m. for advanced woodworking students.

Other craft classes scheduled for the winter term include crewel and needlepoint embroidery, silver jewelry, spinning and dyeing, weaving, patchwork quiltmaking, and stained glass. Art classes include oil painting, life drawing, representational and life drawing, portrait drawing, and woodcut printmaking.

A course on viols and violins on Thursday evenings will be taught by instrument maker Richard Hart in his workshop at the Old Schwamb Mill.

Classes for young people include puppet making, drawing, and weaving, in addition to pottery classes described above.

Information about classes may be obtained at the mill weekdays, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Saturdays, 9 a.m. to noon.

Spontaneous Combustion

Fire Chief I. Francis Amico has provided this 13-article series on fire prevention and emergency procedures in the interest of greater safety in Winchester.

This is number 8 in this series of 13 articles covering fire prevention in the home.

Spontaneous combustion is a fire cause. This means fires that are caused by self-ignition. Basically, combustible material when stored in quantity is subject to self-ignition beginning with a slow oxidation process.

Suppose you have a pile of rags in the corner of the garage; they have been gathered over a long period of time as you worked on your car, and were used for grease clean up.

The process of oxidation produces enough heat, deep in the pile of rags, to raise the temperature quite perceptibly.

Additional air seeps through the crevices in the pile and the temperature gradually raises until ignition occurs.

It is a long process and conditions have to be just right for this kind of fire to start, but it does happen with enough frequency that precautions should be taken to prevent it.

A good example of this action taking place is when you have just finished mowing your lawn. You rake up the cut grass and stuff it down in your trash container for later pick up. After it has been in the container for a few days, go back and put your hand down deep in the pile. You'll find it to be quite warm. Left there long enough; it could self-ignite and if the container were close to a building, you'd have a fire.

Soft coal, in small size, is particularly subject to spontaneous combustion. If you must store this type of material in or around your home the pile should be wet down frequently with your hose.

If you live in the country, you will want to avoid letting cut weeds, animal manure, and other waste materials accumulate in quantity near your home or outbuildings. If you live in the city your chief areas of concern will be your basement, attic and garage. But, here again, good housekeeping is the key to eliminating this danger.

The subject for next week will be fire prevention in your yard.

Helen Sullivan Receives Award

Helen A. Sullivan of 17 Ginn rd. received the Jessie Harding Award for volunteer service from the Massachusetts General Hospital at its volunteer recognition party given by the trustees and general director.

The award is presented each year to one of the hospital's volunteers whose work has been outstanding and who represents the spirit of the volunteer department. Miss Sullivan was cited for giving "over 100 hours a year for 10 consecutive years of dedicated service" and training new volunteers with "enthusiasm, understanding and warmth."

Flower Clocks, New Garden Fad

"Flower clocks," a fad which developed in the formal gardens of Europe more than a century ago, are arousing interest again in America, according to Paul J. Mahoney (Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Nursery), Winchester, Mass., president of the New England Nurserymen's Association (NENA).

The association head explains that several NENA members have reported customer inquiries as to how th might develop such "clocks" in their own gardens.

The construction of such a "clock" involves planting a series of flower beds, arranged in a circle, filled with flowers known to open or close at a particular hour. When the sun is out, such a clock will give the approximate time, its enthusiasts say. Some of the flowers needed are difficult to procure, but for the benefit of anyone interested, the list is given by the NENA president as follows:

Spotted Cat's Ear, opens at 6 a.m.

African Marigold, opens at 7 a.m.

Mouse-Ear Hawkweed, opens at 8 a.m.

Prickley Sowthistle, closes at 9 a.m.

Common Nipple-Wort, closes at 10 a.m.

Merchant Of The Week

Winchester TV And Music Now Sells Paperback Books

Winchester TV and Music (formerly Winchester Appliance), 15 Thompson st., sells more than what it name implies.

Ten-year owner Hugo LaFauci explains that he recently took in a wide selection of books, paperback and hardcover, and he sells irons, toasters and other appliances, has color television service, and repairs his merchandise.

Most of LaFauci's business, however, is done in stereos, televisions, radios, records, tapes and tape recorders. The best manufacturers are represented: for instance, Zenith, RCA, Sony, Sylvania and Magnavox.

A supply of musical instruments such as guitars and harmonicas, musical accessories and sheet music is also available at Winchester TV and Music.

Mr. LaFauci and his other two full time employees are kept busy with customers from many nearby towns, especially after he enlarged the sotre five years ago.

Mrs. LaFauci, born in Nova Scotia, is the former Georgina MacLellan. Fifteen year old Marlene and her brother, 13 year old Hugo make up the rest of the LaFauci family.

Marlene is active in the CYO and Hugo is kept busy with his sports. Both attend Winchester schools.

Mr. LaFauci is a member of the Rotary Club. He is formerly from Somerville and attended Somerville school syteem. He and his family have been residents of Winchester since 1960. They live at 46 Florence st.

cording to Costello, obviously were not textbooks, considered to be routine operating expenses.

Costello says he questioned members of the School Committee and suggested that the books, which he considers should have been part of the original $13 million, should not be charged to operating expenses in the 1972, 1973-74 or 1975 budgets without town meeting approval. The School Committee apparently disagreed.

Now the $13 million high school, in operation since April 1972, not only has leaks and other imperfections, it also has about $14,000 worth of unpaid books and a judgment to be made where the money is coming from. The remainder of the contingency fund at about $13,000 is slated for other items. "Not a single penny has been spent for a single volume in the library," Costello says.

Arguing against the payment of the books from the 1972 budget, Costello claims the town will only reap 15 percent refund from the state, whereas, if the cost of the books is included in the total cost of the construction of the facilities, the town will get back 40 percent.

These bills are carefully scrutinized by the School Building Assistance Bureau, Costello contends. That state agency is responsible for assistance to towns. "Not only are they (School Committee) burying the costs in their budget, they are possibly jeopardizing state aid," he said.

Frank says the amount to be returned by the state "is an open issue which needs to be nailed down." The amount to be returned by SBAB will be important in a final conclusion to the matter, he said.

Regarding McCall Junior High School, Costello reports a similar situation.

The total appropriation for renewing the school was $491,000, he said. Overdue bills covering the work amount to $3,782 and there is only $624 left in the account.

Feeling strongly that town meeting should be involved in money spending, Costello cites an advisory opinion from the state Supreme Judicial Court as summing up his feelings:

"To appropriate has been defined as 'to set apart from the public revenue a certain sum of money for a specified object in such manner that the executive officers of the government are authorized to use that money, and no more, for that object and for no other.' "

Energy Shortage

In Case Of Emergency

Winchester's Special Committee on the Energy Crisis, coordinated by Edward Donnelly of the selectmen's office, has issued the following information for residents to know what to do in emergencies:

Where to Call

Residential purchasers of No. 2 home heating oil or kerosene should call the Winchester Fire Department at 729-1802; or, if the situation throughout the town becomes grave, the emergency center at 729-9303.

Price complaints call Internal Revenue Service, 223-4750.

Accuracy of measurment complaints call the Winchester Sealer of Weights and Measures 729-3503; or, Division of Standards 727-3480.

Supplies for all consumers are so short that the power to divert supplies from one user to another must be used continuously and sparingly. It will not be possible to help out the imprudent homeowner who fails to take energy conservation steps. The residential user must not run through his tank on the assumption that someone will help if he runs dry. Even prudent consumers may encounter difficulties. When they do, they should take the following steps:

For Residential purchasers of No. 2 (home heating) oil or kerosene:

a. Call your dealer. He may be able to seek aid from governmental agencies on behalf of you and other retail customers.

b. If your dealer is reducing deliveries, but not cutting you off, take sufficient conservation measures to meet the shortage.

c. If your dealer can deliver no oil or if you have no dealer, try to obtain a single delivery from someone else.

d. If you cannot find another dealer and if you have run out, call the Winchester Fire Department at 729-1802. An attempt will be made to obtain a delivery of at least 75 gallons. You may be asked to pay cash in advance. If the Fire Department cannot help, your problem will be referred to the State Civil Defense agency.

e. If you have no dealer, try to find one. If unsuccessful, call the Winchester Fire Department at 729-1802.

Prices of all petroleum products will continue to rise. If you have any questions abou the price control of gasoline, oil or any other refined product, call the Wage and Price Control Information number: 223-4750. Call the same number to report any violations of price control.

Complaints concerning the accuracy of measurement of petroleum products should be made to the Winchester Sealer of Weights and Measures at 729-3503.

Complaints concerning the quality of petroleum products should be made to the Division of Standards.

In An Energy Emergency

Your oil dealer may have to limit deliveries severely at some time this winter. Electric and gas utilities may have to shut off large groups of customers from time to time. You may even run out of oil entirely. These extreme problems may require emergency measures on your part.

Watch Oil Gauge

Prepare in advance for an emergency. Familiarize yourself with the gauge on your oil tank. If you can tell how much oil is left, you should be able to pace your consumption in the event of reduced deliveries. But check your gauge before an emergency arises, because it may read inaccurately. Check it right before a full delivery and compare the quantity actually received with the amount the gauge said was gone. Just as you compute automobile engine mileage, keep records of deliveries so that you will know how much oil you use at your normal thermostat setting.

Regardless of the type of fuel which you use, you should learn how to drain your water pipes in order to avoid damage from sub-freezing temperatures in the event of a temporary loss of heat.

Reduced Oil

If oil deliveries are reduced, find out from your dealer how much and how often he will be able to deliver. If there is a general shortage throughout the Town, attempts to get additional oil from other dealers will prove fruitless and can only add to the problems suppliers will encounter.

The oil allocation program is designed to help retail customers by helping their dealers. Official efforts to ease the problems of distribution will be more successful if customers stay with their regular dealers even when deliveries are reduced.

You may not be able to set your thermostat below 55 degrees F. or even 60 degrees F. Yet to stretch out supplies in an emergency you may want to keep the temperature well below that minimum level. If so, you will have to switch off the furnace; it has an electric switch on it somewhere. Then you can keep your home above freezing by switching on the furnace for a short period once or twice a day.

Natural Gas

If your natural gas is shut off and if you have not heard an announcement of planned cutbacks, your furnace pilot light may have gone out because of a drop in line pressure. Check whether the pilot lights on any other appliance are still on. If they are, it is probably a pressure drop.

You may attempt to relight your furnace pilot immediately, but do not try to relight your furnace pilot yourself unless you are very familiar with its operation. Seek assistance from your gas utility. If they are too busy to help you in time, contact a plumber or gas fitter.

If you find the gas was cut off, try to find out when service will be restored. If it will be more than a few hours, take emergenfcy measures described below in order to retain your home's heat as well as possible.

Do not abandon the house entirely. Someone should check every few hours at least to determine whether gas service has been resumed and the furnace can be relighted. It is unlikely that long gas shut-offs will occur.

It is possible that your pilot's automatic shut-off valve will not work and that gas will accumulate in your home once service is restored. If it does, do not attempt to relight the pilot. Leave your home immediately and report the leak to your gas company or the the Department of Public Utilities in Boston.

Electricity

If your electricity is shut off and you have heard no announcements of periodic cutbacks of electricity service, you are probably experiencing a routine blackout.

Try to find out from your electric company when service will be restored. If it will not be restored for several hours follow the emergency procedures described below.

There are no start up problems with electric heat like those presented by gas. Therefore no harm will come from abandoning your home if it becomes too cold. Before you leave turn off all electrical appliances, turn on your heating system, and turn your thermostat down to its minimum setting. Of course, you should not leave an oil or gas heating system on if you have drained the water from it.

It is unlikely that long electricity shut-offs will occur.

Emergency Measures

If your oil tank runs dry, call your dealer. If he cannot help immediately, take the following steps to conserve warmth. Then seek further assistance.

Tack or tape polyethylene sheeting or any similar impermeable substance to the outside or inside or your windows, particularly if you do not have storm windows.

Close draperies and shades on all windows where the sun is not shining.

Stop all air leaks with newspapers or cloth.

Open outside doors no more than absolutely necessary.

If it appears that you will not receive oil in a reasonable period of time, you should try to drain your water pipes, your water heater, and, if you have radiators, your heating system. If you do not drain water from the pipes, they may freeze and burst. If you cannot drain your pipes, you can keep them from freezing by running water through them for two or three minutes at frequent intervals. Your pipes will probably not be in danger unless the average daily temperature outside is below freezing.

If you are unable to drain your water pipes and heating system call your plumber. If he is unable to assist you, call the Winchester Water and Sewer Department at 729-1108 during regular working hours from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and 729-1831 at other times.

Red Cross Aid

If you have to leave your home try to stay with relatives or neighbors. If this is not possible, call the Winchester Red Cross at 729-2300, which is maintining a list of rooms in the town where people may stay in case of emergency. If you have a room available, would you please contact the Red Cross.

If the situation becomes grave, the town will set up emergency centers at Fire Headquarters, the West Side Fire Station, and at the new Winchester High School on Skillings Road.

The Red Cross will provide food and blankets for those who must stay at these emergency centers. Emergency transportation to the centers will be provided by the town Civil Defense personnel will assist in taking incoming calls at the Winchester High School at 729-9303. They will also provide communications for the various Town Departments.

The Winchester High School Radio Station will also become activated to keep you informed, so stay tuned to F.M. WH.S.R. at 91.9. It is advisable to make sure you can receive WHSR on a battery operated radio in the event of a power failure. WHSR broadcasts weekdays from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Firewood

A word about firewood and electric heaters. Unfortunately a roaring fire in your fireplace may not be as helpful as an emergency measure, though in most cases it will. Caution should be used.

In a house with significant air leaks, a fire which draws well can greatly increase the infiltration of cold air. Therefore while warming the room containing the fireplace, it is possible, to cool off other rooms faster than would happen otherwise.

If you are concerned about the condition of pipes in the walls of other rooms or in the basement, a fire may do more harm than good.

The use of a portable electric heater is undesirable under any circumstances because of the strain it places upon electric utilities, already seriously short of oil for power generation.

below zero, is taken in, heated and then exhausted from the classrooms via vents built into the unit ventilators or by means of exhaust systems mounted on roofs.

Clark said the reduction of such ventilation requirements will result in very substantial savings in fuel and savings of electric energy required for operation of fans.

In a memo to principals and head custodians, Clark suggests that all school buildings should be operated at 67-68 degrees while on day cycle; all buildings should be operated at approximately 50-55 degrees while on night cycle; and when the outside temperature is 40 degrees or below on the outside, the system should be turned to day cycle in the morning in order to bring the buildings up to temperature and circulate air. He suggests the system be turned to night cycle at about 9:30 in the morning.

If the building gets too stuffy or begins to cool off, Clark suggests turning back to day cycle for as long as needed, then returning to night cycle.

Based on the time it takes for buildings to cool down, buildings ought to be changed over to night cycle about 2:30 p.m. and then left on night-cycle all week-ends and during vacation periods, Clark said. Fans in toilet rooms are to be kept running at all times.

Supt. of Schools William MacDonald told the committee about meeting with Muraco teachers who brought forth the idea of changing in-service days at elementary schools from Tuesday to Friday. He said, heat could be turned off early in the morning and the building would hold heat until dismissal time. "This way you would have provide heat for four days while continuing sessions of five days," MacDonald said.

A special committee made up of town department heads, the Civil Defense Director, representatives of the Red Cross and the Council on Aging have been meeting weekly to develop emergency procedures and develop ways of conserving energy in the town.

According to Edward Donnelly, executive secretary of the Board of Selectmen, all departments are cooperating to reduce energy consumption.

Boards and committees are being encouraged by selectmen and the special committee to hold their meetings at the town hall to eliminate the necessity of opening other public buildings. When possible, meetings are being held during the normal work day.

Currently the town is seeking fuel oil bids to be received in the Selectmen's Office by Aug. 8, at which time they will be publicly opened and read. The bids will cover all fuel oil needs of the various town departments through June 30, 1975.

According to the bid, approximately 145,000 gallons of No. 2 fuel, which Donnelly describes as comparable to that which is used in residences, is needed. Also, approximately 351,000 gallons of No. 5 fuel having a higher content of sulphur, is needed.

At the present time, Donnelly reports the current fuel suppliers are filling the town's needs. One supplier reports his allotment has been increased based on the town's business he says.

Driving Tip

"The National Safety Council's annual winter driving test program has disclosed that conventional snow tires (without studs) offer no advantage over regular tires in stopping on ice," says Chief of Police Edward F. Bowler. "Studded tires, however, reduce braking distance by 19 percent, and reinforced tire chains by 50 percent. Regardless of help of these traction aids, however, far slower than normal speeds are essential on icy pavements."

WHERE'S THE "SCRIVENER"?

Much of the tradition and ceremony has disappeared from the business of transferring real estate. You might enjoy learning how it used to be done in the old days.

The law has always regarded the transfer of real estate as one of the most solemn acts and thus a great deal of formality attended the transfer. In the early days of land tenure, transfer was accomplished by "livery of seizen" which literally, meant transfer of possession.

The buyer and seller would go upon the land in question and there, in the presence of witnesses, the seller would take a clod of turf or a twig from a tree and hand it over to the buyer as a symbol or token of the transfer.

The transfer was then made a matter of record by having the "scrivener" (the person in the community who could write) do his thing and write out the transfer on a parchment and affix his seal.

Three Representatives

Students Enjoy Attending School Committee Sessions

By Arthur MacDonnell

Attending Winchester School Committee meetings contained a few surprises for three high school representatives who feel some frustration about their roles as intermediary between students and committee.

For Janice Triglione, Ursula Freddura and Michael Meagher, their first meeting was something of a jolt. One committee member, they relate, sat at the meeting table "playing with a knife" while another "was clipping his fingernails."

Opinions of individual committee members varied widely. "Some of the men just sit there and look like they're going to fall asleep," one student said.

Another student felt that the function of some committee members appears to be "just to sign papers."

But the committee generally, and several individual members, came in for high praise from the students, who find them hard working, highly interested in the well being of all Winchester public school students and involved.

"They are courteous and willing to listen"said representative Michael Meahger, who has been attending these meetings since June. Michael is president of the student council at WHS.

"They're not always willing to act though," added Janice Triglione.

Asked for specifics, the students said they haven't really approached the committee about any problems they or their fellow students may be having.

"We don't bring up a lot of stuff," said Meagher. "As the year goes on we'll bring up more."

The students said they were told not to take all of their problems to the School Committee, to go instead to their advisers, especially in dealing with internal problems.

For instance, some of the high school students wanted a bicycle rack. The student representatives didn't consider the matter important enough to take to the School Committee and arranged with the school principal to get the rack.

One issue the students did take to the School Committee: changing compulsory gym five times a week. The committee told the students they believed state approval would be required since the compulsory athletic program is required when a community accepts state aid in building a school.

Eventually the students were advised by Rep. Harrison Chadwick of that law and dropped their fight.

Representative Janice Triglione began attending the committee sessions in June with Meagher. Ursula Freddura started this September. Janice says of her initial response: "It was amazing to me. I didn't know they would go into such detail."

Ursula says: "I was surprised the meetings would last that long." She is president of the junior class; Janice, president of the senior class.

One area Janice and Michael felt the committee might have taken more initiative was in the suggestion to open the high school shop to public use.

Michael made that suggestion several weeks ago but the committee has yet to act on it. He feels Winchester residents might benefit from using the automotive repair facilities at the high school.

Another problem the students had recently was in finding a place to hold the traditional Thanksgiving Day victory dance. They were unable to get response from the principals of the high school and McCall Junior High School (where the old high school was located) on using the gyms in those buildings.

This issue didn't involve the School Committee. It did involve Supt. of Schools William C. MacDonald, who resolved the problem. The three students had the highest praise for MacDonald, who, they said, is "really responsive" and interested in them.

Committeewoman Mary Mears received praise from the students for being interested in their problems and asking their opinions of subjects coming before the board.

Committeeman Stephen Parkhurst was said to represent the most "established" point of view but nonetheless had the respect of at least one of the three student representatives who said of Parkhurst: "The guy with the glasses seems to want to get involved."

Mrs. Mears was the only committee member's name all the students knew. When this was pointed out to the representatives, Michael replied, "I don't think they know our names."

The students said they feel the committee members are doing a good job, enjoy attending the committee meetings but sometimes get bored, especially when the committee is involved in detailed discussion of subjects over the heads of the students.

A case in point was the recent talk over a proposal for purchase of a new station wagon for the School Department. The students said they had little concern for the subject and little knowledge about it.

They find interesting discussion of such things as the junior high school social studies program and a half-year English teaching program at the high school. "They are something I can relate to," said Michael.

The three student representatives are finding it difficult to reach their fellow students in order to find our what's bugging them. "There is a lot of apathy'" Michael said. "It may be apathy or satisfaction.' If students in the Winchester public schools have grievances, the student representatives would like to hear about them.

Not surprisingly, the one subject the representatives hear most about from their fellow students is ths possibility of abolishing mid-year examinations.

A committee of school personnel and students has been set up to see if anything can be done about mid-years. Now, if the representatives could get their fellow students as interested in other things....

New By-Law Still Hasn't Left Office

The town's new zoning by-law approved by a town meeting in October has yet to reach the attorney general for action, according to Town Clerk Elsie M. Nelson.

"Perhaps there hasn't been sufficient time to place it in the form I consider proper," Mrs. Nelson told The Star.

She added that various things have to be done to prepare the lengthy by-law for the attorney general's office. "It hasn't been given to me yet."

Mrs. Nelson declined to state who hasn't given her what, but said various sections of the by-law which come from other departments haven't reached her office yet.

The by-law, she added, is complicated by the large number of amendments the town meeting tacked on.

The town meeting which began in October ended Nov. 1. No action from that meeting is considered final until Nov. 9 to allow for referendum. The measure then goes to the attorney general, who has 90 days to rule whether it is legal Following his approval, the town must communicate the new law to the residents for three weeks.

Dog Leash Law

Dogs must be kept on leashes in Winchester from 7 in the morning to 7 at night. Owners of pets in violation are fined.

Chief Warns On Use Of Fireplaces, Stoves During Crisis

Winchester Fire Chief I. Francis Amico this week expressed concern that stoves long unused have been called on to take the chill off local homes.

"Before you plan to burn wood or coal in a fireplace or stove, be sure and have the chimney cleaned," the Fire Chief warned.

Although chimney sweeps are an extinct breed in Winchester, the chief said there are several firms in neighboring communities that do this kind of work. He suggested contacting them through the yellow pages of the telephone book.

He does not recommend the old fashion method of using an old corset or a sack full of rocks down the chimney to dislodge soot. "The new method of using a vacuum cleaner does a much cleaner and more thorough job," the Chief says.

As a public service, members of the Fire Department are available as consultants to advise on safe operation and the necessary clearance distance from any combustible materials.

Stoves on wooden floors are absolutely forbidden, according to the chief. Parlor stoves should be set on asbestos mats with a four to six inch air space underneath.

Before going to bed or leaving the house, stove drafts should be checked to avoid an overheated stove or stove pipe.

"Of course portable oil stoves and oil space heaters are outlawed by state law," he states.

The chief views the trend towards kerosene lamps and candles with a jaundiced eye. "They should be used only as a last resort in case of a power outage and flashlights are not available," he says, pointing out that they are very easily upset and should be kept away from flammable materials.

The chief also warns against flammable Christmas decorations or party streamers urging every precaution to get through the holiday season and winter without the tragedy of a fire.

Driving Tip

Chief of Police Edward F. Bowler says that during the winter months it's a good idea to get the feel of the road frequently, and especially whenever you have the slightest doubt whether or not it may be slippery.

The best technique is to gun the engine or to try the brakes occasionallky when out of the way of other traffic to see if the wheels spin or skid. If they do, slow down and drive accordingly, he says.

Delight In Small Things

By Arthur MacDonnell

In these times when bigness is in some disrepute, it might do us good to take a long look at the small things around us which can bring so much joy.

The winter is the perfect season for observing water since it is with us for so many months in so many different forms. What begins as snow, can change to ice and then to water. Observe snowflakes on an outside railing. They huddle together. But if you look carefully, you can see that each flake is independent of the others.

After the sun has struck the railing and if the temperature is right, the snow melts into a transparent coating of ice. Later, if the temperature rises, the ice melts into water and you can see the individual drops float away.

Watch them as they roll down the railing, some moving quite a distance before dropping onto the stairs. Some of the drops pick up other drops and create a tiny stream with its own meandering riverbed. Other drops never join the stream but roll off on their own. Watch their squirming forms ever changing, limitless in design.

While winter precipitation is a bother to most of us, and a considerable hazard, there can be delight in it too. With the temperatures in the low 30s, the scene outside your window can change from one moment to the next.

The white-speckled air can change to grey and to a mixture of both,.much to the dismay of public works departments but to the joy of window gazers who find fascination in watching the change of color, texture and weight of what comes from the sky.

Leaves, of course, have always been subject to study from observers of little things because of their brilliant and myriad colors. Sometime pick a leaf up and notice its shape, the tough little ridges on its edges, the twisting veins; feel its crisp points and its flexible stem; put your finger through it and see how brittle it is.

And listen to the leaves some time. Each pile has its own sound when the wind hits it.

Melting ice

Some go whoosh, others wiiiishhhhhh. They crinkle and crackle and if at the moment you're lonely, they'll sound lonely to you. And sometimes they laugh.

Some afternoon take an hour out of your day and devote it to clouds. An hour isn't really enough because the study of clouds takes years of intense scrutiny. I have just begun my apprenticeship.

Find a comfortable place, preferably a bed, near a window. Pull a robe up over your shoulders, lean on an elbow and look skyward. Like snowflakes, no two clouds are the same. Scientists have neatly classified them according to shape. Don't worry about that. We're not interested in the names.

We're interested in seeing how they change color and shape as they roll across the sky. Sometimes they'll be sharply white with grey edges. Other times greyish white. Other times, black. If the sun is shining through them, especially at sunset, you can see every color imaginable and some you couldn't have imagined.

But if you are just beginning to observe clouds, better stay away from sunsets. Those are for more advanced observers; beginners will get too dazzled by their richness. Notice, too, the constantly changing shapes of clouds.

Sometimes it's difficult to see the outline of a cloud because it is traveling close together with other clouds and the definitions are blurred. Sometimes you don't know where one ends and the next begins.

In such cases, observe the shapes of the cloud banks, which are equally quickly changing and just as fascinating. They, too, have fluffy parts and sharp parts. They can be as curvaceous or as flat as their individual members.

Jesus, Santa Claus In Hearts Of Children

By Pauline Dishmon

Jesus, Santa Claus, toys, visits to the homes of relatives, playing in snow, and just feeling happy are among the thoughts of Winchester children these few days before Christmas.

A visit to the Noonan School this week to talk with children about Christmas showed an absence of sugar plums and in their place a realistic presence of expected happiness with family and friends and a hope for gifts from Santa.

First grader Beth Swazey of 130 Pond st. without hesitancy said, "I think about Jesus." Next, the name of Santa Claus came to her lips. "Last year he brought me a paint set in my stocking," she said, adding she hopes he'll bring her something nice again.

Classmate Stephen Robertson of 67 Woodside rd. said Christmas makes him think of "lots of things." After Jesus he mentioned "the toys I'm going to get," which he described as "a surprise."

Michael Errico, 6, of 16 Glenwood ave. said he hopes to get a tent for Christmas. He may put it up in the backyard but "I may set it up in the house." Michael thinks he will probably visit his grandmother on Christmas Day.

Giving presents to other people is on the mind of Mary Ann Murray, 6 years old. Last year she left Santa Claus two cookies and a glass of milk and expects to leave him something again.

Anna Russo, also 6, said she left Santa some cake last year and the next day found "an empty plate." Anna, who has a one-year-old brother, said all she wants for Christmas is another new baby.

Gregory Govostes of 51 Clark st. said that Christmas "makes me feel happy." Christmas always "makes me think of snow too, that's why I want a toboggan."

Jackie Burke, 7, of 77 Middlesex st. looked up from her library book to say that Christmas is a time "to think happy." She is expecting Santa to bring her a "real pretty doll."

Laura Queen, 8, of 13 Richardson st. said she likes Christmas "because I get toys."

Diane Dunleavy, 8, of 26 Canal st. reminds herself that "It's Jesus' birthday. And it's my cousin's birthday too." Diane expects to go to her aunt's house on Christmas day for a "big feast."

The Star talked with four children from the Noonan kindergarten class.

Robert Fallon, who said he was 5 and six quarters years old, said Christmas makes him think of Santa and "my Christmas tree" which he said the family would be decorating next Monday. Snow and sliding on "my sled" are also on Robert's mind.

John Regan, 5, speaking of making Christmas trees in his classroom, pointed to rows of trees made from pasta products pasted on cardboards nearby. He expects "toys from Santa" for himself and his sister.

"Christmas is nice and a time to get lots of toys," said Lisa Downey. She spoke of decorating the family Christmas tree and "hanging Santa and bulbs and stuff."

Kate Johnson, 5, said that Christmas is a time when "Santa Claus brings toys for little girls and boys." She knows exactly what she wants for Christmas - a baby doll named Baby Tender Love who comes complete with "a bracelet, blanket and bottle." Besides the doll Kate said there was also something "I really do need - slippers." She said "If Santa doesn't bring them maybe my Auntie Bob will give them to me."

Deadlines Monday

The Winchester Star next week will be published on Friday, Dec. 28, because of the Christmas holiday on Tuesday

Advertising and news copy deadlines next week are Monday noon.

New Year's week The Star will be published on Thursday as usual.

The Staff of the Star wishes all of our readers warmest greetings during this holiday season.

Carolers to Gather Beneath... Streetlight?

Winchester's traditional Christmas Eve carolers may gather around a streetlight near the Common this year instead of the customary lighted Christmas tree.

Mary R. Witham, who has directed the Common Christmas Eve singing for over 40 years, said because town policy has ruled out holiday lighting, the musicians will have to stand near a streetlight in order to read their music.

"I don't think we should give it up," she said. "Of all the years, with everyone so unhappy and with all the political trouble in the country, this is about the only thing you can hold on to," Mrs. Witham said.

The Park Commission last week rejected a request from the Board of Selectmen to light the central evergreen on the Common for three days.

Their reason was that state and federal government officials have asked (and may force) a ban on unnecessary outside lighting.

As in the past, carolers will meet at 7 p.m. on the Common on Christmas Eve. Mrs. Witham, director of music and organist at the Unitarian Church, will direct the singing of familiar Christmas carols.

Frederick Murray, director of the Winchester High School band, will lead a band in accompanying the singers.

The public is welcome to participate in this event sponsored by The Fortnightly Club.

Obituaries

Frank G. Meehan

Frank G. Meehan, 82, of 58 Salem st., died unexpectedly on Dec. 17 at Winchester Hospital. He had been a Winchester resident for 23 years.

Mr. Meehan was born in Lowell, the son of John and Mary Ann (Howley) Meehan. He served in the U. S. Army during World War I and was a member of the Winchester American Legion Post 97.

For many years, Mr. Meehan was employed at St. Patrick's Cemetery, Lowell.

Funeral mass will be celebrated today at 9 a.m. at the Immaculate Conception Church where he was a member. Rev. William Cummings will officiate. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery, Woburn.

He leaves his wife, Mary Rogers Meehan of Winchester.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Lane Funeral Home.

Dog Leash Law

Winchester's dog leash law is in effect from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. seven days a week.

Gertrude A. Chabot

Gertrude A. Chabot, 69, of 102 Sylvester ave., died after a brief illness Dec. 17 at the Massachusetts General Hospital. She lived in Winchester for 28 years.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a.m. from the Immaculate Conception Church where Mrs. Chabot was a member. Burial will be in the Oak Grove Cemetery.

Mrs. Chabot was born in Somerville, the daughter of William and Hannah (Madden) Burnett. She attended Somerville High School and was graduated from the Burdett Secreterial School in 1933.

She leaves her husband, George E. Chabot, and two sons and two daughters: George Jr. of North Reading, Ron of Winchester; Carol McCall of Chelmsford and Elaine Waters of Burlington.

Lane Funeral Home handled arrangements.

Al-Anon

Al-Anon, an organization for adults, generally spouses of alcoholics, meets Friday nights at 8:30 at the Parish of the Epiphany Church.

Philip Hoyt, 24, Former Resident, Drowns In Tank

Philip M. Hoyt of Lynnfield, formerly of Winchester, died Dec. 9 in an industrial accident in Revere. He was 24.

A caretaker at the Northeast Petroleum Industries fuel farm in Revere, he apparently fell off a storage tank and drowned in 18 inches of gasoline surrounding the tank's base.

It is believed that he climbed to the top of the tank to oversee cleanup operations of spillage from an off-shore tanker which pumped too much gas into the storage facility.

Born in Winchester, Mr. Hoyt was the son of Mary D. (Dignan) Hoyt. A 1968 graduate of Lynnfield High School, he was employed at Northeast for four years.

Besides his mother he leaves four brothers and two sisters, David of Wakefield, William, Richard and John of Lynnfield; Mrs. Ellen LaBonte of Lynnfield and Mrs. Mary A. Fleming of Middleton.

Funeral service was held at St. Marie Goretti Church, Lynnfield. Burial was in Forest Glade Cemetery, Wakefield.

Leadership Citation

Ronald J. Milauskas of Winchester was presented the Tufts University annual fund's leadership citation during volunteers' day at Tufts last month.

Acting for Tufts president Burton C. Hallowell was Rosalyn Berenberg, annual fund chairman, who presented the awards to 43 alumni.

Mrs. Alma Wallis

Mrs. Alma Todd Wallis of Kennebunk, Me., formerly of Winchester, died Dec. 6 in a Biddeford, Me., hospital.

A Winchester resident for many years, Mrs. Wallis, who was the widow of Lloyd Wallis, moved to Kennebunk two years ago.

She is survived by a daughter, Carol Wallis of Kennebunk, and two sons, Lloyd Wallis Jr. of Simsbury, Conn., and Todd Wallis of Attleboro; also four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the convenience of the family. Burial was in the family lot of Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett. Memorial donations may be made to the Webber Hospital, Biddeford, Me.

Ruth T. Govostes

Ruth T. Govostes of Woburn, sister of Wilbur C. Otis, director of civil defense for Winchester, died Dec. 13.

Wife of the late Frank E. Govostes and mother of the late Nancy Annello of Woburn, she leaves four children: Edward F.Govostes , Dorothy Rexrode, and Brenda Joslin, all of Winchester, and John G. Govostes of Woburn.

Funeral service was held at the P. J. Cox Funeral Home, Woburn, last Monday.

Student at Berklee

NAMED - Henry T. Gerould of Winchester was named vice-president of store operations for the Stuckey Stores Division of Pet Inc. Formerly vice-president of marketing for Mister Donut of America; general manager of the Johnson Waxway Centers, Division of Johnson Wax, and district manager for Mobil Oil Co., he attended the University of Pennsylvania and the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce.

Miss Null To Be Listed In 'Who's Who'

Jennifer Rebecca Null, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Null of 2 Thornberry rd., will be included in this year's edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." The students included in this annual directory have made an outstanding contribution to their college community through leadership and scholarship. Miss Null is a senior at Wheaton College.

Recycling Is Concern Of Goodwill

Since its beginnings 78 years ago, Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries has been concerned with ecology and recycling. Since 1895, Morgan Memorial has been refurbishing donated, usable materials of all types and selling them at low prices in Goodwill Thrift Stores.

Today, Goodwill is concerned with the energy crisis. The 10 Goodwill trucks which make home pick-ups of donated material use almost 550 gallons of gasoline a week.

By depositing clothing and unbreakable items in Goodwill Collection boxes, people will be helping to conserve gasoline, since most collection boxes are located in supermarket parking lots. In one trip to the supermarket, people can do their grocery shopping and drop off a donation for Goodwill too.

Donated materials are the basis for Morgan Memorial's rehabilitation services for handicapped people. The largest rehabilitation facility of its kind in New England, Goodwill serves men and women with physical, emotional or vocational disabilities through work evaluation, work adjustment, on-the-job training and placement services.

While refurbishing donated materials, clients and trainees receive evaluation and training on actual work sites. Refurbished material is sold in the Goodwill Thrift Stores. Sales dollars provide wages for clients, trainees and workers.

Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries is 80 percent self-supporting and relies upon the public for material, financial, and volunteer support to sustain its services.

As the excitement of another Christmas mounts and the spirit of joy and wonderment reaches into the hearts of everyone, we send our heartiest greetings, with sincere Thanks for the privilege of serving you

Friday's Dance: Words Too Strong

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am writing in regard to the letter printed in last week's paper about Friday night's dance run by the junior class.

There were two policemen there and one was always walking around the building. So I think that if there were any "drunken wild screaming animals"that someone would have taken care of them.

I think some of the words in this letter like "overt criminals and sadists, little dogs untrained and wild animals" are awfully strong words, totally uncalled for and improper for this situation. This is unfair criticism.

Andrea Chase

'Advertising' A House Of Worship

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

When you were busy looking upward at the lights on the steeple of the First Congregational Church it is hard to believe you did not see the very bright lights on the Rexall, Brooks and McCormack's Drug.

What's wrong with "advertising" a house of worship?

Mrs. William J. Dorman
13 Valley rd.

Young People Praised Highly

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

May I extend through the paper the most joyous of Christmas greetings to the young people of the town who help me constantly when I am downtown, to cross a busy street, open a heavy door, or step down a high curbing.

They are unfailingly courteous and friendly. Also, I enjoy the smiles and friendly "hi" from many school young people who don't know this old lady. I appreciate it.

Also a big thank you to the CYO for the entertaining, gay, colorful show they put on last week. I know we all loved it and laughed heartily, enjoyed the interesting and original lighting and the professional expertise that moved so many singers and actors with such expedition. Loving singing and dancing. Merry Christmas to all.

Keep Children's Theater Going

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

"Noah's Ark" sailed and landed last Friday and Saturday on the stage of the McCall Junior High School.

Children's Theatre of Winchester is a lively effort to show and give a desire and an experience for a cooperative expression of painting, writing, acting, singing, dancing and music in theatre for an audience.

Space and time limit the ability to properly thank all those who so generously helped and made this possible: Mothers, children, staff, student-artists, and all officials. I most sincerely thank . Merry Christmas to all and a Happy New Year. Let us keep Children's Theater going.

Recycling Toys For Chelsea

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The toy collection at the incinerator is reported to have been successful by Mrs. Smedley's youth group at the Second Congregational Church.

This chance to "recycle" toys to Chelsea fire victims has been appreciated not only by the recipients but by the donors.

Perhaps some day we in Winchester can develop the idea of sharing and recycling toys further: think now about creating a toy library along the Winchester-Woburn border.

Meanwhile, thanks to Mrs. Smedley's youth group, and to all, joyful holidays.

Letter From The Editor

'Oldest' Oak Comes Down

The storm earlier this week which was so unkind to so many trees felled what The Boston Post once referred to as "the oldest and biggest oak tree of its kind in New England."

That's the black oak behind 15 Chestnut st., home of the Armstrong family. The tree was there before the house was built, we are told.

"It's a terrible thing," Suzanne Armstrong says. "My children have grown up on it." She says most of the tree came down due to heavy ice. "We won't lack for firewood the next five years."

Mrs. Armstrong says that records of the Wellington family, who used to own the house, indicate that the tree was standing when Lincoln was shot. At least that's the written record of a member of the Wellington family, who happened to be standing under it when news of Lincoln's death reached her. Good thing no one was standing under it Monday.

I wonder why it is that a southern city like Washington, D.C., gets a foot of snow and Boston during the same storm gets rain. Would that have something to do with ocean currents, I wonder? It seems the last few years all of the predicted snow storms have fizzled into frozen rain. Give me one foot of snow any day than one inch of frozen fain. At least you can walk in snow.

Some more stores are closing in Winchester Center and I wonder how long it's going to take town meeting members to realize that their efforts "to keep Winchester the same" are resulting in great changes. None of them for the good.

Latest to announce their closing are Peck & Peck, Winchester Jewelers, Ronel's and Peggy Anne's. Woolworth's and First National categorically deny they are closing despite persistant rumors to the contrary.

All of the stores are quite vague about their demise. But Winchester Jewler's said, "No business." This has been going on for a year, they said. The firm is moving to Lexington Center.

William Hanberry of First National was adamant that the store will be remaining open. In fact, he said, they plan to expand and remodel the store. He got quite angry when I asked him when. But I persisted and he said work would begin "in a year to a year and a half."

The president of the Winchester Business Association says several other center businesses are shaky. "At some point, the depressing decline of a vital economic center and substantial tax base to the town must be halted," Nancy Dressler said in a letter to the selectmen. But so far, neither the selectmen, town meeting or anyone else except the WBA seems to care.

Without outside Christmas lighting the neighborhoods seem bleak. Over in Burlington the municipal square is ablaze as it always has been. How can they get away with that? In Winchester there is no municipal lighting this year.

Winchester's town employees are quite upset with the selectmen. The employees say the town has always given them a half-holiday on Christmas Eve and are angry because this year because the Board of Selectmen voted a full work day Christmas Eve.

The employees point to neighboring communities and say the workers there get a half day. One department head tells us the women are particularly upset because they need Christmas Eve to prepare for family gatherings that night and the next day.

The selectmen, ever conscious of the employees' new power through collective bargaining, are not about to give the workers--despite what tradition dictates--a "free" half day off. The employees are forever pointing out to the selectmen they are not required to do certain things because "it is not in the contract." Not giving the employees half a day gives the selectmen a chance to say it's not in the contract.

During the government request on voluntarily closing on Sundays of gasoline stations we notice that there has been only one station selling gasoline, which doesn't seem quite fair to the other stations. Why not rotate so that a different one is open each Sunday?

The March annual town meeting voted to place the town seal on all municipal vehicles. Until last week, however, the fire chief's car remained seal-less. Robert Joyce, who sponsored the article, has become increasingly irritated over this fact and demanded of Arthur Dunbar, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, that Fire Chief Amico's car also carry the seal. A few days later the issue was sealed once and for all. (See photo)

Since the federal government began funding installation of traffic signals, they have required that all signals conform to their nationwide standards, which has meant elimination of the traditional red-and-yellow phase in Massachusetts. That's why new installations going up in Winchester won't have red and yellow lights shining together to allow pedestrains to cross from any corner.

I don't know the federal government's reasoning behind this. I could guess that it has to do with with what's most common. But I do know that a red-and-yellow phase is far safer for pedestrians since it eliminates cars coming at them from around corners.

"We can argue about this in town meetings," Harriet Dieterich, School Committee chairman, told a recent meeting discussing the possibility of charging residents fees to use the new high school gym.

But should we argue about it at town meeting? Those meetings are long enough.

This issue The Star prints the names of town meeting members who were absent from any of the three sessions during the just concluded special town meeting. It's certainly disappointing to see on this list so many of the younger members. It's disappointing to see anyone's name, naturally. And certainly one or two absences over town meetings in the last six months are excusable. But some of the town meeting members are members in name only.

They attend a perfunctory few meetings. Ane then, often, they sign in and leave. If you take the time to read that list remember that a lot of names should be there that aren't because so many members fill in the card as they arrive and leave a few minutes later.

At the Dec. 6 session, there were 229 active members; 195 were present. At the Dec. 10, from 228 active, 181 were present. The Dec. 13: 227, 146 present.

One Town Hall official was telling me the other day that he was going into Town Hall at night and used his key to open the outer and inner doors as normal.

But when he got to his office the key wouldn't work, unlike normally. So he went back to check and discovered that he had been using his VFW key.

So he asked custodian Frank Muraco to check. "The VFW key works better than the Town Hall key," Frank said.

This official has little faith in the efficiency of Town Hall management and since he felt something should be done right away, he went to the Sons of Italy a couple of nights later where Arthur Dunbar was playing bridge and announced:

"All you boys belong to the VFW: Your keys will open Town Hall." He tells us: "The next day a locksmith was there." And so the Town Hall locks have been changed. (A peculiar thing about the old system was that all keys opened the outer door of Town Hall but only one particular office. Thus the town treasurer could open the outside door and the door to her own office but not the door to the town comptroller. Now that is changed. They have a key for the outside and a key for their own office.

The Star asked Robert O'Brien, superintendent of streets, to explain the "starved air" method of incineration. Demonstrating the concept, O'Brien withdrew a book of matches from his pocket. He lit one match, blew it out, then held it vertically and drew attention to the rising smoke. Then, lighting another match and holding it in a horizontal position, he placed the flame over the smoke which immediately ceased. The starved air system, therefore, is a way to inhibit emissions through the use of an additional flame.

In the wake of the energy crisis, use of fireplaces is more in vogue than ever before. And since the price of wood is $75 and upwards for a cord, some persons are seeking fireplace fuel in strange ways.

In talking with Robert O'Brien, superintendent of streets, The Star learned that nearly a cord of wood was pilfered from the town forest recently. The person(s) responsible for the theft was apprehended and required to make restitution by replacing the wood. O'Brien reports the wood was to go to needy families and will go to needy families.

Someone passed on to me the information that Mad magazine's back cover shows a picture of a fireplace with stockings hanging for Nixon, Erhlichman, Haldeman, Dean, Mitchell, Magruder and Colson. Underneath reads: "Christmas morning 1973. Nothing this year. You were all very bad."

Group Reports:

'CATV Will Come To Town As In Nearby Communities'

The following is the report of the Board of Selectmen's advisory committee on cable television.

At the June 11 Board of Selectmen's meeting an ad hoc committee on cable television was formed to determine the need for community antenna television (ATV) of cable television in Winchester. They had several months to submit an initial report on what the method of ownership would be and a plan for further action on the development of CATV in Winchester.

Certain members of the committee attended a workshop on June 9 sponsored by the Institute for Governmental Services of the University of Massachusetts and some of the evening sessions offered by the institute. Various aspects of cable television were studied. There were discussions with personnel of the school system and board and other communities. A tour was made of the high school television studio facilities.

A questionnaire was distributed to 80 residents for a survey on the need for or desirability of CATV in town. Individuals from all areas of town were chosen. An attempt was made to obtain a representative sampling from each town precinct proportionate to its size. Fifty-four questionnaires were returned.

In order to educate the public on CATV the reference librarian of the Winchester Public Library put together a collection of information and literature on cable television.

Some observations on the questionnaire;

The geographically selected residents reacted to CATV more favorably than the town meeting members. Those who were indifferent or unfavorable (about 16 per cent) to the grant of a license by the town to construct and operate a CATV system were about the same in number as those favorable or very favorable.

Cost was a major concern to the potential subscribers.

The town has good reception in most areas.

Regarding the contribution which CATV could make, most felt it could make more programming available. Almost half felt it could improve reception. Fewer felt that cable TV could help as a school aid. The fewest number felt it could contribute by televising local events.

CATV developed primarily as a means to better reception in rural and mountain areas. More channels were made available. Te economic basis of cable television depends on those two things. Television reception is good in Winchester. Only a mild interest was indicated for more programs. There was an indifference to CATV's development. Twenty per cent of the replies were very favorable to the granting of a license; almost as many were not in favor.

Half want CATV to be operated by a private operator; less than a third want it to be town operated.

The committee believes CATV will eventually come to Winchester and community planning should include this assumption. Several surrounding communities are either in the process of construction or are studying the issue.

Federal Communications Commission's guarantee on the availability of educational, governmental and public access channels, requires that new systems have available for immediate use at least 20 channels, that systems with over 3,500 subscribers have at least one station of local origin and that all new systems maintain a plant with technical capacity for non-voice return communication.

CATV transmits a uniform quality picture with no external interference. Some cable channels have entertainment, others means to carry town meetings, lectures, local sporting events, and stock quotations. Educational programs could be made available. Winchester High School could adapt to a CATV system with small cost.

There will be a considerable initial amount for construction of a CATV system. Some of the cost will vary according to community needs and sophistication desired. Some are proportional to the number of subscribers and number of plant miles to reach subscribers.

There are three basic components to the system: The antenna site feeder-distribution system, house service drop. Cost of the antenna depends on required height, on microwave, etc. It may be possible to share an antenna site with another community. The antenna-site's signals are sent by cable through a distribution system to subscribers. Cost may be from $50,000 to over $200,000.

Coaxial cable distributes the television signals. There are three types of cable: feeder (trunk) lines, distribution lines and drop lines. The cost of construction of a distribution system depends a great deal on the number of subscribers vs. the number of street miles and will increase with underground cable. New or additional poles may be needed.

There is no estimation of the cost of a CATV system in Winchester.

The committee feels that costs are of importance to the town only if it decides to have a municipally owned and operated system.

The committee feels new applications should be discouraged at present and that there should be no initiation of the licensing procedure since CATV at this time would not be particularly profitable. The needed cost for CATV for the individual is in conflict with what the majority of survey responders are willing to pay.

The committee opts strongly for a private entrepreneur to operate a CATV system since it feels that would be more financially successful.

There are three tiers of regulatory control over CATV licensing: Federal, state and municipal. At the federal level, CATV is controlled by the FCC, which must issue a certificate of compliance before a licensee may operate a CATV system. At the state level, Massachusetts imposes additional regulations, with the town board of selectmen, the mayor or city manager having the power to issue licenses. The local issuing authority may impose more restrictions.

Before the selectmen may decide whether or not to consider granting a license, a petition signed by a number of registered voters equal to .5 per cent of the total number of residents must be submitted.

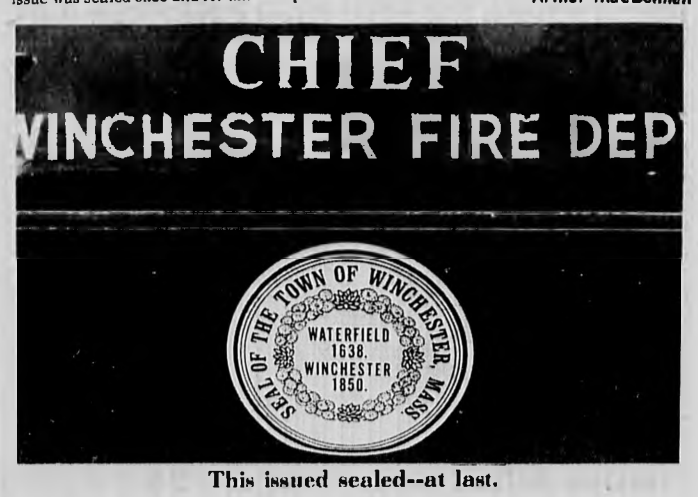

Prior to board's decision, a public hearing must be held.

If it is decided not to begin licensing process, a written public report must be given telling why. If the licensing process is undertaken, a cable advisory committee is to inform the public, make an assessment of cable needs and prepare policy recommendations. The selectmen must hold a hearing on the committee's report; 14 days before the hearing it must be available for public.

After hearings, the board issues its own report and sends a copy to each applicant, solicits bids from new applicants and sets deadline for applications. After a public hearing to assess qualifications of applicants, each is either rejected or approved by provisional license. One provisional license is granted for one area of the community. After a period, the licensee submits proof that he can comply with requirements, then a final license is granted. Duration of a license is 15 years, but it can be renewed for successive periods of up to 10 years.

Jaycees To Collect Christmas Trees

The Winchester Jaycees will collect Christmas trees on Jan. 5. With the aid of the Highway and Park Departments, the Jaycees will canvass every street in town picking up discarded trees left on the grass strip near the street. The operation will begin at 8 a.m. Many residents tie a donation to the trees.

This issued sealed--at last.

Charter Commission

What Kind Of Government Will Meet The Needs Of The Next Generation?

In March the voters of Winchester will be asked to create a charter commission and elect nine commissioners.

By Bob Ericson

A charter commission is a body authorized by law and elected by the voters to draft and submit to the voters a new charter setting the form of town government.

If a charter commission can be viewed as a miniature constitutional convention, its members have exactly the same function as delegates to a convention. As such it is removed from any partisan or political activity. It does not owe its allegiance to any group or segment of the community, but to the community as a whole.

The objective of a charter commission is not so much to fashion local government to serve solely the needs of today. Its objective is to serve the needs for 10 to 25 years on. A charter commission cannot afford the luxury of blinders which focus vision on a narrow range of issues.

The key question will be, "What kind of a charter will best meet the needs of the citizens of the town in this generation and at least one succeeding generation?"

It is obvious that the accomplishments of a charter commission will depend to a great degree on the quality of its members. What types of talents will be needed?

Those elected to our charter commission are unlikely to be experts on charter drafting. The commission will be composed of lay persons for whom charter making will be new experience. The commission should be a representative body reflecting the ideals and desires of the people. What is needed is not technical skill, but general intelligence, an open mind and a demonstrated ability to work with others in a group of peers.

In the course of reaching a final draft, commissioners will inevitably be called on to compromise individual views and concede to fellow commissioners. At other times, there will be the need to take a strong stand.

Yet there will be the compelling need to settle for something short of perfection, in order to get the job done and gain voter acceptance. A prime test for fitness to serve on the commission is the ability to surmount personal views in favor of the public interest.

We have a wealth of this type of talent in Winchester. The supply is not limited solely to those who have been or are currently active in town government.

The real risk in the entire charter process is that many who could serve effectively will fail to recognize the charter commission as their unique opportunity to make a real contribution to the welfare of the town. Those who hesitate because the commitment in time and effort is substantial should consider the 10-month limited scope of the assignment.

The charter process in Winchester will be successful if many citizens ask themselves these questions, "Could I effectively serve on the commission? If I can't, do I know someone who could? If so, shouldn't I take the time to call that person and urge him to run and give him support in the election process?"

There are a few facts to remember for those who plan to run.

1. Nomination papers may be obtained after Jan. 1 from the town clerk.

2. Fifty signatures are required for nomination, but it is a good idea to get extras in case some signatures are invalidated as improper.

3. Completed nomination papers must be filed with the town clerk no later than Feb. 4.

4. The Town Government Study committee has a supply of literature on the charter commission question available for use by candidates for commission to help in the election effort.

5. The names of those running for the commission will appear on the ballot in alphabetical order. The instruction will be to vote for nine. Should the charter question carry the nine receiving the higest total of votes will serve.

We need to have a strong field of candidates in the contest for the charter commission. We will if each citizen seriously considers his personal responsibilities in the matter.

The author, Robert C. Ericson, is a member of the Town Government Study Committee, a town meeting-created committee to recommend ways to change Winchester's government.

2 Primary Lines Down In Storm

Two primary Boston Edison lines were out last Monday as rain and heavy wet snow ushered in the cold reality of winter for Winchester residents.

According to Mike Connolly of the Winchester Fire Department, residents of the Rangeley road area and those in the vicinity of Risley road were without power for up to nine or 10 hours.

Though not having power alarmed many persons, Connolly said, the telephone service was the most severely effected by the storm.

On flooding, Connolly said there was only one serious situation. This was in the Chisholm road area where there was a problem due to a blocked pipe leading into the town drainage system. He spent much of the day there and finally corrected the problem.

Because of heavy wet snow on limbs, Connolly reports that many limbs broke off or were hanging low. Lorena road became impassable at times due to birch trees leaning over the street.

Connolly offered praise for a young group of auxiliary firemen who aided greatly in answering calls for sump pump work due to the lack of electricity.

He spoke of the department receiving many calls from residents reporting wires down or sparks flying from wires. A check of these areas showed little or no problem. Boston Edison was notified of areas needing assistance.

One woman called reporting she couldn't make a cup of tea. Her problem was resolved when her husband made a fire in the fireplace and later brought forth boiling water.

Referring to the energy crisis, Connolly said a day like last Monday "gives people an idea what it might be like without fuel."

According to Eddie Murphy, assistant superintendent of the Highway Department, thousands of branches from trees all over town, particularly on Wildwood street and Ledgewood road, were downed during the storm.

Murphy says the office received 40 calls which were followed through by 25 employees (six crews) of the department. The men also took care or removing limbs they found around town as they went about their work of picking up branches and debris and unclogging drains.

The men Wednesday were still busy cleaning up fallen limbs.

Town Meeting

Selectmen Authorized To Seek Contract For Waste Disposal

Selectmen last Thursday were authorized to seek a contract for the disposal of solid waste in Winchester in the final session of the Dec. 6 special town meeting.

After more than three hours of discussion, including a presentation by members of the Solid Waste Disposal Study Committee SWDSC TMM Gerald D. Saks offered an amendment to the main motion. The amendment passed on a standing vote of 70-43. Selectmen voted against the amendment.

The main motion and the amendment (in bold face) is as follows:

"Moved that the Board of Selectmen is authorized to negotiate a contract with Resources System Inc. or of other qualified manufacturer or contractor using the so-called starved air method to provide refuse disposal services to the town of Winchester, renewable annually, subject to an appropriation at the 1974 annual town meeting of a suffieient sum to cover the initial 12-month operating period."

Originally the main motion included the words "for a 5-year period, renewable annually ..." The reference to a time period was removed by the town meeting on a voice vote.

Previous to debate on the waste disposal question, Vartkes K. Karaian, chairman; and James Denton, Arthur Gast and Ralph Mooradian, all of the Solid Waste Disposal Study Committee,talked about different aspects of the committee's findings and recommendations.

Karaian recalled the SWDSC was established by the 1971 annual town meeting to conduct a study of waste disposal problems in the town. The committee discovered there are "both long and short term solutions"

The long term solution was described as probably being a regional concept. Meanwhile, on the short term, Karaian said, "if the existing incinerator is to be continued, necessary steps must be taken to comply with health and air quality regulations."

Compliance with the Federal Clean Air Act and the Mass. Air Pollution Control Regulatinns for municipal incincerators is a priority goal, he said.

He reminded the assembly of the $1,500 paid to Anderson-Nichols & Co. for stack testing studies in the fall of 1972. Anderson-Nichols found the emission levels at the Winchester incinerator to be considerably above that allowed by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency and the Mass. Dept. of Public Health.

Subsequently, Anderson-Nichols was paid $14,200 for engineering services and for proposing abatement procedure and control systems capable of satisfying the requirements of regulations to achieve emission limitations.

Anderson-Nichols now recommends the installation of a scrubber system to reduce emissions and to perform other plant improvements at a cost of $494,200. The expected increase in annual operating costs for the incinerator amounts to $39,200 per year, Karaian explained.

SWDSC investigated other alternatives, Karaian said. Publicly inviting bids, they received six estimates and recommendations and two letters of interest.

He said a bid was received from Resource System, Inc., which provides a system of modular incineration units. In the eyes of the SWDSC, this deserves the most merit.

Karaian said that Winchester has already received a notice of violation from the state. He noted that non-compliance with emissions control regulations could cost the town from $100 to $500 per day and, if cited by court order, $25,000 per day for non-compliance, Karaian said spelling out the urgency of the matter.

Using slides, James Denton discussed alternatives to the Resource Systems plan. His detailed presentation became rather technical to his listeners.

Later, Selectman John Sullivan listed the alternatives as fix the old incinerator which is about 12 years old, build a new one, buy the service, or truck the trash out

Referring to the bids received from firms offering contract services, Arthur Gast focused on the Resource System. He said the town needs a receiving station where citizens can deposit rubbish in safety, an incinerator facility to be run by the contractor, and a back-up system.

He said SWDSC sought to find a contractor to receive, store and incinerate 300 tons of trash a week. The contractor would have to have equipment located at the present incinerator site on Swanton street, and comply with all EPA and state laws.

Resourse Systems, he said, would also provide containers for the deposit of trash by citizens. The receiving station would have paved roads and be covered against the weather, and there would be a separate traffic plan for private haulers and individual citizens. The system is "capable of burning any kind of trash you can conjure up," Gast said.

Resource Systems Inc., a new firm which has the northeast territory rights for Consumat of Richmond, Va.,builders of the incineration equipment, was of concern to some town meeting members. TMM Clarence S. Borggaard wondered if "they are financially sound."

Selectman Sullivan acknowledged the company is "brand new" with a Dun & Bradstreet rating of EEE but noted the town has received notification from "their bank that they are backing the firm."

Arthur Hewis said he "objected to the idea of not wanting to go with a new company." He said he favored the modular system. "It is best for the town," he said adding that "cutting the tax is a damn good idea."

Ralph Mooradian pointed out costs of all alternatives.

Presently, he said, it costs the town $2,016,682 to operate the incinerator over a five-year period.

On the other hand, Resource Systems has offered to do the work for $1,621,925 over the same five years giving a saving of $394,757.

A bid from DeMatteo Co. called for charges of $2,860,000 over a five-year period.

A turnkey operation, would mean Winchester personnel would man, operate and maintain a new incinerator facility at a cost of $709,600.

TMM William Zettler said "It sounds like the turnkey might be cheaper."

Mooradian said the committee is "still working for another plan." He noted it would be better to update the present incinerator rather than have two."

TMM Gerald Saks raised questions of ownership of the equipment after five years duration, liability if EPA standards are not met, and how can you save money if people are still on the payroll."

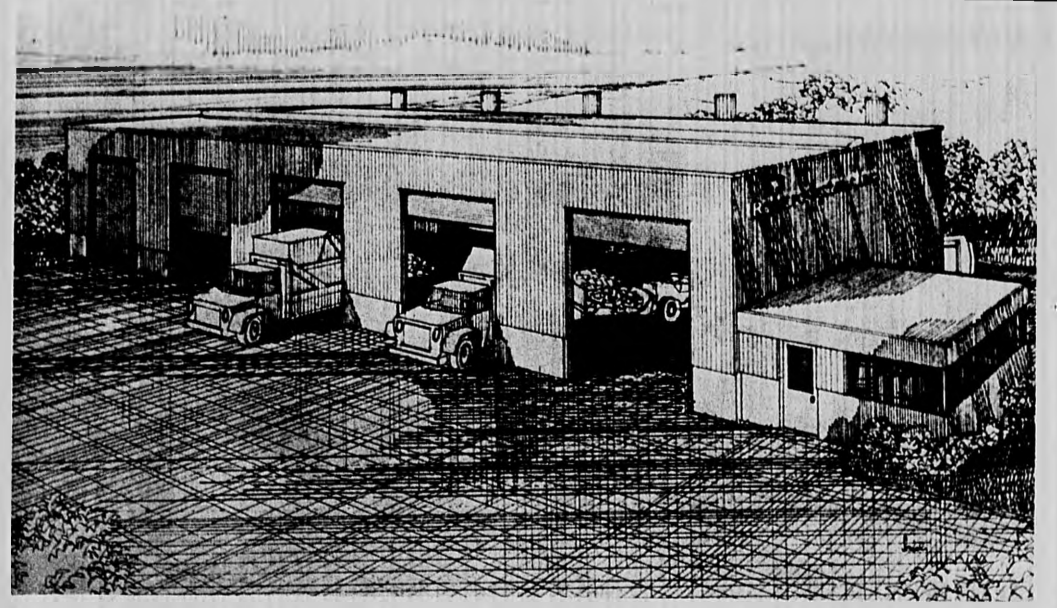

Selectman Sullivan reminded town meeting members that they were not being asked to vote money for a particular system. They were being asked to allow selectmen to negotiate. Town meeting can accept or reject such negotiation.

Sullivan pointed out many areas of concern yet to be discussed: hours of operation, a performance bond, a pattern clause, what if the town has 70 tons instead of 50 tons of trash, monitoring, adequate storage capacity, fuel and electrical costs, insurance, a non-conformance clause, zoning arrangements (presently a contractor would have to go to the Board of Appeals), taxes, payment terms, option to renew or break contract and an arbitration clause.

"There's a good month's work ahead," Sullivan said. Favorable action tonight "will show the state the town is interested and is making an expression of good faith"

Town meeting applauded Planning Board Chairman Otto Schaefer who, recommended the deletion of the words "five years" from the original motion. They applauded a resident who suggested that selectmen return to the annual town meeting with a recycling policy as a part of their new program.

After the close of the meeting, The Star asked Chairman Karaian for his reaction to the night's proceedings. He said he had no objection to the deletion of the time period nor the additional words to the main motion. "I wonder now if legally we've got to go out on bid again," he said.

Model of proposed rebuilt Winchester incinerator. Facility would be manned by one person.

St. Mary's Is Setting For LaCascia-Winslow Ceremony

Phyllis Maria LaCascia became the bride of Kevin Winslow recently at St. Mary's Church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mark S. Sheehan. A reception followed at Montvale Plaza, Stoneham.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter LaCascia of 34 Oxford st. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Winslow of Arlington.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a princess-styled Bianchi gown of silk organza with venise lace trim around the high collar, trumpet sleeves and hem. Crystals and pearls in a scroll design highlighted the front panel and sleeves and the entire gown was lined in a blush pink material.

The bride's headpiece was a large Juliet band covered with matching fabric and beads which flowed into a chapel length blush pink and white veil. She carried long stemmed white roses.

Mrs. Rachel Thomas of Long Island, N.Y., was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a blue floral printed chiffon gown featuring a high ruffled collar and ruffled cuffed bishop sleeves. She carried a basket of fall flowers.

Dressed identically to the honor attendant in gold gowns were the bride's sisters Esther and Regina LaCascia who served as junior bridesmaids. The bride's cousin Ramona Federici was flower girl.

Keith Winslow of Nashua, N.H., was best man for his brother. Ushers were Kenney Winslow, John Thomas, Frank Cammarata and Peter Davoli. The bride's brother Peter LaCascia was ring bearer.

After a honeymoon trip to Canada, the couple lives in Medford.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Sprogis of 6 Ridgefield rd. announce the engagement of their daughter, Minerva Ames, to David Heywood Brownell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Brownell II of Worcester.

A 1971 graduate of Winchester High School, Miss Sprogis attended Denver University and is now employed by R. H. Stearns Co.

A graduate of Fryeburg Academy, Mr. Brownell is employed by Solberg Construction Co.

A June wedding is planned.

Tufts To Help Those With Study Or Reading Problems

Greater Boston area children and adults with serious reading or study problems will find help beginning in January at the new Tufts University learning center.

Located in the Tufts department of education in Medford, the learning center will use teaching tools designed to stimulate the learner's basic skills and cognitive growth. Programs will be suited to the personal needs of each student.

The center's staff of professional reading specialists believe that serious reading problems can be corrected with practice, precision teaching and parental cooperation over a long period of time. Minor correctional problems can be helped over a shorter period of time.

The learning center will serve students nine years of age and older on a fee basis. Financial aid may be requested.

Instructions in all the basic study skills: handwriting, spelling, word attack skills, and paragraph reading will be on an individualized or small group basis, as appropriate. For older learners who wish to increase their learning skills the clinic will stress rapid reading teachniques, vocabulary ,enrichment, and critical reading.

For further information write to The Learning Center, Dept. of Education, Tufts University, Medford, 02155.

Miss Mugford Marries Mr. Crowell

Emily-Anne Mugford and Charles Eugene Crowell III were united in marriage at noon on Nov. 24 at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Rockland, Me.

The Rev. Walter H. Collins performed the double ring service. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents in Owls Head.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold James Mugford, formerly of Winchester. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eugene Crowell of Scottdale, Pa.

The bride wore a simple antique white gown of imported soft cotton which she fashioned herself. She carried a colonial bouquet of mixed colored flowers.

Her sister, Mrs. Arthur I. Robinson Jr. of Riverside, Conn., was her only attendant. H. Kenneth Schueler of Great Neck, Long Island, N.Y., served as best man.

The bride attended the Belmont Day School, Winchester High School, and is a graduate of Manter Hall in Cambridge. She attended Hood College and Boston University and completed her work for a bachelor's degree in philosophy at the University of Reading, Reading, England. She is employed in the state attorney general's office in Montpelier, Vt.

The bridegroom studied at the University of Virginia and later received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Pittsburgh. He holds a master of arts degree from Goddard College. He has worked extensively in higher education design and has lectured at several colleges and universities.

Mr. Crowell has been director of the Walden Institute for Graduate Studies and assistant to the president at Mark Hopkins College. Currently he works for the State of Vermont's Agency of Environmental Conservation as he prepares for a doctorate in cultural economics.

They are now residing in Montpelier, Vt.

Mrs. Charles Eugene Crowell

Parkhurst, Ambrose Pupils See Ballet

Last Tuesday 130 Parkhurst and Ambrose School pupils, parents, and younger brothers and sisters enjoyed watching six fellow Winchester students performing in the Boston Ballet's traditional holiday performance of Tchaikowsky's "Nutcracker."

The venture was sponsored with families in mind by the Enrichment Committees of Parkhurst and Ambrose, who arranged for tickets and transportation.

Arthur Fiedler conducted a full symphony orchestra for the performance. The cast of 150 included principals and corps de ballet from the Boston Ballet Co., boys from the St. Paul's Choir School, and children from the Boston Ballet School who were selected in auditions.

Alexis Nasson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Nasson of 21 Fernway portrayed Hoops. April Vartanian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vartan Vartanian of 30 Berkshire dr., played an angel and a mouse. The girls are students at Lynch Junior High school.

Jane Kasarjian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kasarjian of 45 Robin Hood rd., portrayed an angel, mouse and reindeer. Marilyn Grifoni, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grifoni of 10 Wickam rd., played an angel and reindeer. These girls are high school students.

Cynthia Bianco, a student at Parkhurst School, played a soldier. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bianco of 32 Cambridge st.

And Adam Goodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Goodman of 287 Highland ave., was a party guest.

This annual performance is the one opportunity for children of the Boston Ballet School to dance with the professional company.

Karen Sullivan

Miss Sullivan, Mr. Wharton To Wed In January

Mr.and Mrs. Robert C. Sullivan of 8 Hill st. announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen Ann, to Stanley David Wharton of Arlington.

The bride-to-be is a 1972 graduate of Winchester High School and is attending Middlesex Community College in Bedford.

Mr. Wharton, a 1971 graduate of Arlington High School, is attending Northeastern University. He is employed by Teledyne Material Research Co. in Waltham.

A January wedding is planned.

Mrs. Hintlian Aids McLean Hospital

Mrs. Deran Hintlian of Winchester is among 1600 friends of McLean Hospital, Belmont, who attended a recent performance of "The Nutcracker Ballet" at the Music Hall in Boston. This was the McLean Auxiliary's major 1973 fund-raising event and set a record for the number of tickets the organization has sold for any single benefit. More than $7000 in proceeds from the event will go to a number of hospital programs.

Bloodmobile Next Thursday

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will make a special visit to Winchester on Dec. 27. The bloodmobile will be set up in the Red Cross Chapter House at 39 Church st., next to the Winchester Trust Company. There will be three beds in service. Donors will be received from noon to 4:45 p.m.

Appointments must be made in advance through the Red Cross office.

Pupil Programs Focus On Sounds, Sights Of Season

"Tis the season to be jolly."

Winchester children are into the swing of the season as holiday programs focussing on music, drama, winter and social traditions are scheduled at their schools.

Today, pupils at the Wyman School are presenting a program about the "sound of bells proclaiming good will and friendship." Children will sing while accompanying themselves on the glockenspiel and drums.

Also, today, Noonan School students are holding a musical holiday program including songs from all nations. The program, including children in grades K-6, will begin at 1:15 p.m. at Lynch.

Tonight at 7:45 Lynch Junior High School students will present a holiday concert in the cafetorium Presentations will be made by the orchestra, the seventh and eighth grade chorus, the band and the junior high jazz band. The concert is open to the public.

Several schools held programs yesterday. "The Sights, Sounds and Feelings of the Season," was the theme of a program at the Washington School involving all grades. Besides singing holiday songs, their musicale included scenes around the fireplace, family settings and outdoor tree scenes. Grades 5 and 6 sang "African Noel" and "Good King Wenceslas."

Also, yesterday, Muraco School pupils invited parents to their holiday musicale. Grades 1-6 were involved. In addition, children in grades 1-2 are collecting mittens which will be taken to the Home for Little Wanderers.

The Parkhurst School kindergarten held a Christmas workshop. Children made different presents each day for nine days. On the 10th day, their parents came to the school for a party and to receive gifts made by the children.

On Tuesday night the Parkhurst Parents Association held an oldtime carol singing for pupils and parents. Brass accompaniment was provided by high school students.

Last Friday students at the Vinson-Owen School sang songs in the auditorium. Individual classes also sang Christmas carols and Chanukah songs, and in art classes they focused on subjects of the season.

Last week "The Signs and Sounds of the Season" was presented at the Mystic School. Parents were invited to the school to join their children in singing songs. The second grade offered a dance.

Students at the McCall Junior High held an art bazaar yesterday in the school auditorium. Later they held a holiday concert. The art bazaar featured works of the ninth grade. The concert included the Junior High Orchestra under the direction of John Woodworth.

Eighth graders presented an original musical called "Celebrate with Grade 8." Eleanor Thistlethwaite is their leader.

Also featured on the concert program were the seventh and ninth grade mixed chorus under Paul G. Davis; the combined junior high jazz band under David M. Kantoff; and interlude music by the Frozen Heat Band.

Last Friday night a Christmas concert was held at the high school. The program, which lasted about 1 ½ hours, featured the choir with harpsicord and strings under the direction of Burton Cowgill; the orchestra led by John Woodworth; and the brass choir directed by Fred Murray. The concert was open to the public.

'Grinch' Steals Two Wreaths

Two Christmas wreathes were stolen recently from the front door of the home of Judge Francis Cullen, 78 Bacon st.

The wreaths were taken in separate incidents, the latest Monday of this week. "My mother is very upset. She did a lot of ironing of the ribbons" for the wreaths, one of the Cullen children said.

Two wreaths stolen is one too many for the Cullens. They have placed another decoration on the door. And not only that, they are keeping the storm door locked all the time.

Other thefts on Monday included an outdoor bulb at 21 Stowell rd., the second within the past week; a copper drain spout from the Winchester Unitarian Church; and items from a vehicle parked in the area of the USA Rink.

Philip Sbraccia of Harwich reported his 1970 Lincoln was struck Sunday night while parked on Main street across from the BP gas station.

A woman waiting for a train at the railroad statilon reported that a man exposed himself to her. The incident was reported to have taken place about 11:20 a.m. Monday. Officer Kevin Mawn investigated but was unable to locate anyone in the area.

Barry T. Steel of Somerville and a junenile were arrested at Wedgemere station about 2:10 p.m. Monday for attempted larceny of a motor vehicle.

Residents at 15 Madison ave. west and 362 South Border rd. reported their homes entered by intruders. A man was seen leaving the Madison avenue address and evidence showed that the S. Border road home was entered by a rear cellar door. Nothing appeared to be missing at either location.

Sunday

On Sunday, police investigated a report that 15 Madison ave., home of Paul Douglas, had been entered. A television set, typewriter and radio were reported taken.

Robert L. Hogan of Woburn remains at Winchester Hospital with fractured ribs and a lacerated mouth after his car struck a tree Sunday at 1:15 a.m. in front of the Winchester Hospital continuing care unit. He was taken by police ambulance to the main emergency room.

The hospital reports he is "fairly comfortable."

At 1:30 a.m., a Reading man driving northerly on Highland ave. was run off the road by another car, he reported.

Officer R.J. Anselino reported he was sitting in a Washington street delicatessen when a boy told him he found a gun in an abandoned church on Cross street.

The church, believed used as a hideout by youths, has not been in use for 10 years. The gun, a .22 calibre rifle, was stolen in Canada in June. It was found in a piano in the cellar.

Saturday

Raymond Simpson of 10 Lawson rd. reported his home entered and ransacked sometime during the evening. Silverware and a diamond pendant were reported missing.

Brother's Pizza, 883 Main st., reported a break. Blank checks, $8 in cash from a register and $25 from another place, as well as a radio and television, were stolen. Entry was by breaking a window in the rear.

Six windows were reported broken at a house under construction at 11 Buckman dr. An accident was reported at 3 p.m. at Woodside ave. and Ardley rd. James F. Rawson, 34, of Medford was treated at the hospital. The driver of the other car involved in this two-car collision was not injured.

Carl Benson of Arlington was driving along Ridge st. at 7:45 a.m. when his car skidded, went over a lawn and hit a tree at 245 Ridge st.

Two youths reportedly siphoned gasoline from cars parked in Bonnell's lot on upper Main street.

Mrs. Electra Apostolou of 1 Chardon rd. reported at 11:30 p.m. a pellet had been shot through her front door window. Police found it lodged in a picture hanging on a wall 14 feet away.

Breaks were reported at 34 Ridge st. and 37 Lloyd st.

LUNCH TIME ON THE ARK Japhet (Robert Lee) and Kelly (Kelly Shea) try to comfort Little Lion (Dominic Shea) held by Noah (Jim Graves) in a scene from Noah's Ark, the recent production of the Winchester Children's Theatre.

MRS. NOAH, portrayed by Rebecca Downs, gives lunch to Lion (Amy Nastasi) and some of the 42 children aboard the Ark in the drama "Noah's Ark" produced by the Winchester Community Theatre.

Friday

A Littleton man was arrested at 3 a.m. on a variety of charges relating to his car striking a sign at Church and Main sts. The 38-year-old man was arraigned at Woburn District Court. One of the charges was driving under the influence.

A car driven by a Burlington man on Highland ave. at Hillcrest pkwy. at 8:10 p.m. lost its brakes, went across Highland ave., over the sidewalk and through a fence.

Bottles were reportedly thrown through two rear windows at ABC House on Dix street at midnight. There was a report of a break at 40 Westland rd.

Two cars were damaged in an accident Friday at 8:30 a.m. at Mt. Vernon st. and Highland ave. at the parkway. Drivers were listed as Mary F. Lewis of 10 Bigelow ave. and Mary J. Hanley of 200 Swanton st.

Thursday

Town treasurer Marguerite Troop told police at 1:17 a.m. that the car she was driving was forced off the road by an oncoming car on Highland ave.

The car hit a pole. Mrs. Troop was not injured.

A resident of 27 Eaton st. reported gasoline had been siphoned from a car parked there.

Wednesday

Youths reportedly broke a plate glass window at the Handicraft House, 10 Thompson st., at 8 p.m.

AA Speaker Addresses VNA; 75th Anniversary Planned

A seven-year member of Alcoholics Anonymous, also a member of the board of directors for AA for four years, was guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association.

Also on the agenda was the 75th anniversary celebration of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association scheduled for next year.

Introduced by Mrs. Harry Foden, the guest speaker opened his talk by saying that a person never recovers from being an alcoholic. Alcoholism is a disease which can be arrested but is never cured, he said. He spoke of alcoholism as a three-pronged disease: mental, with an obsession to drink; physical, with a compulsion to drink; and spiritual because it affects a change in values.

He said every community and person is affected by alcoholism which is recognized by the American Medical Associaton as a disease. He spoke of Metropolitan Boston as being rated number two in the country when it comes to the number of alcoholics in the area. "It is the third greatest killer in the United States," the anonymous speaker said.

Alcoholics Anonymous was founded in 1935 by two men. AA is a fellowship of men and women who share their hopes and fears to help others stop drinking, the speaker said. The chief purpose of a member of AA is "to stay sober."

There are active organizations in 90 countries with 100,000 people staying sober through the AA program. The guest speaker claimed that 75 percent of those seeking help are receiving it.

Alcoholism in women was discussed by the guest speaker. In days past alcoholism in women went undetected, he said, but according to recent polls one-fourth of all alcoholics are women.

He spoke of alcoholism as being a disease that thrives on boredom and inactivity. It is not hereditary nor can it be passed from one generation to another. It doesn't make any difference when you start to drink or how old you are, but how much you drink and what it does to you, he said.

The speaker concluded by saying that to an alcoholic sobriety comes first - before church or family. The most important word to an alcoholic is "help."

Mrs. Hugh McCarthy, president of the Winchester VNA said that posters announcing the upcoming 75th anniversary of the local organization will be displayed in business windows. She said that educational materials telling about Visiting Nurses will be the theme for January in the Bixby and Northrup Realty Co. window.

Mrs. Raymond Carter, treasurer, reported a money gift from the will of Mrs. Ella Arnold Dutch, which the VNA board of directors have gratefully acknowledged.

Historical Group Sells 'New' Map

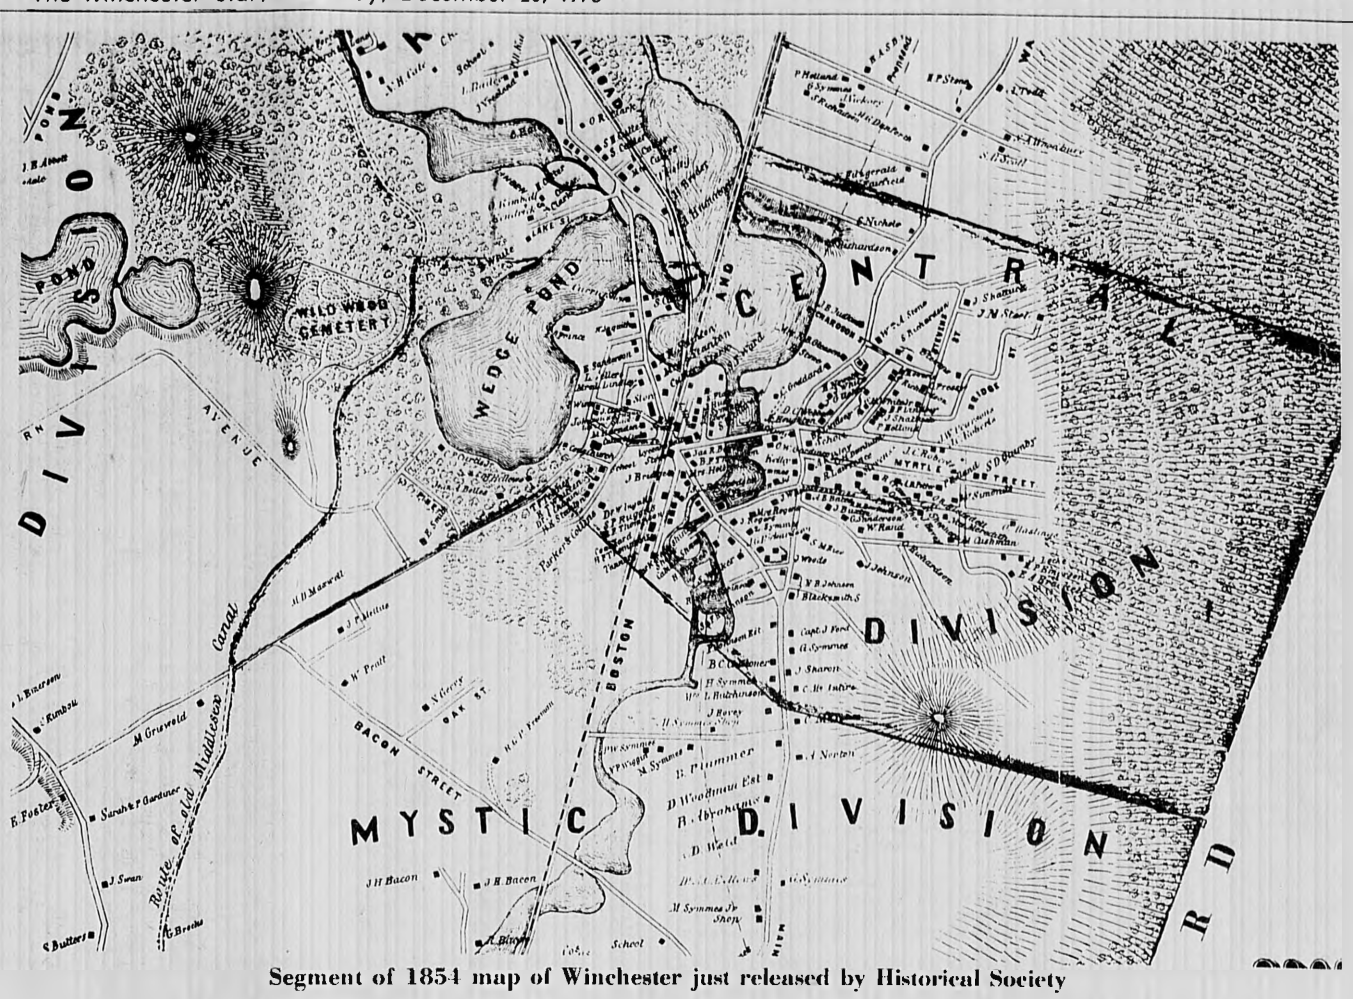

The Winchester Historical Society will release its second pictorial map in time for last minute Christmas gift shoppers. This new edition, an 1854 pictorial map, will match its popular predecessor the 1886 version in sepia tones on buff colored paper.

Mrs. W.K. Ver Planck says Middlesex Canal Buffs can rejoice, for here well delineated, is the old course of the canal through Winchester in relation to the houses and streets that existed then." She explains the canal's use as a vital passenger and freight waterway was abandoned in 1853 one year prior to the map printing. The railroads perpetrated its demise. Thus, she says, the contemporary 1854 town achitecture which was used to decorate the borders of this interesting map can be said to reflect the birth of Winchester as a railroad suburb.

Maps will be distributed for sale at the town engineer's office, and at banks and realty offices. Plain maps may be bought after Christmas to be decorated by Society members.

On Jan. 17 at the new Lincoln School Auditorium the Historical Society will make a slide presentation on Winchester vs. The British 1775.

Accidentally Overheard

Advertising is generally here to stay, but there's one bit of advertising that was not allowed to remain in France. This was a huge electric Citroen sign on the Eiffel Tower in Paris. The sign was switched on on July 4, 1925 and could be seen twenty-four miles away. 25,000 lamps and fifty-six miles of electric cables were used to create the light. The whole thing was taken down in 1936.

Pictures, like an advertisement, have many things to say, without many words. At WINCHESTER CAMERA SHOP, 36 Waterfield Rd. (near PO), 729-3636, we would like to develop your gift ideas. This Christmas why not give a photo of your loved ones to your loved ones and say "merry Christmas" without words. Fine KODAK PROCESSING available. We also have a beautiful line of KODAK cameras for fine gift giving.

New Board Members Named To Winchester Hospital; James Cites Major Concerns

Two new members were elected to the board of directors of Winchester Hospital at the annual meeting held recently at the Winchester Country Club:

They are Daniel T. Chane Jr. of 125 Forest st., a retired vice-president of the New England Power Company and George W. Boylen Jr. of Wilmington, associate industrial hygiene officer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Chane is a member of the Engineers Club of Boston and has served on the Winchester Board of Appeals, the School Committee and the Finance Committee. He is a graduate of Tufts University.

Daniel T. Chane Jr.

Boylen, the first resident of Wilmington to serve on the hospital's board of directors, was a former chairman of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. He is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, and is presently a diplomate of the American Academy of Industrial Hygiene.

In his address to the annual meeting, Reese E. James, administrator, commented on several areas of major concern to the hospital during the past year. They consist of the dire need for more land, the hospital's financial picture for the past year, the introduction of "day surgery" to the hospital's services, increasing controls on the hospital by regulatory agencies, and hospital parking.

More Land

"We find ourselves in the position of trying to fit a size 12 foot into a size 6 shoe. At a minimum, we should have twice as much land as we now have. With the board's authority, we have been purchasing properties in the Valley road-Forest street area with the original intent to use some of it for employee off-street parking and, other than this obvious need, to hold the property for future needs."

James noted that all properties currently owned by the hospital are leased and occupied and pay real estate taxes "and, thus are not a tax drain to the Town"

Financial Picture

"The combined operation of the acute hospital and the Continuing Care Unit had a net surplus of $1,000, based on operation of 8.6 million dollars. This is truly 'non profit,' James said, but more importantly, it is an insufficient margin that does not allow for the accumulation of dollars that are necessary for growth and development.

"We now have a worsening situation with Welfare and Medicare--the State has just not been funding its welfare medical services and now owes the hospital some $450,000. On top of this, Medicare owes the Hospital over $300,000," he notes adding the past several years have been one long financial crunch. We work out of one and back into another. Total unreimbursed care and discounts amounted to amost $700,000 this past year alone," he said.

Day Surgery

"Shortly after the first of the year we expect to be adding day surgery to our services," James said.

This will involve minor elective procedures admitted in the morning and discharged the same day. "The purpose is to reduce the cost to the patient for having this minor procedure done by eliminating an overnight stay," Janes noted.

Increasing Controls

"Regulations and control are the immediate future for hospitals. The health field, and hospitals in particular, are fast approaching an over-regulated field. More and more there is the belief that the hospitals are the focal point of health care and, that by controlling hospital dollars, this will, in effect, control health care costs. There is every indication that Cost of Living Council control on hospitals will continue for some time," James said.

Hospital Parking

"This is a matter that has taken a substantial amount of time," said James. "We have explored a number of solutions. On a short-term basis, we have been working with the selectmen toward leasing 22 Highland avenue. This is town-owned land that the selectmen can lease for a maximum of five years. We have had tentative engineering studies done and estimate that it will accommodate 185 cars with a site cost of just under $100,000, James concluded.

In his report, hospital president Robert B. Kittredge paid tribute to the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association which founded the hospital and will be celebrating its 75th anniversary in January 1974. Kittredge also described the growth of the physical facilities over the past 61 years and compared present day statistics to those of ten years ago.

"During the past 10 years, we have seen an increase in patient admissions from 5555 in 1963 to 7809 this past year. Outpatients have tripled, from 5,268 to 16,688 while laboratory examinations have skyrocketed from 50,743 to 113,905. What then does the future hold for us? Can we plan on a continuation of the growth of the past ten years over the next ten?"

"Consistent with these trends, our plans for expansion which have been in the development stage for the past two years will be directed primarily towards additional space for outpatient services and procedures and modernization or replacement of existing substandard facilities.

"The final decision as to any addition to our facilities will of course depend upon the Massachusetts Public Health Council which is the ultimate authority that passes on the 'need' of every proposed building program by Massachusetts hospitals."

Dr. Joseph J. O'Connor, president of the medical and dental staff, reported on the surgical residency program introduced at the hospital during the past year.

"The new program of training first-year surgical residents has been extremely popular," he said. "The resident surgeons benefit from the large variety and volume of challenging cases treated at our hospital and, frankly, staff doctors are pushed a bit to answer searching questions asked by these bright young surgeons-in-training."

"An important staff committee determined whether patients had to be admitted for their treatment instead of having it done on an outpatient basis; whether tests, procedures, X-rays, were really indicated and done promptly, and whether the patient was kept too long. This committee watches us all, tries to make sure that hospital facilities are used properly and, in general, that costs are kept down as well as possible," O'Connor said.

"For the first time, except for review by service chiefs, committees are looking over the doctor's shoulder to make sure that his management of the patient's case conforms to accepted standards. This is a new concept spawned by federal law over a year ago to make sure that the Medicare and Medicaid dollar was spent wisely. Doctors are used to having their work reviewed critically but this is a new dimension and we are in the process of setting up a fair mechanism for getting this done," said O'Connor.

George W. Boylen Jr.

In other business, Mrs. George L. Connor, George H. Gowdy, Robert B. Kittredge, Charles L. Raffi, Jr., William D. Sullivan and Antonio J. Tambone were re-elected directors for the next three years. James R. Willing was re-elected to serve as trustee for three years.

Newely-elected to the nominating committee were Mrs. Justin L. Anderson and Donato Cattineri. Re-elected to the committee were Richard E. Bennink, Mrs. Harry P. Hood, Jr. and John F. Sexton.

Re-elected to serve as officers of the corporation were: Robert B. Kittredge, president; Kenneth C. Latham, vice-president; Sumner R. Andrews, secretary and Ralph W. Hatch, treasurer.

Winchester Banker

Savings Bank Major Factor In Economic Life Of Town

James F. Dwinell Jr., president of the Winchester Savings Bank, lists several items the bank at 26 Mount Vernon st. offers.

One which he stresses is the personal interest the bank takes in customers. Mr. Dwinell adds he would feel disappointed if a customer didn't feel welcome at the bank. Other beneficial services: the Winchester Savings Bank pays the highest interest permitted by law on accounts; mortgage facilities are flexible; regardless of the amount of the deposit, it will be fully insured.

The Winchester Savings Bank offers all the popular types of accounts, including the new NOW (negotiable order of withdrawal) account.

Total assets add up to over $61 million. About $40 million of the bank's investments are in real estate mortgage, 80 percent of which are Winchester homes and businesses. Says Mr. Dwinell, "I feel that this makes us a vital economic and social factor in the community."

The Winchester Savings Bank has long been part of the Dwinell family. Mr. Dwinell's great-grandfather helped incorporate the mutual savings bank in 1871. James Dwinell has been president for 23 years.

Born in Winchester Mr. Dwinell attended Choate School in Connecticut and went on to graduate from Harvard University in 1931.

While in sales management at the Traveler's Insurance Co., Boston, Mr. Dwinell was elected a corporator of the bank, then a trustee and subsequently to the board of investment. In 1950 he was elected to the presidency and assumed those duties in addition to his work with Traveler's. Three years later he resigned from the latter to devote full time to the Winchester Savings Bank.

Mrs. Dwinell is the former Alice Eaton of Winchester. She attended the Winchester school system.

The Dwinells have two children: a daughter, Mrs. Jean Ferguson of Sherbourne, and a son, James F. 3rd of Wayland.

Mrs. Ferguson, a Smith graduate, is active in alumnae activities. She and her husband have two children. James 3rd was graduated from Harvard University where he played basketball and hockey. He is vice-president of the Cambridge Trust Co. He has two children.

When it comes to relaxation, Mr. and Mrs. Dwinell go in for golf. He was formerly active on committees such as the Finance Committee, board of selectmen and Water and Sewer Board. He was chairman of the latter two.

Mrs. Dwinell is a member of the Winton Club and the EnKa Society.

The Dwinells belong to the Winchester Country Club.

Serratore Birth

Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Serratore of Medford are parents of their second child, first son, David Dominic, born Dec. 6 at Winchester Hospital. Grandparents are Nunzio Furfari of Dorchester and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Serratore of Winchester.

Lt. Crawford Ends Advanced Course

Lt. Andrew Crawford, a member of the Winchester Police Department, has completed a one week course entitled, "Advanced Management Practies" at the New England Institute for Law Enforcement Management at Babson College.

The intensive one-week program included instruction in organizational behavior, techniques on management planning, executive decision making, and conference organization and leadership communication. Faculty members from Babson College and other Greater Boston area colleges conducted the workshop sessions.

The New England Institue is co-sponsored by the New England Association of Chiefs of Police and Babson College, and is funded by a grant from the U. S. Department of Justice.

Lynch Closes Due To Problem With Fuel Mixture

Because of a problem with the No. 5 fuel used to heat the building, Lynch Junior High School was closed yesterday but expected to reopen today.

According to William Clark, assistant superintendent of schools, there apparently was some difficulty with the mixture of the fuel.

Clark explains that No. 5 fuel is a mixture of No. 6 (Bunker C fuel) and No. 2 (domestic fuel as used to heat homes). The addition of the other fuels thins out No. 5.

Clark says "sometimes the mixture stratifies and becomes too thin or too heavy, and sometimes water gets into the mixture."

The problem was discovered on Tuesday. The forced hot water heater was shut down Tuesday night.

Coach Predicts:

'A Great Year Ahead For WHS Boys' Swim Team'

The 1973-74 season has brought promise of a great year for the Winchester High School WHS boy's swim team, Coach Vincent Palumbo says.

Many new and capable swimmers have been added to the very experienced varsity team, which was not hurt badly by last year's graduation, the coach said. Returning juniors Vincent Palumbo and Michael Corf (two of this year's tri-captains), along with Chip Vick Roy, Brian Conley, Richard Hines, Jay Williams, Eric Enge and newcomers Jim Frizzell and Alec Goodman represent the strong and seasoned senior backbone of the team.

Also returning are this year's juniors, including Steve Armstrong (remaining tri-captain), Peter Cresse, Roy Palumbo, Scott Bradley, John Khor, Bob Burns, Jody Ciccio, David Karp, and Marty Kent, who all contributed much to last year's squad.

The list of first year men include juniors John Fichera, John Parkhurst, Doug Lane, and Hugh Van Roosen, along with sophomores, John Henriques, Dan Holmes, Richard Minutoli and Tom Zappala, which adds strength to the few Sachem weak sports.

This year's wishes for an undefeated season for coaches Vin Palumbo and Joe Grant were encouraged greatly as the Sachems romped in their first practice meet against a well-established Fitchburg High School team. The final score was 60-23.

The difference could very well have been more. The Winchester swimmers took first places in nine of 11 events and eight of 11 second places. Besides taking the two relays, individual firsts went to Winchester's Steve Armstrong in the 200 and 500 yard freestyle, Jim Frizzell in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle, Vinny Palumbo in the 200 yard individual medley, Chip Vick Roy in the diving, and Roy Palumbo in the 100 yard butterfly.

The team as a whole produced very good times for this early in the season and are well on their way to an outstanding season.

WHS scoring:

Woburn By 4-2 Over Sachems In Hockey Play

By John F. Parrell

The Woburn Tanners rebounded from the 4-0 setback handed to them by the Sachems as they trounced the local sextet in the Middlesex League opener.

Playing on their home ice and with their flashy captain D'Arcangelo in the lineup they piled up a four goal lead before Mark Siegfriedt came up with two goals for the final 4-2 count.

The Tanners, badly outplayed in the scrimmage at Melrose, were an entirely different team in the regular league game. They skated well, checked hard and put everything together for a well deserved victory. The Sachems were far below the type of hockey they played a week ago. They must regain that form if they are to stay in the league race.

Connolly tallied twice in the first period for Woburn, with Hunt and then D'Arcangelo denting the net in the second period. Mark Siegfriedt, who registered a hat trick in the scrimmage, drove home both Winchester goals. The first came on a pass from Kevin Pierce, while Tommy Brennan combined with him for the final Winchester tally.

The Lexington Minutemen came here on Wednesday for a game with the Sachems. Winchester will play Belmont at the Watertown rink on Saturday afternoon at four. They meet Watertown at the USA rink next Wednesday with the faceoff scheduled [illegible]. p.m.

Winchester Edges Pee Wee Lions 3-2

The St. Eulalia Pee Wee Lions went against the iron of the town and were never headed through most of the contest.

A defensive lapse in the last five minutes of the third period relinquished the lead to the Townies for the first time in the contest. St. Eulalia's broke on top, 1-0, in the first period on a goal by Jack Collins on a pass from Rich Arnold. Jimmy Wilbur tied it up for Winchester, 1-1, and the game stayed deadlocked the remainder of the first period.

In the second period each team had excellent scoring opportunities, but outstanding goaltending by both teams held each team at bay until the third period. Rich Arnold put the St. Eulalia's Lions on top for the second time in the contest on a nifty backhanded goal that beat the goalie cleanly.

The Lions had a territory edge in play in the third period, but unfortunately lack of defensive hustle gave the Townies the opportunity they needed in the last five mintues, and in both cases the well disciplined team coached by Ed Doherty took advantage of the situation and put Winchester on top with but 2:58 left to edge the Lions 3-2.

The Lions now have a 2-4-2 record as opposed to Winchester's 4-42. Hats off to Bob Tolentino who was outstanding in the nets for St. Eulalia's. Also to Tommy Guaretta for gusty play. Let's not forget a goal and an assist by "Big Red" Arnold. The Lions are looking forward for a rematch.

Day Surgery Program Lowers Hospital Cost

The New England Memorial Hospital, Stoneham, has adopted a day surgery program for a wide variety of minor surgical procedures for which an overnight stay is not required.

According to Edward Wall, associate administrator, the purpose of a day surgery program is two-fold. "It will enable a patient to have minor surgery without being away from their home and family for a prolonged period of time and it will free hospital beds for those patients who need to be hospitalized," he advised. "The attending physician will determine whether or not a patient should be scheduled for day-surgery or admitted overnight as an in-patient."

Some of the surgical procedures which are considered suitable for day program as outline by Lois Cavanaugh, charge nurse in the operating room, include: tooth extractions, setting factures, removal of warts and wens, circumcision, D and C, vasectomy, cystoscopy, bronchoscopy and other minor diagnostic procedures which require local or general anesthesia.

"Many of the procedures which require only a local anesthesia have been performed in doctors' offices and in the hospital under out-patient care for many years," Mrs. Cavanaugh explained.

"Many of the procedures which require only a local anesthesia have been performed in doctors' offices and in the hospital under out-patient care for many years," Mrs. Cavanaugh explained.

The routine established for day surgery has been integrated with on-going procedure of NEMH. It requires no new facilities and will enable the hospital to serve more people.

Admitting supervisor Eric Olsen described the procedure for day surgery. "The patient will come to the hospital the day before surgery is scheduled to have the necessary lab work done. The following morning he will return and go to the emergency room to be prepped and medicated. From there he will be taken to the operating room.

"When the surgery has been completed the patient will be taken to the Recovery Room and will remain until he is ready to go home, usually at 6 p.m. If there is any reason why the patient should not be discharged at that time the attending physician can have the patient admitted."

Day surgery will be less expensive for the patient. It is estimated that the charge will run approximately $35 in addition to the operating and recovery room fees. The overnight charge is about $80.

"Blue Cross has been promoting the use of a day surgery program," advised Arnold Sparks, director of patients' accounts. "Other major insurance companies are also geared for it."

The various hospital departments involved in the program "are confident that any problems ecountered as the program expands will be handled to everyone's satisfaction and all are eager to embark on this new patient-service program," he said.

Leadership Citation

Constantine Alexander of 12 Ravine road was presented the Tuft University annual fund's leadership citation during volunteers' day at Tufts in November.

Acting for Tufts' president Burton C. Hallowell was Rosalyn Berenberg, chairman of the annual fund.

She presented the awards to the 43 alumni in recognition of their "distinguished service" during the 1973 fund drive.

Three New Officers Patrolling Streets

Three new police officers may be observed patrolling the streets of Winchester. James P. Cappucci, David E. Cronin and George E. Noel were appointed regular members of the Winchester Police Department on Sept. 23.

Recently all three completed a 10-week training course at the Northern Middlesex Police Academy in Wakefield. Their instructors included judges, other court personnel, police executives and officers, agents of the FBI, assistant district attorneys, Registry of Motor Vehicles inspectors, Red Cross first aid experts, state Division of Youth Services representatives, and many other experts in the law enforcement field.

The academy staff was directed by retired Chief of Police Merritt Wentzel of Wakefield. The academy was certified and guided by the Massachusetts Police Training Council.

Graduation exercises were held at the Speare House, Lowell, and attended by chiefs of the various police departments to which the 33 graduates will be attached. Winchester Chief Edward F. Bowler, a director of the academy, attended and presented diplomas to his three officers.

Assessors' Book

On sale this week at the assessors' office at Town Hall is a complete list of the town's real estate and personal property figures.

Owner of the largest valued single lot is Edward Berndt Jr., 200 Swanton st. (Parkview Apartments), at $3.5 million. Tax is listed as $217,539.

Boston Edison Co. is listed as the largest payer of personal property taxes: $152,885. Value of Edison property is put at $2.5 million.

New England Telephone Co. is next under personal property taxes: $142,736, on property valued at $2.3 million.

The annual town meeting authorized publication of the information. book is $2.50.

School Chairman

Dieterich 'Completely Opposed' To Limiting Budgetary Autonomy

The chairman of Winchester's School Committee is "completely opposed" to a move would sharply curtail the fiscal autonomy of Massachusetts school communities.

In a letter to the Board of Selectmen, which is considering taking a public stance on the issue, Harriet H. Dieterich stated: "I am sure that school committees through the Commonwealth realize that no town or city would take kindly to the insistance of school committees of unreasonable budget requests and that is would only take a very few such battles for the Great and General Court to change the law."

In addition to a statewide move to place the issue on the ballot, there have been several bills filed for the next session ofthe legislature to limit school committee budgetary powers.

A petition drive by Ten Men of Massachusetts would place the issue on the ballot. If successful, school budgets would be subject to two thirds vote of town meetings and city councils for approval.

In her letter to the selectmen, Mrs. Dieterich stated: "...I must first thank you for the general view that Winchester school committees have been cooperating with town meeting and, I believe, with other town boards and committees to produce budgets that would meet the needs of the schools and also the resources of the town....

"School Committee members are elected by the citizens of the town to run the schools and are charged by the commonwealth to do the job in a responsible way. As citizens of the town, the members are not outsiders determined to spend the town's money unreasonably, but taxpayers who wish to provide the best education for the children of the town that they and the townspeople feel they can support.

"The school budget is long and complicated and can only be understood in detail by understanding the programs, personnel, equipment and supplies for which it provides.

"Finance Committee members do spend long hours with us going over the budget, but is is simply not possible for the town meeting in an evening or two to understand more than the general outline.

"We try to provide all of the information the members need or want and to respond to their reactions. However, it would not be fair to the children of the town if ill-considered action could drastically curtail their education, nor would it benefit the town if we did not fulfill the obligation laid upon us by the state and federal governments.

"In short, the time has passed when a school committee had the only say in determination of a school budget, but the possibility of a court decision is still needed as a last resort to enable school committee members to carry out the task for which they were elected."

United Way Appeal Is Lagging Behind

Kenneth P. Trevett, chairman of the United Way campaign in Winchester, has made a strong appeal to Winchester residents to make their United Way contributions as soon as possible.

"To date, we have raised $17,782, only 80 percent of our $22,340 goal. Lagging behind in the campaign are the neighbordhood and school drives," Trevett says.

"One of the most important phases of the United Way campaign is the clean-up, making absolutely sure that every single dollar in the 'pipe-line' is obtained. This phase requires that none of us consider the job done until the clean-up is completed. There are more than a million people in the Mass. Bay area now using United Way agencies and who will continue to use them during the next twelve months. Every dollar we can possibly raise is important because it will help to assure those in need that we do care, and that we intend to provide the continued high level of services throughout the coming year," said Trevett.

For more information about the Winchester campaign contact or send your pledge to the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, West Office, 2042 Beacon St., Waban, Mass. 02168

Strolling Singers Bring Cheer To Hospital Patients

Les Troubadours, French singers from Winchester High School under the direction of Eleanor A. Thistlethwaite, brought Christmas cheer last week to patients at two hospitals.

The students sang carols, strolling in troubadour fashion through the wards of Massachusetts General and New England Medical Center Hospitals in Boston.

Baskin-Robbins Float

A float made by Baskin-Robbins, Inc., will be seen Jan. 1 as part of television's coverage of Pasadena, California's tournament of roses parade.

The float features 31 animal character faces, representing the company's 31 flavors of ice cream.

Mrs. Govoni's Art In Show

Mrs. Pauline Govoni of Myopia road will display 24-28 of her paintings at the New England Rehabilitation Center in Woburn during the month of January.

A nurse, mother and artist, Mrs. Govoni has been interested in art since her childhood when she received instruction from her father, Arthur L. Carbone of Arlington, a commercial artist.

Mrs. Govoni, whose exhibit will include oils, pastels and acrylic paintings, attended the former Massachusetts School of Practical Art, Boston, having graduated in 1950. In 1954 she had an opportunity to visit a close friend in Naples, Italy, where she took special courses in landscaping in Italy's art center in Florence.

While interested in art, Mrs. Govoni also pursued a nursing career. She enrolled at the Chelsea Memorial Hospital School of Nursing. In 1953 she was graduated with an RN degree. She served at the Chelsea Hospital and the Floating Hospital now known as the Pratt Diagnostic Hospital from 1953 to 1957.

In 1957 she married Arthur Stephen Govoni, a manufacturerer's representative in New England.

Since 1970, she has devoted an increasing amount of time to art. "My most popular work would be painting flowers, people and animals in acrylic and oils," she says.

Mrs. Govoni, a member of the Medford Art Council, was formerly associated with the Winchester Art Association and the Arlington Art Association.

She has exhibited her works in many placed including Medford, Winchester, Arlington and Cape Cod.

She painted Bobby Orr of the Bruins for her children and then won a first prize award for it at the Winchester sidewalk show.

Mr. and Mrs. Govoni have three children, Arthur Jr., 15; Monica Rose, 14; and Joseph Justin, 12.

The monthly exhibits at the Rehab. Center have attracted a wide interest under the direction of Mrs. Paul C. Keleher of Winchester, a member and officer of the volunteers group.

Accidentally Overheard

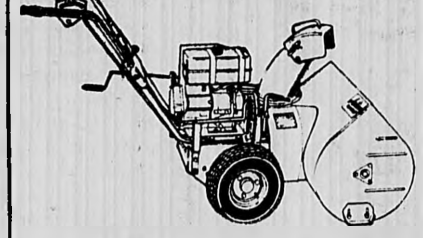

Some diamonds are harder than others! It's true, the hardest diamond known to history is a 5¾ carat gem owned by a diamond-cutter in Kimberly, South Africa. The stone cannot be cut, and still weights 5¾ carats despite three years of treatment on the diamond cutters wheel. The owner no longer tries to cut the stone, since it has even bit into the cutting plate, but keeps it as an expensive curiosity.

Wouldn't diamonds make a fine Christmas present! However, we at WINCHESTER CAMERA SHOP, 36 Waterfield Rd (near PO), 729-3636, know a better lifetime present. A picture of your loved ones! As your local KODAK dealer for 27 years, we know that a photo is a treasure forever. We do expert work on all black & white and color pictures, developing and enlarging. We also have a fine line of KONICA cameras which would make wonderful Christmas presents.

HELPFUL HINT: Using linseed oil? Douse paint brushes immediately in turpentine and wash in soap and water, and you can use them again and again for oiling jobs.

Board Of Selectmen

Arena Assessment Paid; Recommendations Given

The Board of Selectmen has voted to pay a $3,817 assessment to the Boston Arena Authority after delaying payment a month in protest.

Payment had been delayed so the board could determine why Winchester and the other towns in the Metropolitan District Commission area were being forced to pay $310,000 for repair of a floor at the arena located in Roxbury.

"While the town has now paid the bill it did so with the understanding with the Boston Arena Authority that similar expenditures will not occur."

That was contained in a letter written by Selectmen John J. Sullivan for the board to be sent to Sen. John Bullock and Rep. Harrison Chadwick.

Sullivan recommends that the legislature, which passed the original bill requiring the MDC towns to pay for the floor, adopt legislation to prevent the Boston Arena Authority (BAA) from borrowing against the value of its property.

"Should the Department of Environmental Affairs take over this responsibility of the authority, then the need for such legislation may be voided," Sullivan wrote.

The BAA was faced with the possiblity the arena would be closed if the rink floor was not repaired and borrowed funds to make the repairs because of insufficient cash reserves, Sullivan said.

Later a request for an appropriation was made to the legislature to pay off this mortgage.

Sullivan believes the BAA has no right to incur such expenses without authorization.

The BAA tells Sullivan it will not get involved again in such action.

In a letter to the Department of Environmental Affairs he stated:

"While I have been assured by the BAA that they will not proceed in a similar manner, the MDC, division of administration and finance, the director of environmental affairs, and our representative and senator should be informed of our position."

He asked that the director of environmental affairs inform the board about any plans it might have to incorporate the BAA within his department.

"It is my opinion the BAA should be disbanded and incorporated under MDC control or under control of some division of the director of environmental affairs.

"Should the latter be the plans for the arena, a plan for reimbursing the MDC communities for the value of the arena should be presented to the director of environmental affairs.

"Winchester should keep a close eye on the arena as some interest has developed for inclusion of track facilities and broadening of the services offered.

"We should formally request of the BAA that Winchester be notified of any plans which will either significantly reduce the cash reserves or incur a lien against the value of the facilities.

"If the arena is incorporated under state control, our representative should be advised of our interest in recovering our fair share of the market value."

In other business, the selectmen met with representatives of the Council on Aging and decided to include that group's budget under Board of Selectmen. Lawrence Smith, selectman, expressed concern that the council's coordinator's salary has risen from $4,200 to $8,000.

The board accepted the recommendation of Superintendent of Streets Robert G. O'Brien to repair in the spring the following private ways: Shepard court, Rock avenue, Loring court and Grove place.

"It is a fact that our plows do cause damage, in particular to the private ways that are of gravel construction. This is caused in most cases when frost in the ground has partially thawed and we are then hit with a storm which requires plowing," O'Brien said.

The selectmen voted to ask the Finance Committee for a transfer of funds to authorize the Police Department to hire a school traffic supervisor to be placed at Swanton and Washington sts.

County Has New Purchasing Agent

The Middlesex County Commissioners have appointed a Sudbury resident to the newly-created position of county purchasing agent. He is Bernard J. Hennessy, 40.

Chairman of the commissioners S. Lester Ralph notes Hennessy will be responsible for buying supplies and materials for all departments within Middlesex County.

The Commissioner says the County hopes to reduce purchasing costs by 25 percent. Under the new system, supplies will be purchased in bulk quantities and competitive prices.

County Commissioner Paul Tsongas says, "The importance of hiring a purchasing agent is to stop abuses in the purchasing process that exist or which the public believes to exist."

Hennessy is a former director of purchasing at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston where he reduced the operating budget of the Purchasing Department from $120,000 to $85,000 in less than a year. Previously, he was senior buyer for Sperry Rand Research Center in Subdbury and manager of sales and contracts for Itek Corporation of Newton.

The new county director of purchasing is a graduate of Boston College and will assume his $18,000 a year post on Jan. 7.

No Library Films For This Weekend

There will be no film program at the Winchester Public Library on Dec. 22 and 23. The library will be closed on Dec. 23 and 25. Whether the library will be closed Dec. 24 is undecided. Residents may telephone 729-3770 for more information.

Fire Prevention

Fire Chief I. Francis Amico has provided this 13-article series on fire prevention and emergency procedures in the interest of greater safety in Winchester.

Chief I. Francis Amico of the Winchester Fire Department recommends the following guide for winter home fire safety.

"Sick" heating equipment is your deadliest fire danger, says the chief. Have your furnace checked out and cleaned regularly. Be sure all automatic controls and emergency shutoffs are OK. Leave it to the experts. Don't try repairs unless qualified. Follow manufacturer's instructions for routine maintenance.

Have repairmen check wall and ceiling near furnace and flue. If hot, additional insulation or clearance may be needed. How are your flue pipes? Are they well supported, free of holes, clean?

Chimneys should be solid — no cracks or loose bricks. Unused flue openings should be sealed with solid masonry.

Keep trash and combustible storage away from heating system. Don't give fire a place to start.

Never quicken a fire with kerosene or gasoline. Keep gasoline out of the house at all times.

When using room heating equipment all heaters need frequent checkup and cleaning. A dirty or neglected heater is a critical fire hazard.

Position heater where it will not be bumped or overturned... or where it cannot block emergency fire exit. Give heater adequate clearance from walls and combustibles such as clothes rack, curtains, furniture or beds.

For an electric heater, be sure house wiring is adequate. Do not overfuse circuit.

When fueling an oil unit avoid overfilling. If cold oil is used, watch for possible burner flooding, flareup. Don't fill while burning.

Use safety-listed equipment. Oil: look for US label. Gas: look for AGA or UL label. Electric: look for UL label.

Frozen pipes? don't thaw with blowtorch or other open flame. Use hot water bottle or UL-labeled device for thawing.

Finally Chief Amico advises that before you go to bed at night take steps for fire safety.

Turn off room heaters...or set on low. When using fuel-burning heater in bedroom...open window (ventilation prevents suffocation).

Sleep with bedroom or hall door closed. It can hold back a fire until you can escape.

If windows are emergency exits, have family trained to use them. Have storm windows open easily.

Remember, as temperatures drop...home fire dangers rise.

The Song of Christmas

Is it a tune children carry for Christmas Day? Or the smell of candles burning? Perhaps it's a tree decked with bulbs? Maybe its seeing snow, beautiful, clean, fresh snow? The beautiful snow blankets the trees, the grass and beautiful, beautiful flowers. Even though we don't see gorgeous flowers, we have some lovely snowflakes, which have various patterns. No snowflake is the same. Alas, I haven't the answer to the question. Now I have it, it's Santa and his reindeer. Oh but theres more to my good friend. It's all the other things you've named, but most important yet, is the story of Jesus the baby, who was born in a manger on this very day. Now I am finished and theres nothing more to say. For I have told about The Song of Christmas. Now please have a lovely Christmas Day.

Miss Bliven Becomes New NEMH Clinical Dietitian

Kathy Bliven, clinical dietitian, recently joined the dietary staff at New England Memorial Hospital, Stoneham.

A native of Hood River, Ore., she was graduated from Columbia Academy, Battle Grounds, Wash., and has a B.S. degree in foods and nutrition from Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich. She served her internship at Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, Cal.

Her duties include visiting patients to help them with special diets and instructing them on the relationship between their diet and their condition. She will also be involved in community education projects such as Weight Control and Vegetarian Cooking classes.

Miss Bliven's interest in foods and nutrition is long term--she worked in food service during her years at Columbia Academy and at Andrews University. Her dietary interest is shared by members of her family -- her brother, Gerry, is the production manager in the food service department at St. Helena Sanitarium in California, and her sister, Patty, who lives with her is working after school in the NEMH Dietary Department.

In her spare time Miss Bliven enjoys knitting, sewing, cooking, candle-making, and interior decorating. One of her most recent projects was a patchwork carpet for the living room of her apartment. She also enjoys music, is presently taking voice lessons, and is a member of the Stoneham S.D.A. church choir.

Post-Korean Vets Have An Extra Year

Post-Korean veterans are down to about their last semester of eligibility under the GI Bill. However, an extra year remains for those interested in farm cooperative training, apprenticeship or on-the-job training, and those qualified for advanced flight training.

According to the Veteran's Administration the standard eligibility period for GI Bill training for all veterans is eight years after separation from military service. Post-Korean veterans - those with service from Feb. 1, 1955 through May 31, 1966 - were not eligible until the current GI Bill became effective June 1, 1966.

As a result, the eight-year period for this group of vetrans expires May 31, 1974, for all but several forms of GI Bill educational training.

Additional educational benefits were added to the GI Bill in 1967, thus the extension of the expiration date to 1975 for these benefits.

VA officials explain that eligible veterans may qualify for flight training only when it is generally accepted as necessary to attain a recognized vocational objective. This can be in the field of aviation or where it is recognized as ancillary to the pursuit of another vocation.

Applicants for flight training must possess a valid private pilot's license and meet medical requirements for a commercial pilot's license, officials added.

The delay in providing post-Korean veterans entitlement for GI Bill training is seen as the primary reason why only 34 percent of this group has taken advantage of its education benefits.

Comparatively, 47 percent of servicemen separated after the enactment of the current GI Bill have enrolled in educational training under provisions of the bill.

Age also deterred many post-Korean veterans from pursuing school enrollment. The average post-Korean veteran is 15 years older than his Vietnam-era counterpart.

LADIES' AUXILIARY GIFT - Mrs. Gertrude Ginn, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the New England Memorial Hospital, Stoneham, presents a check for $3500 to hospital administrator T. O. Moore. The check is the Auxiliary's first payment on their $17,000 pledge toward a radio communication center in the hospital.

U. S. Would Be Redrawn Into 38 States Under Scheme Of Flag Expert Whitney Smith

By Ruth Flax

Pending in the United States Supreme Court is the case of a youth who wore a replica of the U. S. flag on the seat of his pants. Whether one rages at this "blasphemy" or applauds the young man's courage, the fact that the flag creates such strong emotions says something about the U. S. and its flag.

To Whitney Smith Jr. of 3 Edgehill rd., the US flag represents the democratic nature of the country since "we use it with impunity." Whether its design is used to sell a product or to show discontent, the flag plays more than one role in the thoughts and actions of American citizens. Smith said the flag represents "unity" (Americans' love for it) and "diversity" (in the various ways it is represented.)

Smith is the only professional vexillologist (vexillum, Latin for flag; ology, study of) in the world. And because Smith lives here, Winchester is where many major contributions to vexillology have occurred. Smith coined the term now in Webster's Dictionary. The first time it appeared in print was in The Winchester Star, Oct. 1959.

While a political science professor at Boston University, Smith felt the flag lacked understanding as a social phenomenon. He gave up teaching to devote full time to making people aware of the vast amount of history vexillology could uncover for them.

Smith is an author, consultant and lecturer on the subject. He has written a history of American flags, "The Flag Book of the United States," and has designed the national flag of the South American country of Guyana.

Though vexillology is incipient, it has made headway and gained devotees. Until 1967 there had never been an association concerned with flags. Dr. Smith is president of North American Vexillological Association (NAVA) which meets annually, issues a newsletter and publishes a series of out of print flags. The International Federation of Vexillological Association, made up of 15 associations including NAVA, was established in 1967.

Smith initiated the first periodical on flag history 13 years ago. He is editor of this bi-monthly bulletin which contains the latest news of flags of new countries. The latest issue published the facts in the recent discovery of the 5,000 year old Iran flag. The Winchester Library subscribes to the Flag Bulletin.

Smith said the flag, as a symbol, helps people to understand themselves and their country better. He feels almost every country has "continuous symbols," that there is a "sense of the symbol as being the right one." For instance, he cited the newly formed United States, independent, yet clinging to the colors and star pattern of England's flag. And of the Confederate flag relying on the same star symbol as the Union flag even in war.

The American people have made the flag an "everyday object--it belongs to us, not Capitol Hill." Why else, he contends, would the doubtful story of Betsy Ross making the first flag have risen to legend?

People want to believe that a patriot and housewife sewed the first flag by request from George Washington. Flags are created "in order to express a group identity, to explain what the group thinks of itself."

The flag will play a part in the celebration of the bicentennial. In conjunction with the Flag Heritage Foundation, a non-profit organization which seeks to preserve flags of all kinds, the Winchester Historical Commission is discussing the possibility of creating one or more flag museums (one location in Winchester). Smith is hoping for a long range "flag interpretive center" which will use modern communication techniques to tell the story of flags, to communicate a sense of how society has viewed these symbols which explain so much about the group that flies them. Specifically, the aim will be for all to look toward Winchester as a "leader in the sophisiticated, contempoary interpretation of the flag."

Smith mentioned four general goals of the flag interpretive center: to bring people to the center of town as an aid to the business center, to have a thing of real value here, not a gimmick; to have the center in keeping with the other plans for the bicentennial, and lastly, to have people around the world see Winchester as the international capital of flag studies. The contacts Smith has made will do for resources needed.

He was asked to develop a new flag for the United States in conjunction with a project of Prof. G. Etzel Pearcy. The United States would be redrawn into 38 states based on areas which have more in common (i.e., if parts of New Jersey had more in common with parts of New York, than with other parts of New Jersey, those parts would be connected into one state). Prof. Smith's flag was comprised of 13 concentric stars leading beyond the edge of the flag, to refer to the creation of the country and express its "dynamism, diversity and growth." Neither man expects his ideas to be adopted, but hopes they will create discussion.

Smith has had a lifelong interest in flags. He was responsible for a minor revision of the Massachusetts flag in 1971 which reduced the cost of the flag by 60 per cent, thus making the flag more available. He is writing three books about flags.

A longtime resident of Winchester, having lived at Highland and Loring roads and now at Edgehill road, Smith graduated from Winchester High School in 1957, did undergraduate work at Harvard College and received a PH.D. in political science from Boston University.

Smith's wife is the former Ann Montgomery. She was raised in Puerto Rico and received an undergraduate degree from Radcliffe College. She is reference librarian at the Winchester Library. The Smiths have two sons, 10-year old Adrian and nine-year old Austin. Both attend Mystic School.

★ Small Things

The subject of faces would take columns and columns to cover. Children and old people have the easiest faces to study because they seem to reflect more spontaneously how they feel at the moment.

Most faces are interesting to watch. Airports and bus stations are particularly good places since emotions are expressed often there. Lean against a wall or sit someplace where you won't be noticed and watch the comings and goings.

The tears that change to laughter and the laughter to tears, the tension of saying goodby, the strained awkwardness between two people forced together and so much more will be on view. Watch two people talking and you can almost fill in the words by studying the change of expression on the faces.

You might be able to tell when they are discussing a bothersome relative, or a disliked fellow by watching the expressions. When the conversation turns to the weather, or crowded stores, the faces take on an unpleasant look.

There is also anger, pain, confusion, bewilderment and joy crossing the faces of travelers and, in fact, the faces of those who do little traveling. You can see these expressions anytime if you stop and watch. Be sure your own emotions are steady though. Observing all this can be heady stuff.

If you watch the television news and read the daily newspapers, you are being fed from a diet of crises. Every day has its very own crisis that seems to be the most important thing in the world. But the days pass and so do the cries and the world manages to endure for a little while longer. Meanwhile the ice forms on the ponds. You can see it beginning along the edges, opalescent and thin.

It will be thicker later on. To ambassadors and presidents that may not be very important. But to those who like to watch the diffusion of the sun's rays through the ice, it is very important.

Voke Program Prepares Special Needs Students

The Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School is offering occupational training and remedial instruction to Winchester and 11 other community high school students who have special needs.

The special education program at the school, under the direction of Louis R. Sardella, is preparing students to assume satisfying independent and productive roles in a wage-earning society.

Sardella spends his days with students who have learning disabilities or other special needs which heretofore prevented them from reaching maximum learning potential.

Sardella tells of one student who had serious difficulty filling out the month and year on simple time card, but was able to progress to the honor roll for the final semester before graduation.

How are special needs defined? According to Sardella, in the past youngsters with special needs were labelled "perceptually handicapped" or "emotionally disturbed" or "mentally retarded." No longer will these labels, often a handicap in themselves, be used in connection with education in this state. Instead they will be known simply as children with special needs, he explains.

The full effect of Chapter 766 of the Acts of 1972 will be felt in 1974 with mandatory implementation, he says.

Under the new law a child with special needs is defined as any person between the ages of 3 and 21;

- who has not attained a high school diploma or its equivalent.

-who, because of temporary or more permanent adjustment difficulties arising from intellectual, sensory, emotional, or physical factors, cerebral dysfunctions, perceptual functions, are unable to progress effectively in a regular school program,

-who require special education services in order to successfully develop his individual educational potential.

From the first day of operation the school it has had a special needs program.

Sardella was appointed to carry out this function approaching the problem from a standpoint of remedial reading.

Student applicants to the school, which still has a waiting list equal to three-quarters of its enrollment, were re-tested, orally, when it was discovered that reading problems prevented them from demonstrating their potential for vocational programs.

As a result, Sardella points out that some applicants who demonstrated an ability to become successful vocational students except for reading problems were given a chance to equalize their opportunity for technical training with those with similar potential but without the handicap of reading problems.

When the 1971 school year opened, Sardella's work with special needs students was considered successful enough to justify an expansion of the program. Mrs. Kathleen Gleason was added to the staff and the remedial reading program was opened up to the entire school, with students referred by guidance counselors, teachers or on a voluntary basis.

Also, a limited program of remedial math was added and Sardella began a program for students with learning disabilities, including the perceptually handicapped.

Again, as marked progress was obvious among the students participating, in 1972, two more teachers were added, Mrs. Karen Otazo and Mrs. Patricia DeFranco.

A policy change by the District School Committee at this point precluded the re-testing of applicants and instead the special needs staff of four now culls the records of incoming freshment to identify, by problem areas, those needing special services.

Core evaluation teams which were established by Sardella comprised of a special needs staffer, guidance counselor, social worker, nurse and whomever else is necessary to obtain a diagnostic evaluation of an individual student and develop a perscriptive teaching program to help overcome specific problems.

During the first year Sardella concentrated on reading comprehension, spelling difficulties and math problems. Initially a careful diagnosis was made through testing. Next a program was established to remediate the problem through small group instruction. While the new law requires a teacher for every eight pupils, Northeast's special needs program has averaged groups of this size or smaller since the program was initiated.

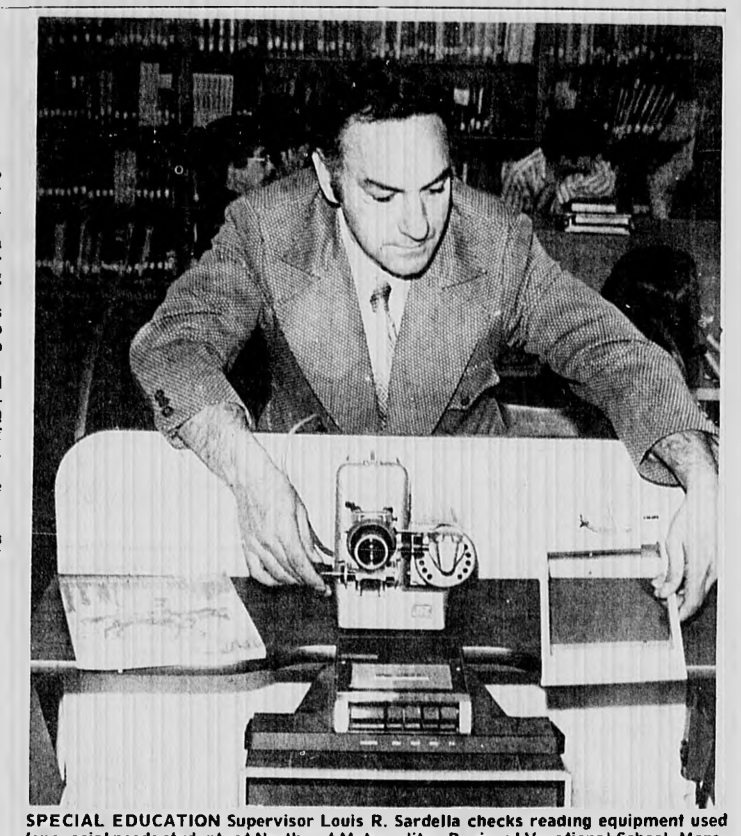

After post-testing to determine the results of his first year's work, Sardella reported a marked improvement in grade scores as well as a much improved attitude toward school by the students.

In the second year of the Northeast program Sardella and his additional teacher were able to identify more individual problems within the school's population, with students showing high mechanical ability and intelligence but definite reading problems. Concerted effort resulted in a general upgrading of achievement and attitude, with the students often discovering their weaknesses themselves, responding well to instruction with a genuinely appreciative attitude.

In the first year Sardella worked with some 75 remedial reading students. An additional instructor the second year allowed them to help more than 100 with reading problems and to begin small group instruction.

Last year and in the current school year the four-member special needs staff works with 150 to 200 students with reading problems and 50 to 75 with learning diabilities.

Not all of the students are in the program at once, Sardella points out, but the total numbers represent the students in the program from a couple of weeks to a full semester during the school year.

SPECIAL EDUCATION Supervisor Louis R. Sardella checks reading equipment used for special needs students at Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School. More than 200 students are being helped through the expanded program.

Sardella is in the 16th teaching year, 12 of which have been in the special needs area. He tells of his early teaching years in the Wakefield Junior High School instructing low progress groups in history, reading and mathematics. When he found that they couldn't comprehend textbooks and standard teaching methods he devised different methods to give them necessary learning experience in spite of their handicaps. For example, his class wrote to foreign embassies to develop skills in English, using the information received for social studies.

This led to Sardella taking advanced courses at Boston College, Boston University and the Cardinal Cushing Clinic in remedial reading and special education instructional methods and techniques. More by immediate need than by design, Sardella found himself launched into the specialized area of working with youngsters with special needs.

After nine years at Wakefield High School, he moved to the Northeast Regional School where he is in his fourth year with the special needs program.

Sardella views the new legislation as long-overdue. "This new law means more than proper emphasis on special needs students," he asserted. "It means, an end to the understandable reluctance many educators, parents and legislators to admit that our schools just weren't doing the job that needs to be done".

Family Service Assn. Needs Volunteers: Training Offered

Mr. L. of Winchester is a 78-year-old widower who still mourns the death of his wife. Confined to his small apartment and crippled with arthritis, his social contacts are limited.

Through the Family Service Association of Greater Boston, with offices at 29 Concord st., Malden, Mr. L. is receiving visits of volunteers. However, according to Mrs. Susan B. Bornstein, case worker, more volunteers are needed.

Mrs. Bornstein explains that the Family Service Association is a family counselling agency which serves Winchester as well as Malden, Medford, Everett, Melrose, Wakefield, Stoneham, Woburn, Burlington, Reading and North Reading.

The agency works closely with the Mystic Valley Mental Health Assn. and other state agencies. While most MVMHA cases involve children and Family Service primarily helps people resolve marital problems, their services overlap, Mrs. Bornstein says.

Last year 18 Winchester residents received help from Family Service. This year 19 persons were counseled. To receive help, Mrs. Bornstein suggests a call be made to the Malden facility.

While the association is seeking to reach out to help more persons, Mrs. Bornstein says the agency is currently seeking men and women of all ages who can volunteer a few hours a week to make friendly contacts with people like Mr. L.

Beyond having time to give, Mrs. Bornstein says, the volunteer must have a genuine interest in people and give evidence of emotional maturity and trustworthiness. Volunteers will be trained and supervised by professional social workers, she said.

In contrast to Mr. L., Alice M. is a 23-year-old mother of three in a neighboring town. The family moved here from another state when Mr. M. found a reg[illegible] but low-paying job.

Bitterly discouraged when the firm cut back its work force and he was laid off, Mr. M. has now disappeared. Without the support of her family and friends from back home, Alice is overwhelmed by caring for the children alone.

Mrs. Bornstein speaks of Alice's social contacts as being limited because she has had no opportunity to make friends in her new surroundings. Here is where a friendly and interested volunteer, perhaps another young mother like herself, could appreciate the trials of single parenthood and offer companionship

Anyone who is 18 or over who is interested may apply as a Family Service volunteer by contacting Mrs. Bornstein or Helen Michael at the Family Service Association of Malden All applicants will be screened in an interview with a professional social worker.

Fire Prevention

Do not allow trash of any kind to accumulate in your yard and especially close to house, garage, or outbuildings. Keep yard clear of flammable material for 30 feet from structures.

-Remove flammable vegetation for 30 feet from each building on your property. During long dry spells, cut flammable growths to 18 inches high beyond the 30 foot point, to extend out 100 feet or the property line.

-Cover all chimney outlets with ½" mesh screen spark arrester. Be sure all flues extend at least three feet above roof. See that brackets are secure and flue collars are in place.

-Check your trees. Remove all dead branches from above all structures. Remove branches, dead or alive, so that none are closer than 10 feet from a chimney or flue

-Your best fire extinguisher in the yard is your garden hose. But, water taps are sometimes too close to the house to allow their use in an emergency. Be sure you have at least one water tap well away from all buildings. Your emergency hose should be a good quality rubber, not plastic.

-Check your power line coming into the house, if it is above ground. If necessary have the wires relocated to keep them away from brush or trees. Be sure close wires do not cross.

- If you have an incinerator or outdoor fireplace, cover the flue with ½" mesh spark arrester. Be sure door can be closed tightly. Clean space of flammable material at least 10' around incinerator.

-If you have a butane storage tank in the yard, be sure it is far enough away from buildings to allow access to shut-off valve if house is on fire.

-Check t.v. antenna. Tighten guy wires if loose. Be sure lightning arresters have been installed. Check your telephone lead-in line to the house. Be sure lightning protectors have been installed and are still connected

-Always keep your landscape clean by removing litter, leaves and deadwood from under trees and shrubs. Prune out deadwood still on shrubs and dispose of it. Remove dead and dried portions of ground covers. Leave space between shrubs and trees to help prevent fire spread.

Water landscapes frequently especially during hot, dry spells. During a major fire, any may burn, though some may be slower to catch and carry a fire. However, large fires have proved that plants on well-watered and well-maintained landscapes do not burn as readily as dry plantings.

The more a plant grows and the larger it becomes, the more fuel it produces and, consequently the greater fire hazard it becomes. When a plant is green and growing vigorously the hazard is small; but as the soil becomes dry, the plant is able to take up less water and has a lower moisture content. When moistrue in a plant decreases, it becomes more likely to burn. This holds equally true for native plants and for ornaments purchased at the nursery.

ICC Religious Office Suggests Bless Families Trees

The religious education office of the Immaculate Conception Church is suggesting that families in the parish bless their Christmas trees.

In their newsletter to parishioners, they refer to Fr. Francis Weiser, SJ, and his "Christmas Book" in which he tells the story of the Christmas tree and how its origin is christian.

The book explains that Christmas trees go back to medieval German mystery plays. One of the most popular mysteries was the Paradise Play, representing the creation of man, the sin of first parents and their expulsion from Paradise. It usually closed with the consoling promise of the coming Savior with a reference to his incarnation. This made the Paradise Play a favorite pageant for Advent, and its closing scene used to lead directly into the story of Bethlehem and the babe.

The book goes on to say that these plays were performed either in the open or in large squares in front of churches. The Garden of Eden was indicated by a fir tree from which apples hung.

After the suppression of the mystery plays in churches, the Paradise tree, the only symbolic object of the play, found its way into the homes of the faithful.

In the 15th century the custom of decorating the tree developed. White wafers representing the Holy Eucharist were hung from the tree. Later little pieces of pastry cut in the shape of stars, angels, hearts, flowers and bells were used.

In some homes the tree is blessed on Christmas eve. The mother or father, or perhaps the oldest son, will lead the prayer asking the blessing.

Leader: This is that most worthy tree in the midst of Paradise

All: On which Jesus by His death overcame death for all.

Leader: Let the heavens be glad and the earth rejoice;

All: Let the sea and what fills it resound;

Let the plains be joyful and all that is in them.

All the trees of the forest shall be happy before the Lord for He comes:

For he comes to rule the earth.

He shall rule the world with justice and the peoples

Glory be to the Father and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.

All: This is that most worthy tree in the midst of Paradise on which Jesus by His death overcame death for all.

Insurance FACTS

BY FRANK MAHONEY

Insurance companies send their loss prevention engineers to every large commercial operation they cover. These engineers advise policyholders about how to avoid or reduce the number of fires and accidents on the property. In fact, often insurance engineers are asked to consult with the company's architect before the property is built, in order to suggest safe, accident-preventive means of construction.

We, at FRANCIS X. MAHONEY INSURANCE AGENCY, 914 Mass. Ave., 643-3800, invite you to consult with our experts about your insurance needs; our office manager, Mary Antworth and the rest of our friendly staff will be happy to answer those nagging questions about insurance that may be bothering you. May we take this opportunity to wish you the very merriest Christmas. Hours: 9-5 Mon-Fri; by appt. Sat.

Basketball Team Edges Sharon

By John F. Parrell

Coach Vandy French's basketball team opened its season by edging Sharon 47-45. The return game was played here Tuesday evening to round out the annual home and away series.

The balance of the schedule will include 18 Middlesex League games with Melrose playing here tomorrow and Burlington a week from tomorrow. The junior varsity games will start at 6:30. The varsity tapoff will be at 8 p.m.

Coach Dudley Davenport's man to man defense proved no puzzle to the Sachems as they built up an early first period margin of 14-7. But the home team shifted to a 2-1-2 zone in the second period. This bothered the Sachems. Sharon's 17 point output cut the half time edge to just 26-24.

Play continued very even over the second half, with Winchester maintaining the same two-point edge at the final whistle. The Sachems had great success with their full court zone press and forced 22 turnovers during the second half. Coach French was well pleased with the victory and pointed out that the defense was very solid but the attack should improve with experience.

Sandy Bigelow led in both departments netting 17 points. He had 14 rebounds. Co-captain Tim Porter had 10. Nate Bitting accounted for 9. Sweetsman led the Sharon offense with 15 points.

The junior varsity battled hard, but came out on the short end of a 52-46 count. Waite, Corcran and Mills tallied eight points each to pace the Winchester attack.

St. Mary's Wins; Remains Undefeated

Undefeated St. Mary's took tole possession of first place in the CYO Hockey League Sunday, shutting out previously undefeated Dorchester 3-0.

Center Dan Powers, skating a regular shift for the first time, scored the game's first goal at 5:59 of the second period. Wingers Art Johns and Mike Jeannette assisted on the goal.

Another unassisted breakaway goal, this one by Dan Whitney at 7:40 of the second period, closed out the scoring.

Defenseman Jim Beaton was awarded the game puck for his solid defensive effort and a particularly outstanding play to break up a two on one when the game was still a scoreless tie.

Goaltender Cliff Falla recorded his second shut-out of the season as St. Mary's extended its regular season undefeated string to 17 games spanning two seasons. The team has not been out of first place in a year and a half.

St. Mary's plays Walpole (1-2-0) Sunday at 7:30 a.m. at Boston College.

Real Estate Today

ADVANTAGES OF BUYING A HOUSE

The decision on whether to buy a house or rent is one that almost every family considers eventually. If this is your case, here are a few thoughts to consider.

First, an equity (cash value) is built up as you pay for the house over the years. And, its resale value can increase greatly, as has been the case in recent times, with rising real estate prices.

Also, property taxes, school taxes and mortgage interest can be deducted from income taxes. (Rent cannot be deducted from anything but the check account). For example, interest on the first year of a 20 year, $20,000 mortgage at 8 percent is close to $1,600 which is tax deductible.

There is no fear of a raise in rent at the end of each lease period. Payments remain the same for the life of the mortgage. Finally, where else can you find an investment that you and your family can live in while its value increases?

Fund Raising Begins

Raffle To Benefit Officer Gannon, His Family

A group of Winchester citizens, town employees, businessmen and municipal officials has formed a committee to raise money for the family of Police Officer William J. Gannon.

Officer Gannon remains in a coma and in critical condition at Youville Hospital (formerly Holy Ghost) in Cambridge six months after an automobile accident took the lives of two fellow police officers.

The Memorial Day crash on Cross street was fatal to Officers Frederick Marasca and Andrew Saraco. Officer Gannon suffered extensive internal injuries.

The committee this week announced plans to raise funds for the benefit of Officer Gannon, his wife and three small children by sponsoring a raffle beginning Jan. 15. A variety of cash and merchandise will be awarded. The drawing of prizes on March 15 will take place at a social to which all interested cit izens will be invited.

The committee will also assist any organization or indlvidual who wishes to make a contribution or to sponsor a separate fund raising event.

Donations may be made to the Gannon Fund, Attn. Joseph Cioni, Winchester Savings Bank, 26 Mount Vernon st., Winchester 01890.

The committee includes Edward F. Bowler, honorary chairman; James Cogan, chairman; Paul Amico, legal counsel; John J. Sullivan, public relations; Joseph Cioni, treasurer; John Drougas, Santo Cannava, Charles Culhane, William Wright, John Hennelly, and Joseph Bellino. Patricia Mawn is secretary.

Realtors Give Out Environmental Information

The Winchester Environmental Protection Assocation has distributed to all realty agencies in town information regarding the environment.

"In choosing this town as your place to live," one of the two flyers reads, "we know that you considered the special beauty of Winchester.

"The Winchester Environmental Protection Association (WEPA) asks that you joln in preserving and adding to this natural beauty. PLEASE--

"Do care for our trees, plants and lawns; don't litter, it's against the law; do recycle--here are directions:

"The recycling of cans, newspapers, glass, rags at the incinerator--bring these items, all clean, to the town disposal area, off Swanton street. Open six days and five evenings a week."

The other flyer distributed reads: "Before moving away, consider how best to dispose of those belongings you may desire to leave behind.

"Won't you please avoid sending useful items to be burned at the incinerator? Instead, please call the Rotary Club (729-4108) for pickup, or contact a church or a school.

"They will be grateful for any items that can be sold at auction or bazaar.

"Don't forget to recycle any leftover cans, glass, newspapers, rags--all clean--at the incinerator off Swanton street."

Critical Election Ahead

Winchester's town election in March takes on special significance this year because the voters will be asked to approve a charter commission which could drastically alter the town governmental structure.

If Winchester continues this year as in the past and only about 30 percent of its voters turn out on election day, then the charter commission (if one is elected) can understandably presume something is wrong.

If, as in the past few years, there are few if any contests for the elected positions to be filled this year then the charter commission can make another presumption: that there are too many elected offices in Winchester for sufficient citizen interest to assure a contest.

Wednesday of this week marked the day candidates could take out nomination papers to be eligible to run. So far there has been little interest in the coming election.

But it's still early — early enough for this newspaper to urge every reader to give some thought to running for office yourself or urging a friend, neighbor or relative to run for office.

Open this year are two seats on the Board of Selectmen, two on the School Committee, 66 town meeting seats and positions on the Board of Assessors (one), Cemetery Commission (one), Constable (one), Board of Health (one), Park Commission (two), Commission of Trust Funds (one) and Water and Sewer Board (one).

Running for office in a small town like Winchester is quite a simple process. You request nomination papers from the Town Clerk, procure the required number of signatures, and contact everyone you have ever known in the town and get them to help you.

Running for town meeting member is even simpler. Usually all that is required is submitting the nomination papers. Few contests develop for town meeting member and those submitting papers more often than not are automatically elected.

This year we hope all that will be different. Prior to election day last year there was not a single contest for town meeting member nor a contest for School Committee. A repeat performance of that must not be allowed to happen again in Winchester, particularly this year.

If it does happen, then the charter commission would be justified in recommending wholesale changes in the government of Winchester, including abolishing town meeting. A town that is unable to generate election interest in its legislative body is susceptible to take-over from certain special influences, either from particular individuals or from groups. In some sense this has already taken place.

Contests for the town meeting seats will insure the public gets the wide representation it deserves. This holds true for selectmen and school committee as well. Last year there were no contests for the two school committee seats filled.

Four men announced their intention to run and then after the filing deadline had passed two men "coincidentally" dropped out, thereby assuring the automatic election of the remaining two candidates.

This is a critical year for Winchester. If the town can show the soon-to-be created charter commission that there is enough voter interest to preserve the present governmental set-up then perhaps the nine commissioners may not recommend changes to the voters. If, however, this year the town continues its long tradition of voter apathy, then the commission will have no other choice than to recommend abolishment of certain boards and committees and perhaps town meeting itself.

K&B May Try For Less Density

A spokesman for Kaufman & Broad Homes, Inc., told The Star recently that the firm is thinking of submitting a less-dense condominium proposal.

The firm hasn't gone far enough in its plans to make any announcement, according to public relations spokesman Jack Tierney.

"We have been exploring alternatives the last 10 days," he said. "We don't have enough information to make an opinion."

K&B's option with the owner of the land on Cambridge street, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moss, is still in effect for another week.

Tierney said that firm has been approached by Winchester town meeting members who did not favor the proposal for 500 condominiums asking K&B to reduce the number of units and resubmit the plan.

Tierney would not say whether the firm would do this or not. There has been "some discussion" over it, he said. He said it's also possible the firm will approach the town with an entirely new proposal.

A special town meeting in December turned down K&B's request for new zoning on 90 acres of land on Cambridge street hill near the Woburn line.

The overwhelming vote against the new zoning was primarily predicated on the assumption the development would change the character of Winchester.

Peace, Energy, Cost Of Living

Hopes For Coming Year Expressed

Peace in the world, the energy shortage and the cost of living are the chief concerns of local residents as they look to the new year.

The day after Christmas The Star interviewed 16 persons in Winchester Center asking "What is your hope for the new year?"

Of those questioned, six were female, ten were male. Ten were adults and five were from six years of age up through high school.

Peace in the Middle East was the immediate response of John Cogan of 44 Clark st. and Hilda Hope of Glen Green.

Without specifically naming a locality, peace also was the first reaction of Harry Elhardt of 10 Hancock st. and among several concerns of Vicki Hayford, 14, 37 Myrtle terr., a student at McCall Junior High School.

Miss Hope said "Peace in Israel would mean peace in the world." Young Cogan said he'd rather see "peace instead of war," and Miss Hayford, whose primary desire is to see the "Watergate thing cleared up," said she is hoping that "peace will remain in Vietnam." Prefacing her final remark with "this may not be too nice," she went on to say she'd like to see President Nixon impeached.

Marjorie Darling of Elmwood avenue said she's hoping to see an improvement in the critical gas shortage and pointed to gas rationing as making "it equal for everyone."

Dougie Ross of 9 Norfolk rd. said he'd like to see "the Arabs provide more oil." The energy crisis is affecting his family by a reduced thermostat which stays around 66, he said, and "my father is building more fires in the fireplace." Ross and his companion, John Cogan, both holding ice cream sundaes as they spoke, said they have been shutting off more lights and "watching less television."

Joseph Quirk of 226 Mystic Valley pkwy. mentioned wanting "more oil for my family," and said "we were in a line for gas the day before Christmas for over an hour."

"The high cost of living," is top priority on the mind of Barbara McHugh of 93 Canal st. Pointing specifically to oil and gas, she said "everything is much, much too high."

The shortage and cost of fuel are among the top issues needing attention, according to Janet Leverone of Lexington and Michael DiLoreto of 93 Thornberry st. DiLoreto, a college student attending school in New Hampshire said he'd like to see "lower prices, especially with food and fuel."

Another student, Richard Graham of 4 Foxcroft st., who attends St. Sebastian School in Newton, considers the "gas shortage" the most important problem.

Jasper Asaro of the Winchester Police Department, would like to see "prices come down, plentiful oil, less crime and people not so edgy." He noted to have all this come true "you're asking for a miracle."

Other concerns of those interviewed were needs of the elderly, better grades, employment, snow and a desire for puppies.

Miss Hope said she's looking for the day when people will be as concerned about elderly persons as they are with children. "I don't want to take from the young," she said, "but would like to see the world interested in its elder citizens."

Miss Hope pointed to an article she read this week in a Boston paper about an elderly couple having been found in their Schenectady, N.Y., home frozen to death after their electricity had been turned off because of nonpayment of their bill. "I hope nothing like that ever takes place in Winchester," she said.

A young man who would not give his name said he hoped "to get back on the dean's list" in the coming months..

Concerned with keeping his job, Kevin Harris of 11 Cutting st., jokingly referred to a Christmas greeting which he apparently took seriously. The card said "Hope you have a Merry Christmas and an employed New Year." New to Winchester, coming from Upstate New York, Harris further wants to get to know the Boston area better and take a few courses.

Six-year-old Peter Maietta of Cranston st. would "like to see some snow" so he can go sledding and wishes "my dog would have puppies."

The Star asked his mother, who is concerned about the energy crisis, about the chances for Peter's latter wish to come true. She said "It's possible."

Peter interrupted and said "I asked my dog to blink her eye if she was married and she blinked."(Guess it's possible.)

Finally, Harry Elhardt said he'd like to have an opportunity "to travel" and would like to see "less stress in the world." He noted he hasn't found a formula to put forth to alleviate stress.

A woman, waiting for a bus and unwilling to give her name, was the only one to offer a solution to the problems of the world. "People should live better," she said. "They should pray more and turn to God more."

Jaycees Collect Christmas Trees On January 5

The Winchester Jaycees invite public-spirited young adults over 18 to join them in their annual townwide Christmas tree pickup.

The purpose of this community service project is to eliminate the fire hazard of dried out trees, according to Lawrence F. Tobiason of 6 Hillside ave. If this kind of vigorous outdoor activity is appealing, he says 'join us on Jan. 5 at 8 am at the parking lot opposite the Town Hall.'

Refreshments will be served during and after the pickup.

Lighting Contest

The Jaycees this year cancelled its traditional Christmas lighting contest because of the energy shortage.

John Hackett, head of that project for the last five years, said the organization had intended to substitute a Christmas house decoration contest but fouled up and forgot to make the announcement.

Hackett said the Jaycees next year hope to resume the house lighting contest. "Hopefully there will be no energy crisis next year."

Few Excited By Election

Wednesday was the opening day for taking out nomination papers for election to office in the annual town election in March. But there was no stampede to the town clerk's office at Town Hall.

There was not even a rush, or even a line. In fact, only one person requested nomination papers. He was Eugene B. Rotondi of 224 Forest st., who is running for Board of Selectmen.

There are two seats to be filled this year on the Board of Selectmen. Neither of the present occupants, Arthur Dunbar or John J. Sullivan, have indicated they have made up their minds what they are going to do.

Deadline for resubmitting nomination papers for certification by the town clerk is Jan.28.

Dunbar, chairman of the selectmen, said Wednesday, "I haven't made a decision yet." Pressed to say which he is more inclined to do--run or not seek a second term--Dunbar said, "I am more inclined to go again."

Selectman Sullivan would only say that he has "a couple of other things in mind" besides running again for the board. He is completing his second three-year term. "I love this job, and I think I do a pretty good job at it. But no one has ever run for a third term."

Selectman Sullivan would only say that he has "a couple of things in mind."

The Star contacted scores of persons whose names have been circulating as possible selectman candidates. Except for Rotondi, at this point there appears to be no other intended candidate.

On the School Committee race, there appears to be one person who has indicated an intention to run. That is Mary Louise Eugley of 43 Wildwood st.

Mrs. Eugley has never run for office. Former member of the League of Women Voters' board in Winchester, she feels "very strongly a woman should be on the school board."

Leaving this year are Mary Mears and Harriet Dieterich. Both said they would probably not be seeking third terms. "Customarily School Committee members don't run for a third term, " Mrs. Mears said of that long standing Winchester tradition.

It would take a lot of thinking for me to run for another term."

Mrs. Dieterich said she would "probably not " run and said one of the problems in getting persons go run for the committee is the increasing amount of criticism applied to its members.

"They feel they are continuously open to criticism and innuendo. It's becoming harder to do what's good for the town. The fact that the committee's action is open to the public is a good thing. But to get people to run you have to feel the town trusts them.

The great deal of time necessary to deal with School Committe business and the lack of issues were also cited by those whose names were mentioned as possible candidates but indicated they would not run

Finance Committee chairman James B.L. Lane said about the possibility of running for the Board of Selectmen: "I am not inclined to run at this moment."

The last two Finance chairmen, Vito Giarrizzo and Lawrence T. Smith, both have gone on to win seats on the Board of Selectmen.

"There have been some comments that it's become semi-automatic over the last few years because of Jerry and Larry," Lane said of Giarrizzo and Smith becoming selectmen. He added that his own decision could change.

"The next few weeks will tell."

The Star asked many persons if they intend to run for charter commission. None of them would officially commit themselves. Most, however, indicated an interest in running for one of the nine seats.

A charter commission is to be acted on at the March election, the same time voters will be asked to elect nine commissioners.

Selectman Dunbar said of the commission: "It's extremely important for the town. It will affect the town tremendously." He said the commission needs "people with imagination and not afraid to work."

Mrs. Mears, former chairman of the School Committee, said of her possible future in Winchester elections: "I'm thinking at the moment of following several routes ...." Will she run for town meeting? "That's a good place to serve the town."

Mrs. Mears said of her six years on the board: "I have enjoyed it. I have learned a lot. I've loved the association with other people... even those I've disagreed with. It was a great experience."

She said, however, that the committee "needs new blood, new ideas."

DeMolay Begins Winter Season

The Winchester Chapter Order of DeMolay has begun a new season, appointed new counselors and started hockey, basketball and baseball activities

According to Jim Graves of 6 Kenilworth rd., "sports is a big part of the chapter's activities." Boys between 13 and 21 participate. "No matter what a boy's interest is, he can find it in DeMolay."

The DeMolay movement was begun in 1919 by the late Frank S. Land and a group of nine high school boys in Kansas City, Mo. Today, nearly 3 million senior DeMolays have entered about 2,500 chapters in 12 countries and territories throughout the free world, Graves notes.

Miss Pond Visits UN, Art Museum

Susan Pond of 2 Salisbury St., recently visited New York City, where she joined other Dorie Dames on a visit to the United Nations; and a private tour of the American Wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

As guests of Hon. Bradford Morse, under secretary general for political and General Assembly affairs, the Dorie Dames heard an important discussion on Cambodia taking place in the General Assembly.

At the end of the museum tour, they viewed the famous Christmas tree decorated with 18th Century baroque Neapolitan figures of sculptured terracotta and wood.

The Dorie Dames are volunteer State House guides who explain the architectural beauty of the Bulfinch-designed building and its legislative process to visitors from our country and abroad.

Fire Extinguishers

Fire Chief I. Francis Amico has provided this 13-article series on fire prevention and emergency procedures in the interest of greater safety in Winchester.

This is No. 10 in our series of articles which examine the various methods of fire prevention in the home. The basic types of fire extinguishers which are readily available and moderately priced for home application is this week's topic.

In fighting any fire the most important thing to remember is that fast action is of the utmost importance to keep it from spreading. The simplest and oldest form of fire extinguisher is a bucket of water. It is effective it used during the first few moments after the fire is discovered. Water should never be used where the fire involves oil, grease or electrical fires.

For example, if a pan of grease on your stove should suddenly burst into flames, the most effective means of extinguishing the blaze is a metal pan cover that will fit tightly over the pan and shut out the supply of air.

Never put a flaming pan of grease in the sink and run water into it! This will only cause it to flame higher and possibly spread.

Also, never throw flour or baking powder onto a pan fire, thinking it will smother it. It will not. In fact, you may well have an explosion or at least a worse fire than you had before.

For fires in the broiler, simply shut off the oven and shut the door, thereby stopping the flow of oxygen to the fire. It will burn itself out inside the oven.

Underwriter's Laboratories uses a three—part breakdown on basic fires.

Class "A" type fires are those which occur in wood, paper and trash, where the cooling effects of water or water solutions are effective.

Class "B" fires are those that involve liquids and greases which require a blanketing or smothering effect to extinguish

Class "C" fires are those which start in what would be termed "live" electrical equipment, where a non-conductive extinguishing agent must be used.

The newest type extinguishers are charged with dry chemicals, and many are rated ABC. They can be used effectively on the three types of fires previously mentioned. No special training is needed to operate this type of extinguisher, and the manufacturers claim the use of this type is faster than water, and takes less physical effort.

When using the dry chemical, there is no danger of re—ignition or flashback. The powder is free flowing, non—toxic, nonconductive and won't freeze. Also, no annual re-charge is necessary.

It is my personal opinion that the dry chemical extinguisher will be the best to have in the average home, along with the previously mentioned water tap far enough away from the house to make it easily accessible in the event of fire.

Bird-Feeders

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Modern plastic bird feeders designed for gold finches, purple finches, titmice, etc., are quite popular with the birds, but some are hard to refill. Those that have a small hole in the top are sometimes difficult to pour into, using the lip of the bag for a spout. Usually many messy spills occur.

I solved the problem for myself, and I am here passing my solution on to anyone who might be interested.

I took a small funnel, about four inches wide across the mouth, opened the plastic bag that the feed came in and put the funnel in the bag on top of the feed, upside down. I then puckered the top of the bag around the spout of the funnel, leaving the end projecting, and then made several tight turns round the bag top with an elastic band to seal it. I now have a stream of bird-feed that I can focus and control, both neat and positive. My dust pan days are over, and the bag stands upright in a corner with the funnel left in it for tomorrow.

Its a good gimmick!.

Thanks Given To Fire Department

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Winchester Fire Department recently helped us with a chimney fire which resulted from our first of the season fireplace fire. The chimney didn't draw. It should have been swept.

Fortunately, it was a rainy evening, so sparks on the roof and elsewhere were quenched, but firemen used all care possible in the use of their flares to clean out the chimney carbon. The chimney is undoubtedly the cleanest it will ever be, but nobody should recommend this disastrous method, for the house has to be cleaned from top to bottom.

We are grateful to the Fire Department for their prompt attention and knowledgeable action. Chief Amico's letter to The Star of last week could have had us as one of the factual examples. We agree with him that special attention be given to chimney inspection.

Our thanks and appreciation to all concerned.

Thanks To Police

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My husband and I would like to express our gratitude and appreciation for the prompt response of the Winchester Police Department to our emergency call for help on December 11. My husband had fallen down the stairs and needed to be taken to the hospital.

I was frightened and in no condition to drive, so I called the operator who connected me with the Police Department. In just a few minutes a cruiser and an ambulance arrived and took us to Winchester Hospital.

The policemen were very polite, concerned and helpful and I certainly appreciated having someone to rely on at such a trying time. It is reassuring to us to know that in an emergency competent help is only a phone call away.

Abortion Comments

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Over 2,000,000 unborn babies, human beings, are crushed, dismembered, drowned, suffocated and poisoned each year in the United States in the name of "doing your own thing." More abortions are performed annually than any other operation.

Yet, regardless of the legality of this slaughter, doctors and nurses find it so repulsive many refuse to do it. Others have to be "retrained" by changing their attitudes toward saving life before thy can perform this ghastly procedure.

Many doctors involved dread this operation, the sedated body of the expectant mother fights and resists it and most mothers bear deep psychological scars which endure for the rest of their lives.

The Supreme Court has legalized the murder of the unborn with the ruling that human life is expendable. Is infanticide or mercy killing of the elderly next?

WINCHESTER VOTER

Survey Shows Students Want More Swimming Facilities

(The Winchester Voter is a series written by the League of Women Voters to acquaint readers with town voting practices and issues.)

This fall a study committee of the League of Women Voters began a survey of the recreation needs of all age groups in Winchester in relation to available facilities. One of the most interesting parts of the response to the student questionnaire.

Questionnaire To Students

Questionnaires were distributed to students in grades 5 through 12 asking how they spent their leisure time and which recreational activities interested them the most. The response to the questionnaire in the elementary schools was about 90 percent. The replies Lynch Junior High came from about 50 percent of the pupils, and from McCall over 90 percent. About 70 percent of the senior high students answered the questionnaire.

Only the highlights of this survey are presented here. Early in 1974 there will be available a more detailed summary showing use of town facilities, membership in private recreational groups, and hours spent watching television.

Elementary Schools

The fifth and sixth grade boys indicated they spent their time after school playing outdoors or playing football. Over 75 percent enjoy sports more than anything else. They would like Winchester to offer free swimming and better playgrounds and equipment.

The largest group of girls said they played outside or played with a friend after school. They also would like to have the town offer free swimming and better playgrounds and equipment.

Junior High

Results of the junior high survey showed that 90 percent of the boys consider sports as their main recreation. They also enjoy making models and collecting. Suggestions for more activities in Winchester include more sports, improved facilities and an indoor swimming pool.

The girls were interested in sports, gymnastics and bicycling. Also popular with them are horseback riding and swimming. They too would like an indoor pool as well as more competitive sports.

Senior High School

Almost 75 percent of the boys and 50 percent of the girls consider sports as the main recreation. For hobbies the boys are interested in team sports. The girls have varied interests, mostly individual hobbies such as collecting. Seventy-five percent of the boys and almost 100 percent of the girls expressed a desire for more activities to be provided by the town. Their suggestions in order of popularity were: swimming pool, dances, drop-in center and sports related activities.

The Senior Citizen

A cross section representing 7 percent of the senior citizens of Winchester were interviewed last spring by the Committee for a Council on Aging. One of the questions asked was "Are you aware of the recreational program for the elderly offered by the Town Recreation Commission?" Fifty-three percent answered in the affirmative. In answer to the question "How frequently have you participated in the program offered by the Recreation Commission?" the responses were these:

5 percent--often
16 percent--seldom
77 percent--never.

There are other results to be studied from the written questionnaire sent to all senior citizens. The Winchester Senior Service Corps is working with the recreation director to develop recreation programs.

Comparisons With Other Towns

The research committee for the League of Women Voters' study could not make a direct comparison of the budget for Winchester's recreation program with any neighboring town because of the different systems of budgeting for maintenance costs.

A preliminary review of the recreational programs and facilities offered by several towns shows that Winchester has as many playgrounds as most towns, more swimming facilities than Concord, less than Belmont, and probably offers as many sports activities as Burlington, Concord or Belmont.

All three of these towns, however, have one or more activity centers for both youth and adults where recreational space and activities are provided and supervised by paid adults. In addition each of these towns has a drop-in counseling center, partly state-funded, open five or six days and evenings a week to all ages and staffed with professional counselors.

A comparison of the 1973 fall-winter recreational programs of the four towns shows that Winchester offers as many activities for senior citizens as the others, but does not offer as varied a program for youth and young adults.

Ten Men Of Mass.:

'46 States Impose Some Restriction On Budgets

The following is a fact sheet on school autonomy prepared by Ten Men of Massachusetts, originators of a Statewide effort to place the issue on the ballot.

Directed by various mayors and selectmen from throughout the state, the effort is headquartered in the Sheraton-Tara Hotel in Braintree.

Forty-six states of the fifty have some restrictions on school budgets. Restrictions on school budgets in the 46 states take one or more of the following forms: percentage limits on growth, maxi tax rates, budget review by the electorate (referendum), budget review by city, county or state authority.

Only four states have fiscal autonomy for local school boards, i.e., no independent budget review: Kentucky, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Nebraska.

Massachusetts ranks 18th nationally in per pupil educational expenditures. National average for 1971-1972 is $970 per pupil. Eighteen states spend higher than average; thirty-two states spend lower than average. Massachusetts spends just above the national average at $975 per pupil during 1971-1972.

What does school budget review look like in the higher spending states? Sixteen out of the 18 states in this category have some restrictions, taking one or more of the following forms: 8 of 18 are subject to budget review by the electorate (referendum); 7 of 18 are subject to budget review by the city government; 3 of 18 are subject to budget review by the county government; 3 of 18 are subject to budget review by the state government; 2 of 18 have autonomy, i.e., are subject to no independent budget review (Massachusetts and Pennsylvania).

What does school budget review look like in the lower spending states?

Thirty out of the 32 states in this category have some restrictions, taking one or more of the following forms: 16 of the 32 are subject to referendum on the tax levy to support schools; 16 of 32 have a tax limit which may not be exceeded; 10 of 32 are subject to budget review by the county government; 8 of 32 are subject to budget review by the state government; 7 of 32 are subject to budget review by the city government; 5 of 32 are subject to electorate vote on the school budget; 4 of 32 are subject to tax limit which may be exceeded by state permission; 2 of 32 have autonomy, i.e., are subject to no independent budget review (Kentucky and Nebraska).

How do higher and lower spending states compare on forms of school budget review?

Budget review by electorate: 8 higher spending, 5 lower spending.

Budget review by city boards;: 7 higher spending, 7 lower spending.

Budget review by the county: 3 higher spending, 10 lower spending.

Budget review by the state: 3 higher spending, 8 lower spending.

The legislature has never enacted a law giving school committees "autonomy" over school budgets.,

The basic purpose of the original law was to authorize town meetings "to vote and raise such sums of money... for the support and maintenance of a school master...as they (the town meeting) shall judge expedient" and to establish penalties against towns for failing to do so.

Two state laws established school committees and authorized them to set rates of pay for school teachers (Mass. Gen. Laws, Chap. 170, 1826 and Chap. 105, 1838).

"A most diligent and painstaking scrutiny of eighteenth and nineteenth century writings... fails to reveal the slightest suggestion that anyone ever dreamed of giving... to school committees the power to determine how much should be spent for schools." (Fiscal Independence of School Committees in Massachusetts Mass. Taxpayers Federation, 1947).

School committee autonomy is relatively recent. It centers on court decisions in this century. It is the courts, not the legislature, which say school committees have the power to decide how much school budgets shall be.

The legislature has failed to make the law clear. (Mass. Gen. Laws, Chap. 71, Sect. 34) This is the reason for current petition to restore some power over school budgets to town meetings and city councils.

No town meeting approval at all on school budgets invites unlimited spending. The cost to taxpayers is astronomical. It is unreasonable to expect school committees to be both advocates and controllers of their own budgets.

School committee autonomy pressures town meetings to spend more because other local government units see unlimited school spending and understandably seek same levels. School department inefficiencies and duplication of other town agencies, costing taxpayers even more, are inevitable under present school autonomy.

"It is not the business of the school committee to dictate to the town the amount of the appropriation for schools, but only to apply according to their best judgment, the sum

Letter From The Editor

The Spirit Of Christmas

The spirit of Christmas is how Father Mark Sheehan of St. Mary's Church describes what happened to him Christmas Eve. He was telling his parishoners at mass about the difficulties of the times and said he would be unable to attend a gathering of his family in Brockton because he was unable to get gasoline.

He said he had been to 15 filling stations that day and found them all closed except two. And the lines at those two were so long he didn't have time to wait.

After mass 15 people came to him and offered him the use of their cars. Another man, a filling station owner, offered to open his pumps. Father Sheehan took the man up on the offer. Not only did he get $9 worth of free gas, but the man gave him a bottle of Scotch.

And the man wasn't even Catholic, Father Sheehan said. "That made it even better."

If Christmas Eve carol singing on the Common seemed shorter this year than usual, that's because the singers "started very promptly," according to carol director Mary Whitham.

The singing began at 7 p.m. By the time some arrived, the group had broken up and started home. Mrs. Witham says they sang about 10 things "Monday evening was comfortable compared to the sleet and hail we've been through. But it was cold," she said.

Dr. David Hueter of 6 Worthen rd. was into The Star office the other day with a suggestion to help in the energy crisis: put bicycle racks at the railroad stations in sheltered areas. Considering the number of bicycle thefts in Winchester, though, you'd have to put a guard over the racks.

We notice that in Reading a bicycle rack was recently placed at the railroad depot. Probably for the same reason.

John Parrell has been complaining about a change in the stop direction at the intersection of Mt. Vernon st. and Highland ave. There used to be stop signs at the Highland ave. sides and South Border rd.

Now with the new traffic lights installed (?but not yet activated) drivers must stop at Mt. Vernon st., a steep hill. John thinks this is dangerous especially if there is going to be a snow storm.

We had some compliments on our "beautiful" front page last week. Thank you, those who took the trouble to telephone. It's nice to be able to do something different around Christmas time.

It looks like Winchester's election this year is shaping up to be its usual ho-hum affair. No issues, no time, no candidates, no anything. Usually at this time of year you hear four or five possible candidates being mentioned for selectmen and three or four for School Committee. This year those two boards have one each being mentioned. What this indicates is a guess: voter satisfaction, voter apathy. Take your pick.

Arthur MacDonnell

Winchester Singing

The Star has been asked to reprint the following article which appeared in The Star last Jan. 4. It was originally printed in the The Korea Times, Seoul. The writer at the time was an employee of the Eighth U.S. Army and lived in Seoul for five years. The MacDougall family lives at 11 Rangeley ridge.

By Alan M. MacDougall

A small town in New England is perhaps the best place to spend Christmas because traditions die hard in New England. Even the appearance of a New England town is traditional, and my home town, although it has long since become a very large town in population, still retains the appearance of a small town.

The center of the town, Winchester, Massachusetts, is dominated by the white wooden Congregational Church, and below it is a block-square patch of green known as the Common. It was on this small piece of land that the first settlers grazed their cows. Now it is a well manicured garden with enough open space to serve as a meeting place for the town's teenagers.

Some years ago the Common was relandscaped by some of the town's most public-spirited citizens and it is now a thing of beauty most of the year. The blossoms begin with dogwood in the spring and into late fall there are patches of color in the shrubbery.

There is one tree which does not bloom, however, but it has the place of honor in the center of the park. Long after the blossoms on the other trees have faded, this one tree comes into its glory for, as any child in Winchester knows, the tree in the center of the Common is the town Christmas tree.

Early in December workmen hang electric lights from the tree and it begins to glow. Other trees on the Common and elsewhere in the town are lighted but the one which draws the most attention is the Christmas tree. For it is beneath the branches of this tree that Winchester's most pleasant Christmas custom is reenacted year after year.

On the night beforeChristmas the people of the town, from the very young to the very old, gather to sing Christmas carols and to wish each other a merry Christmas. There is usually a small band made up of high school students, a vigorous conductor and perhaps a lady soloist to sing "O Holy Night" but for the most part the music is quite unprofessional. The highlight of the evening for the children is the singing of "Jingle Bells" because everyone gets to accompany the singing by ringing bells brought from home. Some of the younger children probably ring the sleigh bells which their fathers and mothers gang at similar gatherings under the same tree in years gone by.

Most of the adults get a little teary-eyed singing "Silent Night," but I like "Joy to the World," which is livelier and more fun to sing on a cold night. The carol singing lasts less than an hour but it is an experience that provides a lifetime of memories.

As I join my Korean friends in celebrating Christmas in Seoul, this year I will remember the nice people of Winchester singing beneath the town Christmas tree and will hope that someone there is thinking of me.

MBTA Schedule Changes Affect Winchester

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority has announced schedule changes which will become effective on Saturday.

Printed timetables will be available at the Park Street Information Booth, MBTA carhouses and garages and from the MBTA customer service center, 45 High st. The Star will request the MBTA to forward copies of the new schedule for distribution.

Common Cause Praises Legislature For Positions On Money, Secrecy

Common Cause Massachusetts (CCM) announced recently the results of its 1973 legislation program and praised the legislature for its "outstanding record on money and secrecy issues."

"The three major objectives of Common Cause Massachusetts (CCM) were reached and the legislature overall adopted our position on two—thirds of the issues we supported or opposed," Peter Keyes, legislative director for CCM stated. "The legislature established a record on political reform issues second only to that of Oregon and Texas."

Early in 1973 CCM decided to press for three reforms: open legislative committee meetings, better lobbying regulations, and campaign finance reforms. With Gov. Sargent's signature on the campaign finance reform bill, all three goals were achieved.

In July, a rules change initiated by Speaker Bartley and Senate President Harrington effectively opened legislative committee meetings. The first real test, however, will come next month when a full legislative session begins. Common Cause plans to monitor these committee mettings.

The lobbying bill, passed in October, establishes several new precedents. For the first time, lobbyists will submit expenditure statements, and file reports during the legislative session. Groups which lobby but do not hire lobbyists are included in the new law. Third, the lobbying of executive branch agencies is covered by statute. "No other state legislature has adopted similar executive branch provisions," Keyes stated

"The campaign finance law ranks among the nation's best," Keyes added. The bill, principally drafted by Rep. George Keverian, should provide a complete picture of contributions and expenditures before each election. It alsb establishes a director of campaign and political finance, a provision which Sargent was instrumental in adding to the bill

Additional CCM supported measures which passed include a public records bill, a citizen's committee to study the legislature and passage of an equal rights amendment for the Massachusetts constitution.

The one area where the legislature and didn't act was in conflict of interest legislation. All measures in this area were defeated

John Gardner, chairman of Common Cause, applauded Common Cause members and the Massachusetts legislature.

"I am extremely pleased to note the fine record established by the Massachusetts legislature this year in attempting to reform the political process," Gardner stated. "It is clear that the Massachusetts legislature has begun to respond to the need for reform so clearly shown by Watergate."

"The citizen activists and members of CCM can be proud of their efforts in seeking this legislative response."Petitions Favored by CCM:

Freedom of information act—passed.
Open meeting bill; rules change provides open meetings. Special commissions section —passed
Open meeting remedy bill—defeated.
Legilsative lobbying, executive lobbying—passed.
Director of campaign and political finance campaign finance reporting, —passed Conflict of interest law—defeated.
Financial disclosure—defeated.
Ethics commission — defeated.
Equal rights amendment — passed.
Citizens committee — passed.
Regional transportation authorities — passed.
Lawyer — legislators — defeated.
Petitions opposed by CCM:
Teachers payroll deduction for campaign contributions — defeated.

CCM Files Lobbying Report

CCM has filed its lobbying expense statement for the 1973 session of the legislature.

According to law, all employers of lobbyists must file an annual statement within 30 days of the end of the legislative session. Statements are due this year at the end of December. Employers must list salaries paid to lobbyists and all other expenses made in connection with promoting or opposing legislation. In the past, most employers have only listed salaries.

The 3½ page report, prepared at the Common Cause office in Washington, listed a total of $30,415 expended to influence legislation of Beacon Hill. Of this amount, approximately half was paid in salaries to State House lobbyists or staff who promoted or opposed legislation

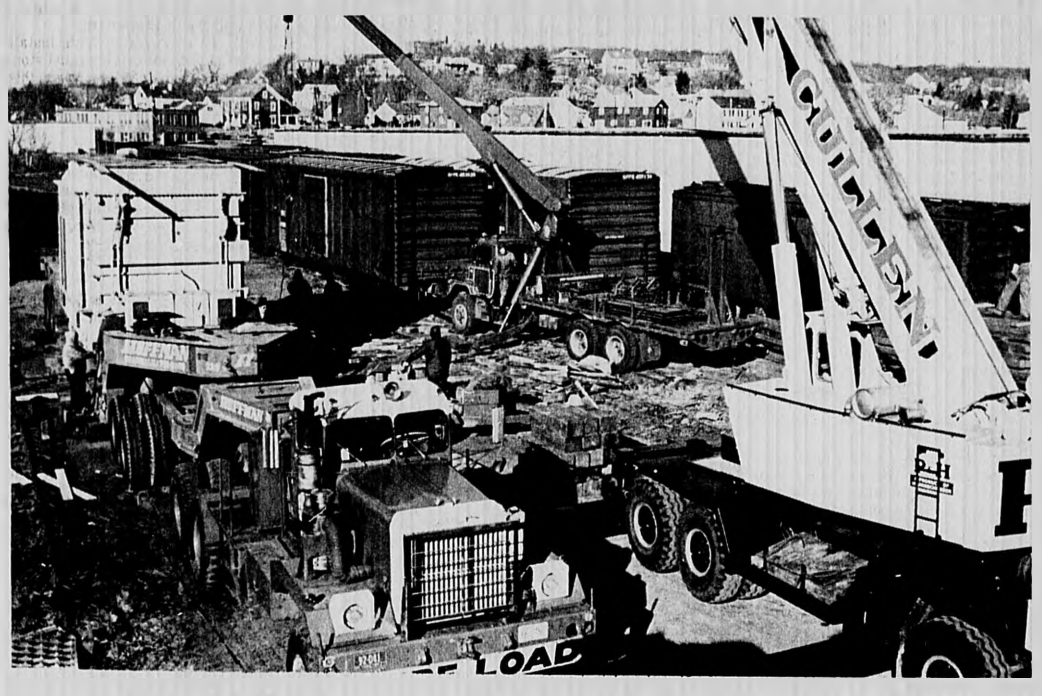

The remainder represents a portion of operating expenses allocated to lobbying. CCM used four paid lobbyists during the course of the 1973 session: Carole Cohen, Peter Keyes, Ron Rosenblith and Sam Tyler.

Judith Epstein, director of CCM stated, "We believe the people of Massachusetts are entitled to a complete picture of lobbying expenditures, not merely the salaries of lobbyists. We hope that other reports filed this year will give a more complete picture than they have in the past."

Ms. Epstein added, "We are greatly encouraged by the action of the legislature in passing legislation this year to require lobbyists to report their expenses for the first time. We also would like to commend John Mc Glynn for his efforts in instructing lobbyists and their employers concerning the requirements of the new law.

"This is clear evidence that the new law will not be ignored by state officials." McGlynn held a seminar for lobbyists yesterday.

The Common Cause report is on file with the secretary of state.

which is placed at their disposal" (by the town meeting) -Brookline School Committee Report, 1877.

While school committees would have to run a "tighter ship" if the petition is adopted, there is no evidence to suggest that tradionally liberal town meetings (such as Brookline) would abruptly curtail school spending.

A committee has been formed to assist Police Officer William J. Gannon, critically injured in a motor vehicle accident, and his family.

Compact Cars Are Big, Ralph Bonnell States

Ralph Bonnell

Ralph Bonnell, owner and president of Bonnell Ford of 66 Main st. believes the gas shortage will have a "profound and lasting impact on the auto industry for the forseeable future. The style, performance and other characters of the automobile will bear a direct relationship to fuel price and availablility.

Mr. Bonnell added that smaller cars, especially the Mustang II, are "red-hot" now. In contrast to the long, sleek car of the past, little cars are the trend, not only because of fuel saving but because new vinyl roofs, multi-colored interiors, bright exteriors, sun roofs and stereo radios have made them more luxurious.

Mr. Bonnell predicts that in the next 35 years, 50 percent of the cars on the road will be compacts.

The car industry is part of the Bonnell tradition. Established in 1925 by Ralph Bonnell Sr., Ralph's brother Bruce, is vice-president of the company and manages the Bonnell branch in Woburn.

Bonnell Ford offers a full line of Ford products, with a service and parts department and body shop for all makes of cars. Bonnell Ford has a leasing department with 150 cars out on annual contract, in addition to a variety of 30 daily rental units at competitive prices.

The Bonnell brothers "live for the day" when they can merge their operations and relocate to Cambridge street in early 1974. They are selling to expected volume but doing it out of facilities which are 30 percent of Ford Motor Co.'s

Ralph Bonnell was born and raised in Winchester and attended the Winchester school system. He majored in liberal arts at Tufts University, where he met his wife, Patricia Court. She attended Bouve School, which shared the Tufts campus. After graduation, Mr. Bonnell entered the service. He married in 1955.

The Bonnells have six children who attend Winchester schools: Betsy, 17; Linda, 16; Brooks, 14; Curtis, 13; Steven, 5½ and Susan, 3

Ralph Bonnell is a member of the Massachusetts State Auto Dealer Association and the National Auto Dealer Association. He was past director of the Metropolitan Ford Dealers Association and the New England Ford Dealers Association. He is a director of the Winchester National Bank.

Between working and playing golf, Mr. Bonnell is restoring his 1931 Model A roadster, which he found in a barn. Last fall the car, tan with black fenders and yellow wheels, came in first in the Bay A's antique auto show.

The Bonnells live at 88 Arlington st.

Bill Filed To Stop Funding Schools By Property Taxes

A proposal which would provide substantial relief to Massachusetts homeowners by abolishing property taxes as the primary method of funding public schools heads the list of 32 bills filed by the Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) for the 1974 session of the Massachusetts legislature.

At a news conference in Boston, William H. Hebert, MTA executive secretary, unveiled the teacher organization's legislative program for next year.

Hebert stressed the importance of the tax reform proposal, which calls for a five-year phase-in culminating in 90 per cent state funding of public schools combined with a program to equalize per pupil expenditures in every city and town in the Commonwealth.

"We recognize that school funding and equality of opportunity are the most explosive and urgest problems facing education today," Hebert said, adding that he thought the MTA plan would go a long way toward alleviating those two major difficulties.

Other details of the MTA proposal include replacing the loss of property taxes with increased income and sales taxes and eliminating the variations in per pupil expenditure by channeling the greatest aid to school districts with the largest number of disadvantaged children and the most need for fiscal relief.

According to the MTA official, last year Brookline expended $1,592 on each student while Leominster spent $696. Hebert described this kind of disparity as "grossly unfair" to the chiuldren of Leominster. Winchester spends $1,119 per pupil each year, about average for metropolitan Boston communities.

Under the MTA proposal only the wealthiest communities would continue to rely on some property taxes. They would still be considerably below what they are today.

Along with the tax reform proposal, MTA is filing a companion tax relief bill which would allow credits on the state income tax for senior citizens and persons of low income who pay relatively high property taxes as compared to their income taxes.

Of the remaining MTA bills, the most important are a limited right to strike for public employees; standardized maternity leave rights, insuring the right to leave, the right to return, and the right to maintain promotion benefits; a retirement plan allowing teachers to retire with maximum benefits after 32 years of service at age 55; and unemployment compensation for teachers.

Silent Auction Set At Cannons

On Monday afternoon at 1:30 Winchester Auxiliary of MSPCA will meet at the home of Mrs. W.S. Cannon Jr., 37 Wedgemere ave. for their seventh annual silent auction.

Members and interested friends are invited to bring an item or items received at Christmas, which, though the wrong size, color or taste for the recipient, may well appeal to someone else.

After a brief business meeting everyone will have an opportunity to write out their bids, which may be raised time and time again, until the final bell is rung. Bids start at 25c and some rare bargains result! It's the "soft sell" and lots of fun, says Kay Cardin of the local MSPCA.

Refreshments will be served by tea committee chairmen Mrs. Crosby Kelley and Mrs. John Grady.

In case of a bad blizzard the meeting and auction will be postponed to the following Monday and transferred to 8 Copley st.

VOLUNTEER - Martha Glover Redding of 1 Hawthorne rd., a 1953 graduate of Tufts University, will serve as a volunteer alumni field representative for the university's Alumni Assn. during the coming year. She recently attended a training conference for field representatives.

Republican Women Hear Readings At Christmas Meet

The Women's Republican Club of Winchester held its traditional Christmas meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Francis Lombardo, 2 Dartmouth st.

The program, arranged by Woodford Wilcox, featured humorous readings on Christmas by Dick Wilcox and Cecil Prest of the American Theatre. Christmas carol singing, led by Mrs. Ernest Wright, rounded out the evening.

Bids For Hauling Listed

The Board of Selectmen recently accepted the recommendation of Superintendent of Streets Robert G. O'Brien that bids received for hiring snow fighting equipment be accepted and utilized under his direction.

"The response from interested contractors has become less and less each year," O'Brien said in a letter to the board.

"I inquired from past bidders as to why there was no response this year and was informed that the price and availability of fuel was one reason for not bidding."

"The other reasons I received were that other communities negotiate prices and guarantee minimum hours of hire plus they are paid stand-by time. Others are finding it more profitable to contract with private industry on parking lots, etc."

"For example you will note that there are eight 10-wheel trucks which bid this year. On a normal three to six inch storm we need a minimum of six hired trucks of this size. In a six inch or better storm I need at least all eight that were bid.

"I have had no experience with G. Beale Trucking so I cannot comment. Ronzio bid two trucks but on some storms I am lucky if one is available. Reardon Trucking stipulates he will only plow on six inch storms or better. Center Trucking has always been the most reliable.

"On a removal operation after a three to six inch storm I must have a minimum of 10 trucks to supplement the few trucks I have. On a storm of six inches or better my requirements are increased from 10 trucks to 12 or more. If we did not have the Center Trucking bid I would be reduced to a maximum of four trucks available for removal, and this would mean serious problems.

"This year I am faced with an even more serious problem in that two of my larger trucks which I would use for plowing and hauling cannot be used. The two new trucks that were ordered last April may not be delivered until March of 1974 and those trucks they were replacing cannot be used this winter.

"Therefore, as in the past I recommend that all bids be accepted and that the trucks and equipment be utilized under my direction as the storms may dictate. If there are any questions concerning this I will be happy to meet with you and discuss same."

The bids for plowing equipment and loaders are available at Town Hall. The following are the bids for hauling rates:

Police Two-Way Radio Disappears

$25 Taken By Smooth Talker

A clerk at the Big L Discount Store, 547 Main st., was fleeced of $25 last Wednesday by a fast talking man who left a bottle of cough syrup behind him.

Police said clerk Joan Jackwitz of Woburn was behind the counter when a man she described as black, about 40 years of age, and five feet , five inches tall, purchased a package of cigarettes with a $20 bill.

Manager Paul Gagnon of Salem told the police the salesgirl gave the man the change and he asked for the $20 bill back. He then gave her a smaller bill and she gave him change a second time.

"She was not sure how it was done," Gagnon said. "The man appeared to be drinking." As the thief was leaving, he gave the salesperson a paper bag containing a large bottle of Vicks cough syrup.

He asked her to hold the syrup until his return. It had been purchased at a drugstore next door. He did not return.

The police last Wednesday also investigated a report that the statue of 'St. Francis in front of the Church of the Epiphany on Church street was removed from its customary place and thrown into the bushes.

On Thursday a resident of Forest street reported that a group of boys took her son's books at the public library and threw them out of the window. They then took the books and threw them in Mill Pond. The boys will make restitution.

A 23-year-old Malden man was arraigned Saturday at Woburn District Court after being apprehended by Winchester Wednesday at 7 p.m. Chief Bowler announced that he had been informed the radio was returned. He didn't have any other details except that there was no arrest.

The two-way radio set was lost Sunday, probably on Laraway road. Officer George Noel was making the usual Sunday meter collections when the three-wheeled gasoline-driven scooter broke down.

Because the radio slung over his shoulder kept interfering with his efforts to repair the vehicle, he took it off and placed it on the roof.

After he continued with his rounds, he noticed that it was not on the roof. He thought it might have fallen off the roof as the vehicle rounded the corner from the post office to Laraway road.

Police Sgt. Mario Buzzotti has had several conversations with the person who apparently picked up the dropped radio. He has tried to persuade the young man to return the radio, which will cost $700 to replace.

Buzzotti says the youth replies that during this Christmas season he wants to have some fun. The sergeant tells the youth the radio is no good when the battery runs down. But the youth replies he'll keep the radio until that time.

Police Chief Edward F. Bowler appealed to the youth to return the piece of equipment. He said there would be no punishment for the youth if he returned the radio right away. He urged the young man to call the station to arrange for its return.

In other police activity in the last week, there were a number of break and enterings and attempted breaks. Tools valued at $360 were taken from a shed at 242 High st. Friday.

Officer Richard W. Fisher said a neighbor told him he heard a banging noise coming from the shed at 2:30 and saw a cat leave.

Keys to the house and car were taken Monday in a break at a Crescent road house.

Accidents Mar Holiday Fun

A father and son were involved in separate accidents recently in Winchester at the same intersection.

At 1 p.m. Sunday John Murphy of 83 Nelson st. was driving a car which struck the curbing at Skillings road and Main street. He was not injured and there was little damage to the car, police report.

Last Friday John Murphy Jr. of 6 Skillings rd. was struck by an automobile at Lake and Main sts., the same intersection.

Driver Lucine Demerjian of Woburn said she was taking a left from Lake onto Main sts. when the car was in collision.

Murphy, 24, received a concussion and lacerated scalp. He was released Christmas Day from Winchester Hospital.

Bullock Files Multi-Package

State Sen. John W. Bullock has filed a major package of legislation which will place major emphasis on consumer protection, health and handicapped, the energy crisis and transportation.

In the consumer protection field, Bullock stressed the fields of consumer credit and fairness in banks and banking. One bill would require any company denying credit to automatically supply the denied person with a written report of the reasons why.

Another would eliminate "state" credit information from the files of credit bureaus. In the banking area, Bullock filed legislation to make banks collect items deposited by their customers more quickly. In addition he advanced the Uniform Probate Code, which would drastically reduce the costs of probating estates in Massachusetts

In the area of transportation and the energy crisis, Bullock has proposed a bill which would make energy deposits the property of the people of Massachusetts, and require their development for the benefit of the people, not of the large oil companies. He also proposed that the State pay 100 percent of the MBTA deficit, to take the burden off the property tax.

With respect to health care and the handicapped, the senator filed a bill to make buildings open to the public accessible to those who have mobility problems. He filed similar legislation covering mass transit vehicles and facilities. Voting and registering to vote would be made easier for the handicapped under other bills.

Bullock siad "In order to be effective, it is necessary to concentrate my efforts. I've decided to emphasize transportation, because unless we solve our problems in this area, our cities and towns will be strangled by traffic.

"The area of health and the handicapped is a natural for me, and one in which I feel I can do a lot for forgotten people.

"Finally the protection of consumers against the large banks is a field I can be effective in because of my membership on the committee on banks and banking."

IS DEB - Ann Constance Blackham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Blackham Jr. of Winchester, will be presented at the 52nd Debutante Assembly and New Year's Ball, a dinner dance for debutantes, on Jan. 1 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City.

St. Mary's CYO Hockey Team Is Still Undefeated

Christmas came early for the Walpole CYO hockey team Sunday as they scored a goal 33 seconds after the opening faceoff enroute to a 3-3 tie with St. Mary's.

Dan Whitney got the goal back at 1:58 of the second period assisted by linemate Bill McLean. Art Johns' goal at 8:28 of the second period, assisted by Peter Haley and Dan Powers, gave St. Mary's a brief lead but Walpole came back to tie the score just 18 seconds later, then went ahead with a goal at 0:44 of the final period.

Whitney scored his second goal of the game and his third of the season at 4:26 of the third period to tie the game. St. Mary's dominated the third period but couldn't score the winning goal.

The tie leaves St. Mary's still in first place by two points over Norwood and Dorchester and also protects the team's undefeated streak of 18 regular season games.

St. Mary's faces Milton on Sunday at 8:30 a.m. at Boston College. Milton was the last team to defeat St. Mary's in regular season play, beating them 2-1 in Jan., 1972.

Toastmistress Club: A Brief History

By Ruth Flax

The Winchester Toastmistress Club was founded by Edna Creder in 1948, 10 years after the international organization of Toastmistress Clubs began.

Hilda Hope, secretary of the Winchester Toastmistress Club (WTC), says that the local offshoot of the larger organization was one of the few in existence at the time of its founding.

The club is educational, with no fund raising or service activities WTC members occasionally aid at the fair for the blind. will speak anywhere. When funds are needed, delegates are sent to other states and will probably in the near future be sent to other countries.

The Toastmistress Club attempts teaching in a "practical, not formidable" method, by workshops, preparing and giving speeches, drawing up questions, and by practicing. The Toastmistress' best educational tool, according to Miss Hope, is evaluation of different parts of the meeting by the members with occasional evaluation by an outsider.

The format of the Toastmistress' meeting includes a one and one half to two minute speech on a subject given to the speaker that same evening. The speaker learns to conduct herself with poise and learns to think quickly and clearly. Those listening gain too. Miss Hope describes the process as "interesting, rather than difficult."

A topic critic evaluates the speech. A 20 program, which may be an educational period in vocabulary, grammar, parlimamentary procedure or lexicollogy, a workshop, or a seven to 10 minute previously prepared speech. Besides topic criticism, there is speech evaluation, when a workshop is presented there is an evaluation and always a general evaluation on the business meeting.

A painless type of evaluation called the "sandwich" method is used, beginning with something pleasant, leading into a critical evaluation, and ending with something complimentary. The rule is tact at all times.

Hilda Hope of 37 Glen Green rd. is the only charter member of the WTC still active. She originated the first Toastmistress' Council, an affiliation of 30 or more Toastmistress Clubs in the area, in 1950. The council meets four times a year. Its function is primarily educational. Miss Hope is historian for both council and club and has been asked to write the history of the organizations.

She has held every office in the club; twice president; vice-president, club representative; treasurer; secretary; program chairman, and has been on every committee both for the regional and national council.

Miss Hope was a member of the speakers bureau of the Toastmistress Club during the 1949 X-ray campaign of the U.S. Public Health Service to halt the influx of tuberculosis. She and other speakers' bureau members approached schools and industry to urge people to have X-rays taken. Miss Hope also spoke, as a member of the speakers' bureau, for the Community Fund, before it became the Massachusetts Bay United Way.

She is on the International Toastmistress Endowment, Club, a new council which functions to send a gift of money to endow the fund of a new chapter or to donate funds when a member dies.

Born in Halifax, Nova Scotia, Miss Hope came to Winchester in 1922. She attended Mount Saint Vincent Academy, Simmons College and received her bachelor of science degree in health education at Boston University. She studied at Montreal General Hospital and trained at Winchester Hospital. During World War II, Miss Hope was stationed in Hudson Bay, Canada for three years as an army nurse to instruct medics.

Public Health nurse in Winchester from 1940-1950, her last position was executive director of the Newton Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Organization. She retired in 1971 from public health, having been involved in it for 37 years.

Miss Hope is active in the Aberjona Simmons Club and Mount Saint Vincent alumni and in the Parish of the Ephiphany, where she was chairman of the 1972 fair. She is one of 11 members of the Winchester Council for aging and does volunteer work with a group of women residents of Mount Saint Vernon House. Miss Hope does many handiwork projects and especially enjoys dressing dolls for her great, great grand nieces.

'Abe' Curewitz Resigning As Head Of Homestead

Founder of Homestead Shops, Inc., Abraham Curewitz, past vice-president of the Winchester Business Association, is retiring beginning in January.

Curewitz says he wants to study and to write a book about his life. His immediate academic interest is in learning Russian and Spanish.

Though he was born in Russia, he came to the United States with his parents when he was four years of age and doesn't remember any Russian.

Homestead Shops, a reupholstering service at 20 River st., will continue with Mr. Curewitz's son, Larry, running the business.

'I regret leaving such warm friends as I have had in Winchester,' Mr. Curewitz says. 'I feel very sorry to be going.' But, 'I feel its time I put myself out to pasture.'

Considering Curewitz's many experiences--including four days in jail--that pasture will be a very busy one.

Jan. 3 he and his wife leave for Mergate, Fla., where the Curewitz's have bought a condominium in which they intend to live permanently.

Those days in jail, he explained, were spent for a principal. 'Abe,' as he is called by his friends, was fighting an injunction issued by a court against a group of striking workers which he had organized.

Mr. Curewitz established Homestead in 1920 after being an apprentice in the reupholstering trade since the age of 20. Now 70 years of age, Curewitz has seen the business move from several locations until permanently locating in Winchester in 1966.

A past president of Allied Furniture Crafts, a statewide organization of upholsterers, Abe was a labor representative of Local 37 and a representative of the Upholsterers International Union. He was appointed by two governors to a state advisory board on furniture inspection.

He and his wife have lived in Waltham in recent years. Besides their son Leon ('Larry'), they have a daughter.

The elder Curewitz says that the business will be carried on as usual by Larry. 'The same quality merchandise and courtesy will be extended. The principals of Homestead will be carried through.

'We appreciate the warmth and understanding of the people of Winchester.'

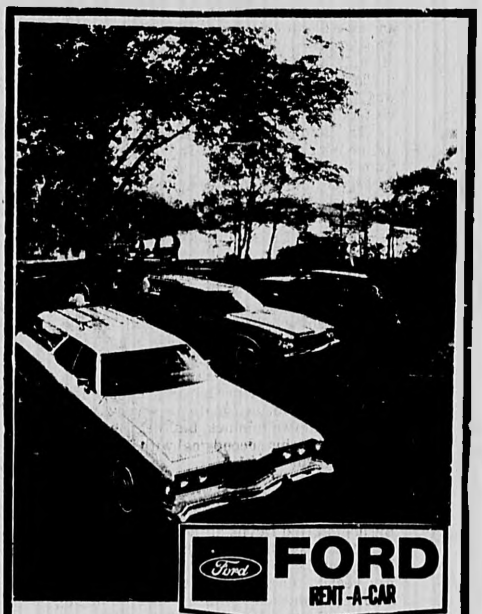

Leon Curewitz, right, shakes the hand of his father, Abraham, as the elder retires from the Homestead Shops, Inc., after 53 years in the upholstering business. The occasion was a testimonial dinner given by friends and family.

Teams Sweep All Events Reported Last Week

By John F. Parrell

The Winchester High School athletic teams enjoyed one of their best weeks in recent history last week, sweeping all events which have been reported up to this point.

The hockey team, varsity and junior varsity basketball groups all picked up two wins, while the tracksters won their only meet. It has been a long time since so many victories came in a cluster. The happy results get the teams off to a flying start in their campaigns in the Middlesex league.

Coach Ted Kelley's hockey teams rebounded hard from an opening setback at the hands of the Woburn Tanners. Shutting out the Lexington Minutemen 4-0 and then downing Belmont 5-2.

The first period of the Lexington game was fairly even with neither sextet able to penetrate too far into the attacking zone of the other.

One promising Sachem effort found the puck getting into the net, but the officials nullified it. The visitors however, drew a penalty late in the period. Defense man Andy Miga let one fly from just inside the blue line to give Winchester the lead which they never relinquished.

The second period found the locals playing much better hockey. Their good passing proved more effective then the Lexington checking game. Near the midpoint of the period Tom Brennan fed Mark Siegfriedt and the latter popped it into the cage.

Pete Frongillo kept the Lexington crew scoreless by his steady work in the Sachem goal. Winchester added two more goals in the third period as Siegfriedt got his second with assists going to Brennan and Charlie Evans and Pete Sandford tallied just before the final whistle, assists going to Kevin Pronski and Miga. Lexington also played good hockey in the last session, but the Winchester defense was playing a sound game, and kept the visitors scoreless.

The Belmont game was another good one for the Winchester sextet. They pressed hard from the start and scored once in the first period as Richie Jacobs set up Murphy for the first goal. This came after six minutes of action, and was the only one in the period.

Less than 30 seconds after the opening of the second session Tom Brennan scored with Charlie Evens setting him up. There was no more scoring over the next seven minutes. But Richie Jacobs scored at that point with the assist going to Richie Martignetti. Late in the period Siegfriedt drove one home, with Andy Miga and Charlie Evans assisting.

The Belmont team rallied in the early stages of the third period and managed to beat Frongillo for two goals. It was 4-2 going into the final two minutes, but Siegfriedt iced the verdict by his second goal with the help of Tom Brennan.

Coming Up

The schedule calls for a game with the Burlington Red Devils at the Burlington rink on Saturday, with faceoff scheduled for 5 pm. There will be two home games to start the new year at the USA rink. Wakefield will be here on Wednesday with a 7 p.m. starting time, while the Reading game will be on Saturday with a 5:30 p.m. faceoff.

While the hockey team was doing its thing the basketeers were also running in high gear. They downed Sharon in the return game by 74-54, and edged the Melrose Red Raiders in the dying seconds by 56-55.

The junior varsity group also kept pace by besting Sharon 69-53 and Melrose by 48-38.

Burlington plays here tonight, and the local quintet plays at Belmont next Wednesday. The Wakefield Warriors will be here for a game a week from today.

Coach Vandy French's team played much better basketball on offense against Sharon than they showed in the opening win by 47-45. They jumped into a big first period lead of 23-12. Although the visitors came back somewhat during the second period, they were still down by 54-42 as the last period opened. At this point they showed some of the best play of the game. They tallied a hoop to draw to within ten points, and threatened to get even closer.

However, their shooting was poor and they could get no closer. A barrage of scoring by Winchester saw the score mount steadily to the final total of 74-54.

Co-captain Tim Porter had his best scoring night with 17 points. Wayne Dennis and Sandy Bigelow each chipped in with a dozen to swell the score.

Albie Cordice with 14 points, Dan Heffernan and Todd Cronan with 13 paced the junior varsity win as the Sachems led all the way for an easy win.

The win over Melrose was a hard earned one, with both teams playing fast, close covering basketball. In spite of this there were comparatively few fouls. It was nip and tuck all the way, although the visitors broke out with a 22-point second period to show in front at half time by 36-28.

But the Sachems did not panic and kept their offense moving at a steady pace as they compiled identical 16, 12 figures in both halves. The Winchester defense had begun to bother the Raiders, who slipped back to a mere nine point output in the third period to make the score now only one point in their favor, 45-44.

Play continued fast over the final 10 minutes. With less than 10 seconds left, the Raiders still led by a single point. John Zanoli provided the thrill of the night as he caged a hook shot with less than 10 seconds left to give the Sachems the victory.

This enabled him to deadlock Sandy Bigelow for high scoring honors with 14, while Wayne Dennis was close behind with 13. However, John will not soon forget the thrill of scoring that winning hoop.

The junior varsity divided the scoring quite evenly to top the Raider junior varsity by 48-38. Melrose built up a 19-17 lead over the first quarter, but was unable to break into double figures for the rest of the game, which the local quintet won quite handily.

The basketball line scores:

VARSITY

WINCHESTER 23 13 18 20 74
SHARON 12 18 12 12 54

WINCHESTER 16 12 16 12 56
MELROSE 14 22 9 10 55

JUNIOR VARSITY

WINCHESTER 18 20 17 14 69
SHARON 7 13 19 14 53

WINCHESTER 17 14 8 8 48
MELROSE 19 3 7 9 38

Coach Tom Kline's speedsters made it two wins in a row as they trounced Watertown by 50-36. It was Winchester's meet all the way. The score would have been even bigger had not Pete Rigney been disqualified for stepping off the track in the 600-yard run.

As a result, Andy Samoiloff, who moved up to first, became Winchester's high scorer by taking the high jump, for a 10-point total. The next meet will be tomorrow morning with Burlington. Then comes the big one with the Wakefield Warriors one week later.

The Watertown meet also featured some all girl events. The Sachemettes did well as Mem Chipman and Donna Crisione finished one, two in the dash. Mem added a second place in the quarter mile event.

The summary;

Two-mile run: O'Laughlin (WA), Parker (W), Traegeser (W). Time: 10:24.

WHITE ELEPHANT SYNDROME

In the real estate trade it's called a "White Elephant". An excellent house for sale which just sits and sits. Often, you can recognize it by the tall grass and weeds overrunning the front yard; an occasional broken window here and there. The cause of this blight is always the same - OVERPRICING!

This story always has a sad ending - for the seller. Eventually, he has to reduce the price to sell. By this time, it's too late. The good prospects have waved goodbye and bought elsewhere. The appearance and condition have deteriorated. The eventual selling price is far below what it could have realized had it been valued realistically from the outset.

You don't have to increase the "White Elephant" population. There is a safe way to establish the RIGHT price. When you're ready to sell, see a local Realtor. He'll know the true value and what it will bring in the market. Top price, yes! Overprice - No!

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

Stevenson Is Key Figure At Norwich

A key figure on the Norwich University hockey team this season has been a 1971 graduate of Winchester High — Mike Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin W. Stevenson, 65 Nelson St.

"The Shark," as he is called by his teammates and coach, has four goals and seven assists to his credit in seven games as center on the Cadets' first line.

Stevenson picks up most of his points by working the puck through traffic and setting up a linemate near the goalmouth.

His ability to beat goalies with a lightning fast wrist shot has netted him four goals so far this season, against AIC, U Mass, and St. Anselm's.

He is majoring in biology.

Duplicate Bridge

SHERIFF'S SALE
THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

Middlesex, ss., November 9, AD. 1973

Taken on execution and will be sold by public auction, on Wednesday, the thirtieth day of January, A. D. 1974, at three o'clock p.m., at my office, 46 First Street in Cambridge, in said county of Middlesex, all the right, title and interest that John F. Skinner of Winchester in the county of Middlesex, had (not exempt by law from attachment or lefy on execution) on the sixth day of August, A.D. 1973, at nine o'clock and no minutes, a.m., being the time when the same was attached on mesne process, in and to the following described real estate, to wit:

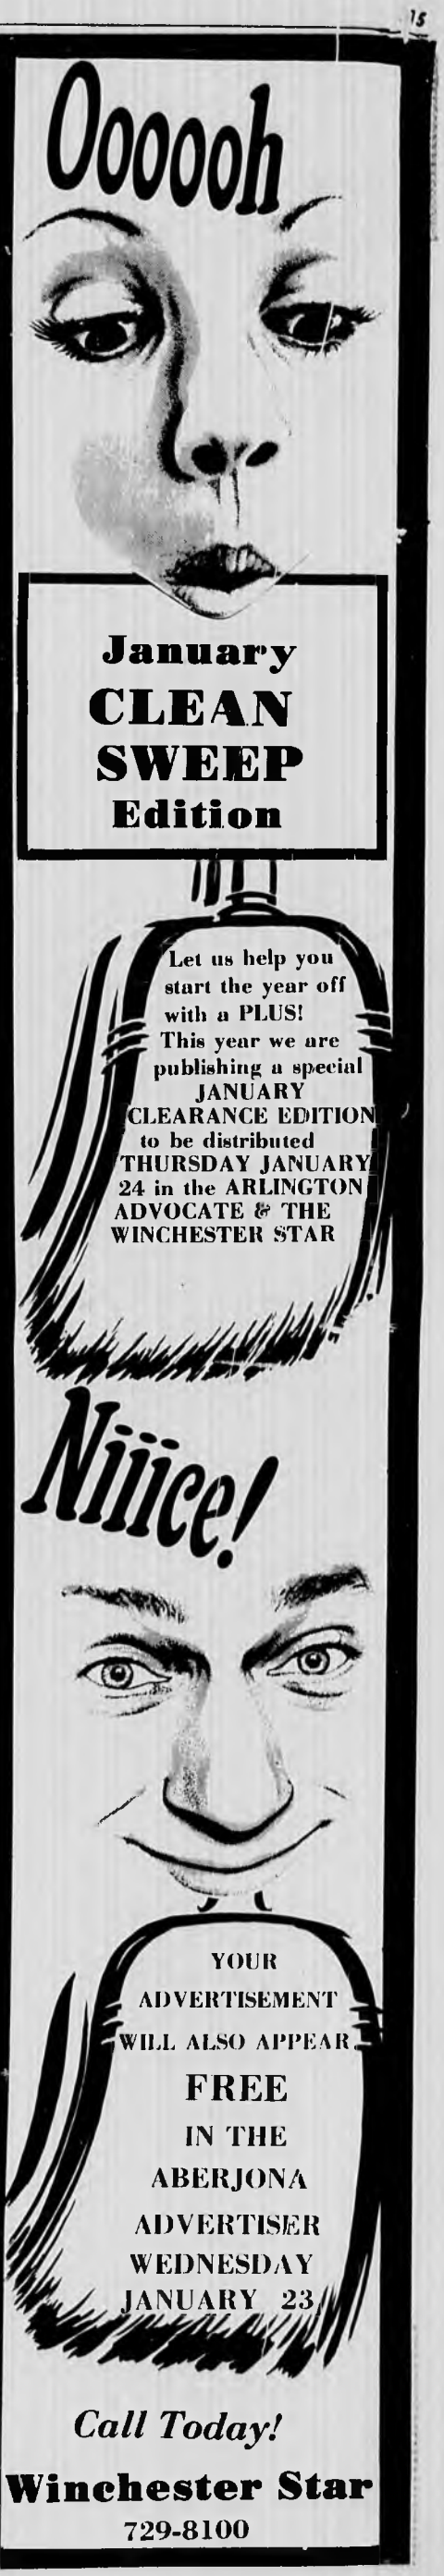

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon presently numbered 6-8 Quigley Court in Winchester, Middlesex County, Massachusetts and being shown as Lot 3 on "Plan of Land in Winchester, Mass." L.G. Beckett & Co. Civil Engineers, dated July 14, 1955, recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds as Plan 1970 of 1955, bounded and described as follows:

Northeasterly by Lot 1 as shown on said plan, 41.25 feet;
Southeasterly by Lot 2 as shown on said plan, 82 feet;
Southwesterly by Lot 4 as shown on said plan, 41.25 feet;
Northwesterly by land now or formerly of Gangi, 82 feet

Containing 3382.5 square feet of land according to said plan

Said premises subject to the right to use and maintain the 10 foot right of way, known as Quigley Court, leading from Swanton Street over said Lots 1, 2 and 3 in common with said Lots 1, 2 and 4. Said premises are also subject to the right to use and maintain existing utility pipes, wires and lines passing over and through said Lots 1, 2 and 3 in common with said Lots 1, 2 and 4 police in connection with a housebreak on Leslie road.

Winchester Police Sgt. Roland Roy said the man is being questioned in connection with 15 other housebreaks in Reading and Woburn.

His arrest came after residents reported the license plate number of a car seen on Leslie road on the day of the break, last Thursday at 1:20 p.m.

In that break, a fur cape, diamond ring, gold wrist watch and color television set were stolen. Entry was by breaking a window.

He was charged with breaking and entering in the day and pleaded not guilty. His trial is set for Saturday. He is free on $1,000 bail.

Tips

—Cover all chimney outlets with ½' mesh screen spark arrester. Be sure all flues extend at least three feet above roof. See that brackets are secure and flue collars are in place.

—Check your trees. Remove all dead branches from above all structures. Remove branches, dead or alive, so that none are closer than 10 feet from a chimney or flue.

Pee Wees Squeak Past Waltham 5-4

The flustling St Eulalia Lions Sunday broke the game open with two goals early in the first period which held up for a period and half before the Watchmakers came alive midway thru the second period to tie the score 2 - 2.

Each team tallied once more to finish the scoring in the second period. The game turned into a real scrappy contest with a couple of altercations, but when the final buzzer sounded, the Lions were on top 5 - 4 to set the Lions record 3 - 2 - 5.

The Pee Wees will bus it to Wilmington, Wednesday morning to play Reading.

Squirt Lions Beat Stoneham Team 4-3

The hustling Lions maintained the lead until Dave Smith narrowed the gap 2 - 1 with 4:38 left in the second period. One minute 27 seconds later Smith tallied again to tie the score 2-all. Twenty-one seconds later Paul Tucci on a nifty pass to Billy Ferry put the Lions out front for the second time wih his third goal of the game.

Up and down action opened the third period, both teams having good scoring opportunities, with the Lions of top 3 - 2. Paul Glover tied it up again 3 -3 midway thru the final period.

The Lions put on a tremendous press and again Billy Ferry put the Lions on top with a pass from Paul Tucci with 1:38 left to play.

Membership of Open Gym Program May Reach 1,000

The program has a membership of 320 adult residents and over 400 youths. By the end of the year the total membership should reach close to 1,000, coordinator Francis Lane said.

The men's basketball league will be starting next week and will run every Wednesday night for the next two months. The gym will be still open to all members since only one basketball court will be used for the men's league. The schedule of games will be posted in the gym. The first game will be from 7:15 - 8:15 and the second will be from 8:30 - 9:30.

Jan. 8 and Jan. 22 have been scheduled for women only as requested. If there is a sufficient number of women who show an interest in this type of gym use, the schedule can be expanded. If not the gym will continue to be open to both men and women.

During the Christmas vacation the gym has been scheduled most afternoons for those 15 and over and evenings for those 18 and over. The schedule has been published twice in The Star and there are copies available at the gym.

Tips

—Do not allow trash of any kind to accumulate in your yard and especially close to house, garage, or outbuildings. Keep yard clear of flammable material for 30 feet from structures.

— Remove flammable vegetation for 30 feet from each building on your property. During long dry spells, cut flammable growths to 18 inches high beyond the 30 foot point, to exteend out 100 feet or the property line.

Chanukah Means Dedication

Chanukah, the feast of dedication for Jews throughout the world, began Dec. 20 and continued through to yesterday.

On the first night of Chanukah, also known as Hanukkah, a small candle in a special nine "branch candelabra, called the Menorah is lit; the next night, two are lighted; the third, three and so on until eight candles are lighted.

The feast commemorates the rededication of the Temple by Judas Maccabeus after the small Judean Army defeated the Greco-Syrian forces of Antiochus IV more than 2100 years ago.

Antiochus IV was determined to make everyone follow his ways of worship. He seized the temple in Jerusalem, filled it with idols and ordered the Jews to abandon their faith on pain of death. Judas Maccabeus led a revolt and against countless odds, overthrew the forces of Antiochus. While this was going on, legend has it that priests found a single jar of holy oil, enough to keep the eternal light burning before the Ark of the Covenant for one day.

Miraculously, it lasted eight days, giving time enough for the Jews to replenish their supply of oil without interruption of the light.

Judah then proclaimed an eight day holiday to celebrate the rededication. Chanukah means dedication.

For his role in the victory, Judah won the name Maccabee, meaning hammer. It is said to have struck a victorious blow for religious liberty.

Scientist Church Members Serve In State Hospital

During November and December the members of First Church of Christ Scientist, Winchester, have been providing a weekly Christian Science service at the Metropolitan State Hospital in neighboring Waltham. The services are the same on Sunday morning at 114 Church st.

Approximately 10 Winchester residents are active in this program each week, including two readers, ushers, an organist, and a soloist. Richard M. Clifton, Mrs. Margaret R. Bramley, Ruth M. Vogel, and Mrs. Eleonora M. Spanjaard have all served as readers.

The services are based primarily on readings from The Bible and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science. Anne R. Blanchard was the pianist while Mrs. Mabelle M. Wright and Clarence W. Feldmann served as soloists.

New Year's Noise Originally Was To Scare Evil Spirits

By Pauline Dishmon

On Tuesday a new year will make its debut.

Many Americans will welcome 1974 by making lots of noise while others quietly reflect on the past, present and future.

Some will have feelings of jubilation as they gather to party with friends and families. More than likely most will give little notice to the origin of the celebration that follows a pattern set long ago by ancestors representing peoples of the world.

Superstitions and religious beliefs based on man's search for answers to the mysteries of life and his need for survival have determined his action from the earlies to the present day.

The beginning of a new cycle is one of those interesting moments to observe customs and to determine future response.

Noise, Bonfires

Noise is a major ingredient which has lingered in the gigantic new year's custom pot of the centuries. For instance, in China it is a custom to this day to fire off crackers on the last day and night of the year for the purpose of expelling devils.

In Japan on the last night of the year most families hold a ceremony where they exorcise evil spirits. The rite is performed by the head of the family who wears his finest robes and sword at his waist, that is if he has a right to wear a sword. He goes through all of the rooms at the hour of midnight carrying a box of roasted beans in his left hand. At intervals he dips his right hand into the box and scatters handfuls of beans, chanting, "Go forth demons. Enter riches."

Finnish people of Eastern Russia used to have all the young girls of the village gather on the last day of the year armed with sticks. They would beat every corner of the house and yard, saying, "We are driving Satan out of the village."

Later the sticks were thrown into the river. As they floated downstream, supposedly Satan was moving out of the geographic bounds of the town too, floating to the village where the ritual would be repeated.

In another part of Russia, Satan was driven out as the Cheremiss people beat the walls of their homes with cudgels of limewood. They fired guns, stabbed the ground with knives and inserted burning chips of wood in crevices.

These same folk would leap over bonfires, shaking out their garments, or they would blow long trumpets of lime tree bark to frighten Satan away. Supposedly when Satan had fled to the wooded area, they would pelt the trees with cheesecakes from their festive tables.

In Nigeria, families bring firebrands out into the street, throw they away, and exclaim, "The gods of the new year. New year has come round again." The fire is supposed to drive away the old year with its sorrows and evils and open the way for a new year of prosperity.

The 12 days between Christmas and Epiphany (Jan. 6) has been a time to rid communities of witches and evil spirits throughout the centuries. In some parts of Poland the people burned pine resin all night long, believing the pungent smoke permeating the house would drive evil spirits far away. On the eves of Christmas and New Year's villagers would fire shots over fields and meadows into shrubs and trees and wrap straw around their fruit trees to prevent spirits from doing them harm.

Bohemian boys of Czechoslovakia, armed with guns, would form a circle and fire three times into the air. This was supposed to frighten witches away. Meanwhile other youths and housewives sprinkled holy water in all the rooms of the houses and, using chaulk, they drew crosses on every door.

On the last day of Epiphany in the Lake Lucerne area of Switzerland, boys, carrying torches and lanterns would parade making great noises with horns, cowbells and other objects. They believed they would scare away Strudeli (witch) and Stratteli (nightmare), two female spirits of the woods. The people believed that if enough noise was not mustered there would be little fruit during the coming year.

In southern France evil spirits were expelled the same season. Inhabitants rushed through the streets jangling bells, clattering kettles and doing everything they could to make noise. Finally, an ear-splitting uproar was believed to end the chasing of all wandering ghosts and devils.

In Rome a similar custom was observed. On the eve of Epiphany a dense crowd assembled to make an uproar by using penny trumpets, tambourines and bells. The ceremony was supposed to honor a mythical old hag called Befana. Effigies of her were made of rags and placed in windows.

In Great Britain all of the servents of every farmer gathered together in one of the fields sown with wheat. Here, using straw, they would make 12 fires in a row. One fire was larger than the rest. The men would outline the larger circle and drink a cheerful glass of cider to their master's health and success to the future harvest. After they returned to their homes they would eat cakes soaked in cider. The custom became known as Wassailing.

Customs Continue

In the Lorraine sections of France on Twelfth Night the people still light bonfires for good crops during the coming year. While the fire blaze, they dance around crying, "Good year, come back. Bread and wine, come back."

A similar custom is observed in Normandy except that the people gather round the fruit trees rather than fires.

Moslem people of North Africa kindle fires and bathe in water to celebrate the new year. In Tunis and Marrakesh they burn bonfires.

In the Great Atlas Mountains of Africa, the people leap back and forth over flames saying words that imply they are being purified from all kinds of evil with each leap.

On one locality of the Great Atlas region the fire is lighted by an unmarried girl. When the fire dies down young men leap over the glowing embers saying, "We shook on you, O Lady Ashur, fleas and lice, and the illnesses of the heart, as also those of the bones; we shall pass through you against next year in the Great Atlas." Ashur is New Year's Day.

Girls who wish to marry will wash themselves in water which has been boiled over the New Year's fire; and in some places the ashes from the fire are used to rub sore eyes.

Some people preserve the boiled water at home until New Year's Day of the next year or use the water for medicine. Or they pour it on the place where the corn will be threshed or water the money which will be buried in the ground. People in this area think that earth-spirits will not be able to steal the buried treasures which have been sanctified with the holy water.

In the Sudanese kingdom of Wadai, village fires are put out and ashes are taken from the houses on the day before the new year festival. At the beginning of the new year, a new fire is lit by the village elders. Every man takes a burning branch to rekindle the fire of his domestic hearth.

Ancient Times

In ancient times, customs were similar and just as interesting. In Asia Minor, were kings combined religious and civil authority, the king of Madagascar served as a high priest of the realm. He would preside at sacrifices offered at New Year's in behalf of the community welfare.

At the same time in the Galla states of Eastern Africa the native king would perform the public sacrifices and supervise the sacrificial killing of human victims.

In ancient Babylon the king had to renew his power each year by seizing the hands of the image of Marduk in his great temple. Even later when Babylon was under the power of Assyria, kings were expected to legalize their claim to the throne annually. To some this was a bothersome task and rather than going through the formality they would renounce their title of king and settle for the lower title of governor.

Apparently some kings gave up their lives on the new year. In ancient Calicut there was the custom of killing the king at the end of 12 years of service and some times at the end of one year. To get around this a king could find a stand-in for the occasion, probably a prisoner condemned to death.

For five days prior to the death of the stand-in he would dress in the king's robes, sit on the royal throne and be allowed to issue whatever commands he pleased. He would be able to eat, drink and enjoy himself and even lie with the king's concubines. But when the five days were over he was scourged or hanged. During his short term of office the prisoner bore the title Zoganes.

On the sixth day of the Babylonian New Year festival, called Akitu, a condemned felon was paraded though the streets and scourged.

Return of Dead

The return of the dead at the end of the year has been important component of activites affecting current customs throughout the world.

In Tonquin of Indo China the dead revisit their kinfolk and their old homes at the new year. From midnight on the door of the house is not shut for fear of excluding the ghosts who begin to arrive at that time.

In Siam and Japan the souls of the dead also revisit families for three days in every year. A special festival, the Feast of the Lanterns, lights the way for the spirits. In Siam, Tonquin and Sumba the return of the ghosts takes place at the new year.

In Korea on New Year's Day the people try to rid themselves of all of their distresses by painting images on paper and writing descriptions of troubles of their bodies and minds. Then they give the papers to a boy to burn.

Sometimes, as in the western Himalas, an animal is used as the scapegoat for explusion of accumulated ills of an entire year. A dog is intoxicated with spirits and led around the village before being turned loose. Then the villagers chase and kill the animal with sticks and believe that they have accomplished their task of inhibiting disease and misfortune from the village during the coming year.

In Ulawa, one of the Solomon Islands, once a year a live dog is driven from a cliff into the sea. The dog is supposed to be laden with all the sicknesses of the people.

Of course, the new year is not always Jan. 1. Many nations have celebrated the new year in the fall at harvest time, dating back to the seven-month years.

Indians of Santiago, Mexico, use Oct. 18 for receiving their dead at which time they sweep the roads in order to make the way clean for ghosts.

The Bghais, a tribe in Burma, hold an annual feast for the dead at the new moon falling near the end of August. And in Tibet the new year begins with the new moon about Feb. 15.

Today

Though they contain faint similarities, New Year's celebrations of today are different from those of the past. Perhaps one might say the fear of ghosts, witches and misery from the gods has been replaced by the fear of war, no fuel, high prices, unemployment and even fear of knowing one's self. Bonfires and scapegoating might be said to be replaced by alcoholism, vandalism, and deaths on the highways.

It has been said that one should plan to do the things he likes to do on New Year's because that will set the tone for the year. Does this refer to football games on television?

New Year's meals are important to many. In Virginia and North Carolina some families serve black-eyed peas and greens which are symbolic of the food and money they hope to have during the coming year.

Some families sit down and set goals or resolutions for the coming year. This is true of business establishments too.

And others go to church to seek divine guidance during the days ahead.

Whatever you do on New Year's Eve and New Year's Day, may it be good for you and others.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Most of the information contained in this New Year's article was found in "The New Golden Bough," a new abridgment of Sir James George Frazer's classic work, edited and with notes of forward by Theodor H. Gaster.

Resides the human voice for yelling, all kinds of horns, bells and clanging pots and pans have been used as noisemakers throughout the centuries by people of all nations to welcome the new year. The tradition, which began in the earliest times, originally was to frighten away evil spirits.

MV Gas Is Part Of BosGas

Mystic Valley Gas became a division of Boston Gas on Dec. 20, with the merger of Boston Gas and three former gas companies of the New England Electric System (NEES).

Cities and towns previously served by Mystic Valley Gas, encompassing 103,000 customers,include Winchester, Arlington, Belmont, Burlington, Everett, Lexington, Malden, Medford, Melrose, Reading, Revere, Stoneham, Woburn and Winthrop These communities have been incorporated into the new Boston Gas franchise area.

The merger was accomplished following the purchase of the three NEES properties by Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates, parent of Boston Gas. The other two were Lynn and North Shore Gas Companies.

NEES sold the utilities in compliance with a divestment order of the Securities and Exchange Commission. The merger also had the approval of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities (DPU), following public hearings earlier this year.

The transaction also included the purchase of Massachusetts LNG, Inc., a company providing liquefied natural gas services for the gas distribution companies.

Founded in 1822, Boston Gas is the nation's second oldest gas distribution company. The three former NEES companies have added 570 employees and over 175,000 customers in 27 communities to the Boston Gas service area. Boston Gas now has about 2,200 employees and serves approximately 500,000 customers in 74 cities and towns in eastern and central Massachusetts.

The rates now being charged customers in the northern divisions are not affected by the merger. Rates can be changed only with the approval of the DPU following public hearings on any rate application. The NEES companies have new gas rates pending before the DPU, which they filed several months ago, and those cases will be heard by the DPU sometime in 1974.
